Leaves on the Leviathan After Exchanging Feeling Farewell With Marshal.

OUR DEAD A TIE, BOTH SAY

Allied Leader Pledges Affectionate Care of Fallen—Lauds Generous Efforts of America.

GENERAL PRAISES FRANCE

BREST, Sept. 1.—General John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force, sailed from here today on the transport Leviathan for the United States. The steamer left port at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Marshal Foch came aboard the transport shortly before she sailed, and made a feeling address to the departing commander.

"In leaving France," said the Marshal, "you leave your dead in our hands. On our soil we will care for them religiously and zealously, as bearing witness of the powerful aid you brought us. These dead will bring from America many thoughts of remembrance and pious visits, and will bind still more strongly our already close union.

"Recalling with emotion the hours we have lived together—some of them full of anguish, some glorious—I am struck hard in the heart in passing with you the last moments of your stay among us. On your arrival, you said: 'Lafayette, we are here.' Allow a French soldier of today to return thanks to you, and in a few words recall the work you have done for the rights and liberty of the world."

Praises Rise of Green Army.

"This army, raised in all haste, with still only elementary instruction, recently organized and commanded by young officers, without military tradition, passed rapidly into your hands. You have shown yourself to be in the largest sense organizer, soldier, chief, and great servant of your country, crowning the generous efforts and noble spirit of America with victory by your armies.

"If," concluded the Marshal, "the clouds of war should gather again in the future, would not these dead rise from their tombs and make their voices heard once more by a world which already knows that the same cause, the cause of Liberty, has united us since the time of Washington and Lafayette?"

General Pershing replied by bidding farewell to France in the person of the Marshal, "to her gallant poilus, to her patriotic men and to her noble women."

"You have done me the signal honor," he said, "of paying me a final visit. It is fitting that you should be the last to whom I say farewell, because of our intimate service together in the days of anxiety and victory.

"The American Army, in fulfillment of the will of the people, came to France because we stood for the same principles of right, and because the common ideals of the two countries called for mutual action upon this foundation. Close comradeship and co-operation rapidly moulded our fresh and aggressive young manhood into an army, which under you, as the allied leader, was to turn the tide of war.

"To have fought beside the glorious Army of France, and been of your people during more than two years, has given our relations an affectionate touch and makes our parting one of sadness. But in these deep sentiments there is an abiding confidence between our peoples which insures to the world our constant friendship and our common purpose in behalf of humanity.

"In leaving with France our dead, we are consoled to feel that their graves will be tenderly cared for and become a sacred shrine that will still more firmly bind us together."

Then the General and Marshal Foch walked arm in arm to the gangplank, exchanging final salutes as the Marshal stepped ashore.

Bids Good-bye to Press.

General Pershing, at a meeting with representatives of the French press this morning, bade farewell to the journalists. The American Commander in Chief made this statement:

"More than two years ago I arrived in Paris with a small group of officers and men, as the advance guard of our army. Since that day a vast host of Americans have come to France, lived among her people, and returned to their homes.

"If it is possible for different nations to understand each other, then we feel that we carry back with us an appreciation of France and its people, its art, and its culture. Our soldiers found their relaxation in Paris, along the rivers of the Pyrenees, and in the mountains. They have shared with the wonderful peasantry of France their joys and sorrows; they have fought, suffered and died beside the poilus, and rejoiced with them in the final victory. Such a mingling of peoples in a common cause is unprecedented in the history of the world In taking our departure we have

Junkers Call for Kaiserism; Hear Austria Wants It Also

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 1. — The leaders of the Pan-German League at a gathering in Berlin Sunday expressed their desire for a return of the monarchy, according to a dispatch from the German capital.

Herr Bazin, a lawyer of Vienna, said in a speech at the meeting that the Hapsburgs had disappeared forever. He said that Austrians wanted rule by a Hohenzollern, and that when a revolution came they would support a true Prussian.

OUTDO THE MOVIES IN FIRE RESCUES

SWINGS FROM NEXT HOUSE

Taking risks which seemed to spectators almost like deliberately throwing their lives away firemen made three difficult rescues last night at a fire which destroyed a five-story brick tenement house at 247 Clinton Street.

The fire started on the first floor and in a few minutes was roaring up the stairs and spreading on each floor. The flames were raging in the hall of the fifth floor before the occupants of that floor had warning. By the time they got to the fire escapes flames from the windows of the lower floors were enveloping the iron ladders.

Nellie Callahan, 19 years old, who lived on the top floor, ran back to one of the front windows when she found all escape cut off. She was about to jump when the crowds shouted to her that firemen were trying to rescue her. Fireman Timothy O'Leary of Engine 15, who was off duty at the time, appeared in the window of the fifth floor of an adjoining building, the occupants of which had fled to the street. He called to the girl not to jump. Then he crawled out on the narrow ledge and worked his way to the window of the burning building.

Smoke was pouring out of the window when he reached the girl, picked her up under the arms and lifted her out. Holding her under the arms, he started to crawl on the ledge to the window of the adjoining building. He edged along inch by inch. From the street he appeared to be clinging in some miraculous manner to the face of the building, the ledge being so narrow that it was almost invisible from the street.

Another Woman Appears.

While the crowd expected every second to see the two killed by a fall to the sidewalk, another woman appeared screaming at the same window, which was lighted up by the flames. As soon as Fireman O'Leary and the girl had been lifted into the window, Second Battalion Chief Walter Jones climbed out of it, ordering O'Leary and Joseph Scanlon of Truck 6 to hold his legs. He swung backward and forward to get momentum and then gripped the ledge in front of the window where the woman stood. He caught her about the body and lifted her out of the window. Then they fell clear of the ledge.

The two firemen were nearly dragged out of the window holding on to the feet of the Battalion Chief, who moved backward and forward, with his head downward, clinging to the woman's waist. The weight was too great for the two firemen in the window to pull them back. The Chief's grip of the woman seemed to be loosened, while there was danger that all four would fall.

An aerial ladder, forty-five feet long, was thrown up against the wall and Fireman Frederick Miller ran up to catch the woman if she fell. Winding his legs about the ladder, he leaned far out and used both hands to steady the woman. For a few seconds they remained in this desperate situation, where a false move or the sudden exhaustion of the strength of any of the four firemen might have sent all crashing down forty feet to the sidewalk. Then more firemen reached the window, gripped O'Leary and Scanlon, who began slowly to lift the Battalion Chief, while Fireman Miller wriggled up the ladder and continued to aid in holding the woman, who was finally carried safely into the room. She was Mrs. Catherine Callahan, mother of the girl who had been previously rescued.

While the second rescue was being made another woman appeared at the window surrounded by flames. To avoid being burned to death there she gripped the window sill and hung her body out the window. Firemen shouted to her not to drop. A ladder was placed against the window and Fireman William Hartman of Truck 6 ran up it. Gripping the ladder with his legs, he hung far over in order to get a firm grip with both hands on the woman.

Her weight nearly dragged him from the ladder, when other firemen behind him on the ladder supported him and the woman. The third woman to be rescued was Mary Heffernan, 24 years old, who lives on the third floor, but was forced to run to the top floor when the flames cut off the stairs and the fire-escape. She was severely burned and singed.

"No commendation is too strong," said Deputy Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin, "for the energy and efficiency displayed in the rescue. I cannot praise those firemen sufficiently for their valor."

Fireman Timothy O'Leary, who made the first rescue single-handed and aided in the second, received the Thomas Crimmins Medal in 1914 for valor displayed while rescuing a baby from the top floor of 214 Monroe Street.

CARRANZA RETORTS, CHARGING WRONGS TO MEXICANS HERE

REJECTS MONROE DOCTRINE

MINER KILLED BY BANDITS

The Victim, Adam Shaeffer, Is Believed to be an American Citizen.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—A denfnse of Mexico against foreign representations, particularly from the United States, regarding the lives of foreigners and their property, was contained in a message of President Carranza read at the opening session of Congress tonight.

Particular reference was made in the message to alleged injustices practiced against Mexicans in the United States. A long list of the alleged offenses was given under the section of the address devoted to foreign relations.

The message also defended Mexico's neutrality during the war and protested against charges that the Mexican Government was incapable and unwilling to protect foreign lives and property.

President Carranza asserted that Mexico did not ask admission to the League of Nations because the League did not establish equality for all nations and races. He reiterated that Mexico had not recognized and would not recognize the Monroe Doctrine.

Regarding oil legislation, the message said that the Government was willing to conciliate, but would not sacrifice its national sovereignty.

Dclaring that in international matters, "the honor of Mexico has been guarded with energy and rudence," the President gave four main causes of international friction; American frontier conditions, damages to foreign property in Mexico, damages resulting from injury and deaths of foreigners, and the results of the application of laws developing from legislation carrying out revolutionary ideals.

Urges Payment of Damages.

Regarding the first, which has been marked by punitive expeditions, President Carranza asserted the belief that when an arrangement had been concluded for the reciprocal policing of the frontier, the causes for unpleasantness would disappear.

In connection with the second and third, he stated that new laws proiding for the payment of damages up to the present time, including not only damages suffered during the two revolutions, but resulting from isolated cases of revolt now existing in various parts of Mexico, both to lies and property, when the damages were not caused by the fault of foreigners nor the negligence of the Government, would remove cause for complaint. Regarding claims filed because of loss of life or damage to property, the President asserted that the efficiency with which the Government punished offenders was significant. He declared it would be well if diplomats should cause their nationals to exercise more care, and expressed his belief that, with an improvement of protective measures, causes for complaint would decrease since foreigners would become sure of the sincerity and ability of the Mexican Government to fulfill guarantees.

Discussing the fourth cause of friction, the President said that this was most serious since it involved a limitation of national sovereignty. He took up his previous declarations expressing the refusal of Mexico to sacrifice her liberty to govern according to her own necessities and not "simply to satisfy the demands of oil interests."

Statements from various Government departments which were included in the message were cited by the President to show the country was in a prosperous condition. The deficit of 35,000,000 pesos in 1917, he asserted, had been wiped out until the Government is now absolutely solvent, with a prospect of soon resuming payments on the foreign debt. He said the army had been reorganized until the discrepancy between the number of men and the number of officers had been removed. He declared that discipline had been improved and that the few oulaw bands still in existence were in the process of being dispersed.

"Elections held throughout the country," he said, "have not impaired the national Government's authority. Private property taken over by the Government during the revolutions has been returned, with the exception of those involved in the uprising resulting in the assassination of President Madero. Foreign investments, as well as foreign trade, are increasing, and both Mexican and foreign confidence are being restored. Mexico is advancing despite the vain attempts of reactionaries and rebels."

Optimism was apparent in every declaration of the message, even when the document discussed alleged transgressions by foreign powers against Mexican sovereignty. The list of indignities and injustices suffered by Mexicans in the United States cited by the President in that section of the message dealing with relations between Mexico and the United States included the crossing of the border by American sol-

Airman Dives Over ex-Kaiser, Alarming Amerongen Watchers

AMERONGEN, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—Much excitement was caused in Amerongen at 11:30 o'clock today when an aviator, passing above the Bentinck Castle, suddenly looped the loop and dived low directly over the garden where the former German Emperor was engaged in his daily task of sawing wood.

Many of the villagers believed that the former Emperor was in danger, but the aviator merely descended to about fifty feet above the garden, leaned over the side of his plane, waved a greeting to Herr Hohenzollern, and then proceeded on his journey.

The aviator is presumed to have been Versteegh, a Hollander. The former Emperor is said to have been greatly pleased by the airman's greeting.

LABOR TRIBUTE TO PRINCE OF WALES

Parade Turned Into Guard of Honor in Ottawa Streets as He Drives Through.

PRINCE OPENS VICTORY LOAN

Lays Cornerstone of New Parliament Building and Decorates War Veterans.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1.—When the Prince of Wales heard that this was Labor Day and that there was to be a big parade and sports and gala in Lansdowne Parke he immediately made it known that he intended to be present at the park. Labor promptly returned the courtesy, and of its own free will turned its parade into a guard of honor and lined the streets for his ride between Government House and Parliament Hill. As far as I can gather, labor decided upon and carried out this entirely of its own accord. The streets were taken over without any warning apparently, and certainly without any fuss.

Labor organized itself and stretched its ranks along the interminable streets and kept perfect order. There seemed to be few police about. There was no need of them. Labor took command of the show and wasn't going to permit any disorderly incident.

It was a remarkable sight. The procession walking in long thin files on each side of the road, bearing in its midst the different floats, a boilermaker's shop busy on wheels, a stoneworker's bench in operation on a wagon, the framework of a wooden house on an auto to show Ottawa what the carpenters and joiners could do.

This long procession of all grades of labor marched toward Parliament Hill, and as the line came into position the men faced right and left, walked to the edge of the curb, to which the floats were also moved, and so kept back the big crowd along the route for the coming of the Prince. So in his drive the Prince passed not between ranks of soldiers, but ranks of an army of labor.

It was a spontaneous affectionate action of a people determined to show how personal was its regard for the youth who knew how to be one with them and how he valued their friendship. It was immensely more significant than the most August item of a formal program.

Prince Loses Nervousness.

After the Prince had passed along the route lined by men of labor the procession of events fell into their natural order. The Prince showed that the goodwill of the Canadian people has been an inspiration to him. He has lost some of his nervousness and he answered the addresses directly and freely and without referring to notes. After laying the cornerstone of the new Parliament building, a sturdy rather than a beautiful pile and complete all except this stone, the Prince unfurled a flag, which inaugurates the Victory loan campaign, and then passed from the atmosphere of functions into that of comradeship—he inspected his old companions in arms, the Ottawa veterans, and presented medals to the men and women who had done great things in the war.

From Parliament Hill the Prince drove through Rock Hill Park, a winding, erratic and lovely stretch of untrammeled nature, which lies for miles along the bluff leaning over the shining blue waters of the Ottawa River to Government House, only to leave it after lunch to get amid the people at the labor sports in Lansdowne Park.

There was only time for a drive through the park, but it was a drive through a cheering and eager crowd, anxious to make the most of the occasion. From here he turned about and swung in his car across the great interprovincial bridge that leads to the suburb of Hull across the Ottawa River. Hull, rather a sprawly and uninspiring place, was transformed by sun and man for the Prince.

On the scarlet steps of a dais outside the Town Hall there was gathered a number of pretty girls, each dressed to represent one of the Allies. After the presentation of all the races of the Entente in their comeliest forms, the Prince stood on the steps among them and four tiny girls came forward with a chain bouquet, each garland of flowers linked to the other by a great stream of crimson. Here again there was open invitation to the people, who from bearded and brown habited Franciscan friars to the girl workers from the big local match factory passed before the Prince in the open air and shook his hand.

A review of war veterans followed, not on the parade ground, but in the main street of Hull. This street was packed with the men who had fought for the very homes about them, and they gave the Prince a real and unstinted soldiers' welcome. They crowded about him, shaking his hand, and, after he had been into the veterans' club to receive a loving cup, nothing would satisfy the crowd until he had made a speech. He made it in the main street, too.

He stood up in his car and spoke to them of his gladness at meeting them all again, and what their friendship and affection meant to him.

UPHOLDS WILSON PROGRAM

Calls Radical Labor Agitators Traitors to Nation and to Unionism.

A plan for the reduction of the cost of living, recommended by the Cost of Living Committee of the New York State Federation of Labor in a report published yesterday and made after a series of conferences with representatives of capital, includes the suspension of pending labor strikes on the basis of the status quo for a period of six months, or until President Wilson may make effective his fight to bring down the cost of living, and the speeding up of production by intensive methods used during the war.

It also recommends that no strikes be ordered during this period except those that may be necessary to relieve wage earners from intolerable oppression, and that the Executive Council of the State Federation of Labor be the judge of what strikes now pending shall be deemed necessary. The committee further recommends that the hands of the President be upheld in his efforts to reduce living costs.

The committee was appointed by President James P. Holland of the State Federation on July 29 to confer with representatives of industrial, commercial, manufacturing, financial, transportation, and other enterprises and associations representing such enterprises. The conferences were held in the rooms of the Merchants' Association of New York. The report, signed by John F. Pierce as Chairman and Isadore Epstein as Secretary, was as follows:

Text of the Report.

Dear Sir and Brother: Your committee of members of trade unions under the jurisdiction of the New York State Federation of Labor and affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, whom you instructed on July 29 to confer with representatives of industrial, commercial, manufacturing, financial, transportation, and other enterprises and associations representing such enterprises with a view to devising plans to effect a reduction in the cost of living, beg leave to submit the following report:

Your committee does not intend to burden you with a tiresome dissertation on the causes of the high cost of living. They are patent to all thoughtful men. The representative business men with whom your committee conferred presented facts and figures to show that the high cost of living is due to the high cost of and decrease in production. These facts were well known to your committee.

Arguments were also presented to support the contention that since the armistice was signed the business men of the country have been in a state of apprehension, due to rapidly changing conditions. No man could predict one day what new conditions he would have to meet the next. Uncertainty as to Government regulations, uncertainty as to industrial conditions, uncertainty as to labor's attitude, uncertainty as to new legislation, uncertainty as to future market conditions, have disturbed and dislocated industry to a degree never experienced before. These are facts which no body of men ought to dispute. Labor will certainly not question them.

Points to Danger of Disaster.

Your committee is convinced that this condition is all wrong and cannot be permitted to continue unless we—and by "we" your committee means not labor alone but the people of the whole United States—wish to invite a disaster unparalleled in history.

The people must be given a breathing spell. There must be a suspension of struggling for class and party advantage. All Americans must bend their backs to their oars and pull steadily together against the storm-tossed waters until our boat again rides safely on the placid sea of prosperity.

The part that labor can play in bringing tranquillity and prosperity to our industrial life has been pointed out by recent events.

The President of the United States, in a message to his fellow-citizens on Aug. 25, refers specifically to the threatened strike of railway shopmen, and makes a plea which advisedly may be considered as applying to industrial disturbances generally. The President said:

"The substantial argument which the shopmen urge is the very serious

Council Will Offer Bulgaria an Aegean Port; Disputes Over Thrace Won't Delay the Treaty

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The Supreme Council, desiring at the earliest moment possible to conclude a treaty with Bulgaria, has decided to hand the Bulgarian delegation the text of a treaty which will determine the boundaries of the country. The document will provide for a Bulgarian port on the Aegean Sea, but will not name the port.

The Bulgarian delegation will be asked to renounce its claims to certain territory which will be stipulated in the Peace Treaty. The distribution of this territory will be made later. The situation with regard to the disposition of Thrace, on which the allied delegates still are divided, will not be a cause for delay in the conclusion of peace with Bulgaria.

The Supreme Council today discussed the Austrian Peace Treaty, which probably will be delivered tomorrow to the Austrian plenipotentiaries.

FOES OF TREATY SHOW ANXIETY

Admit That the Mild Reservationists Can Defeat Amendments.

SENATE GETS MORE DATA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The alignment of middle ground reservationists in the Senate against textual amendments to the treaty with Germany, as agreed upon at a conference at the Capitol on Saturday night, had the effect today of causing leaders among the other elements of the Republican opposition to consider means of carrying on the battle when the treaty reaches the Senate.

That the "mild" reservationists now hold the situation in their own hands, and will be able to defeat amendments on Shantung and other provisions, was secretly conceded by many of the leaders among the Republican forces. Senator Lodge, who spent part of the day conferring with other Senators at the Capitol, declined to discuss the situation; he would not even say whether he thought the Shantung amendment, which he sponsored in the Foreign Relations Committee, would be adopted by the Senate.

The general impression among Republican Senators at the Capitol was that the Shantung amendment was doomed. As to other amendments, there was a variance of opinion.

Senator Watson of Indiana, one of the conservative leaders among the Republican forces, did not hesitate to say that he believed the Shantung amendment would fail in the Senate. While there was a strong feeling against the award of the former German rights to Japan, he said, he did not think a majority of Senators would vote to strike the provision from the treaty.

Mr. Watson was inclined to believe, with others of the conservative camp, that the Senate might adopt, instead, a resolution expressing its disapproval of the Shantung award. This, also, is what the "mild" reservationists advocate. From a survey of the Senate it appears that there would easily be a majority vote in favor of a resolution of that nature.

The Indiana Senator was explicit in saying that he belived that the treaty would be defeated unless drastic reservations were adopted. He said he would vote that way himself. He considered that the fight, in the last analysis, would resolve itself into one upon these reservations. He predicted that the "mild" reservationists would be found in line with the Senators favoring more stringent reservations when the Senate reached the voting stage.

Mr. Watson found a strong sentiment, he said, for the amendment offered by Senator Johnson in the Foreign Relations Committee, to give the United States six votes in the League Council so as to equalize it with that of Great Britain.

"I believe that amendment will be adopted by the Senate," said Mr. Watson. "I fail to see how Senators can stand before their country as willing to give Great Britain six votes in the League Council against one for the United States."

The "mild" reservationists, or a majority of them, will oppose the Johnson amendment as throwing the treaty back to the Paris Conference and making necessary a reopening of the entire treaty negotiations.

Senator New of Indiana, one of the Foreign Relations Committee members, would venture no opinion as to the probable fate of the Shantung amendment. He was "curious to know," he said, how Senators who disapproved of the award to Japan could consistently vote against the amendment, yet he was not willing to say that it could be adopted.

"I think the vote on Shantung will be very close," said Mr. New, "and I

REPUBLICANS BALK ON HOUSE LEADERS

WOULD OUST MONDELL

Fear Wilson's Speaking Tour Will Turn Country Against Republican Control.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Opposition to the leadership of Representative Mondell is becoming very pronounced among Republicans of the East in the House of Representatives, who are planning to insist upon a change of policy at the next Republican conference. Mr. Mondell succeeded Representative James R. Mann as Republican leader in the House, after a bitter fight, which left scars that have not since healed. The feeling against Mondell's leadership took the form of open revolt at a recent conference, when his party virtually denounced as a reclamation project the bill sponsored by Mr. Mondell for the reclamation of lands for soldiers and sailors.

In the nine months during which the Republicans have been in charge not a single bill of a constructive nature has appeared, assert the Republicans who are criticising the leadership in the House. The daylight savings law has been repealed, over the veto of President Wilson, by the strong Republican vote from the agricultural districts, and the Woman Suffrage resolution was passed. Aside from this, and the passage by the House of two small tariff bills, intended to protect American producers from competition from Germany, the House has done nothing to justify Republican control, it is pointed out by Republican critics.

Republicans are becoming much worried in the House about the way the country is viewing the return of Republicans to control. Most of the House members disagree with the Republican Senators who are attempting to defeat the treaty and to make radical reservations in the League of Nations. They are afraid that President Wilson in his tour around the country will become so strong as to defeat Republican opposition to the treaty, and that the natural result of this will be trouble for the party in 1920.

Want Real Legislative Work.

As to 1920, the House Republicans who are critical of the alleged failures of the House leadership, are asking on what platform the Republicans will make their argument for retention of Republican control of the House. A group of progressives have discussed the situation most earnestly, and, led by Representative Longworth of Ohio, they will make a demand that the Republicans in the House get down to real legislative work. Their demands will be presented at a conference scheduled for this week, when the final attitude of the party on the Soldiers' and Sailors' Land Settlement bill will be disclosed. At this conference the election of a Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee will be considered. Many Republicans say that the Chairman should be a strong, positive factor in party politics, and they are opposed to re-electing Representative S. D. Fess.

There is what may be described as a sectional feeling among Republicans. Eastern Republicans are asserting that Mr. Mondell's leadership does not come across the Mississippi River and that he does not view things from a national viewpoint. They charge that the leadership of Messrs. Mondell and Fordney is responsible for the biggest legislative fiasco of the session—the failure to pass a semi-luxury tax repeal bill. These Republicans assert that these two men made it impossible to pass the bill by attacking the Democratic Tariff bill and by asserting that the revenue law of 1918 would not be sufficient to meet the expenses of Government. After such speeches action on the proposed repeal was postponed and it is probable that the tax will not be repealed in this session of Congress. In the closing days of the Democratic session the tax was repealed without opposition, but Democrats after Mr. Fordney's attack, as well as many Republicans, declined to vote for repeal.

The troubles in the Republican Party are most serious and only real action on constructive legislation will satisfy those Republicans who are dissatisfied with the legislative record of their party.

GOMPERS STILL IN CONTROL

Developments Indicate Wilson Has Support of Organized Labor.

BANK ON JOINT CONFERENCE

Promise to Bring Workers and Capital Together Said to Have Influenced Labor Chiefs.

SPECULATION ON MEMBERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Reports received here tonight from all parts of the nation indicated that the ultra-radical and Bolshevist elements among the workers had been held in check over Labor Day and that President Wilson would be given an opportunity to test out his program for a meeting of employes and employers, which he feels will result in an agreement on readjustments that will end the danger of economic and industrial chaos.

The President, it was said tonight, has very definite opinions as to the most important steps which should be taken in facing the situation, and is prepared to stand firmly for his beliefs. It is predicted also that the President, in his tour to the Western coast, on which he will start Wednesday evening, will tell the people a good deal about those opinions, as well as acquaint them with his beliefs as regards the necessity for the quick ratification of the treaty of peace with the League of Nations covenant.

Developments here during the last week have given every indication that the President will receive the support of the American Federation of Labor as represented by its President, Samuel Gompers, and the members of its Executive Council. Mr. Gompers has stood firmly against the ascendency of any element in the ranks of organized labor which favors a repudiation of the position taken by the Administration, and has extended his best efforts to prevent disastrous strikes among the railroad shopcrafts and in the steel industry. Up to this time he apparently has succeeded.

The developments would indicate that the happenings of the week were of the utmost importance in reflecting what may develop in the future. While some of the leaders took the stand for a more radical course, the situation today goes far to prove that Mr. Gompers still is in control, and that his counsel for a "rule of reason" has prevailed.

Labor Welcomes Conference.

President Wilson's announcement that he will call a conference of employers and employes as soon as practicable to consider fundamental changes in regard to the part which each must play in the future of the industrial world, found a favorable reaction in labor circles here and apparently has ended the danger of a strike among the railroad shopcrafts and the steel workers. Labor is confident that in view of the President's attitude, representatives of capital must agree to participate in such a conference and the leaders at least are willing to await such a conference and see what is done to meet the demands which they have made. The leaders express the opinion that the rank and file of organized labor will now follow them in this course.

There was much speculation today as to the men whom President Wilson would summon to take part in such a conference. It was accepted as a certainty that President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor would be the most prominent representative of the labor group. Among the employers who will be called in, it is believed, are representatives of the principal railroads and the steel industry. Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Board of Bethlehem Steel, it was said, was one of the men who would be called, and probably Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation. The President, however, has not given any intimation as to the personnel of the conference.

There has been a strong movement among some of the leaders of organized labor to bring about such a "round table" discussion of the problems, and it is felt that labor generally will accept the President's program for the meeting. It is expected that representatives of the employers may suggest that certain conditions be accepted, such as an understanding that their presence is not binding upon them in any direction, at least until action is approved by them at the conference.

Advocate Radical Changes.

There is an element in the ranks of organized labor which is opposed to any agreement which may result in delay, without absolute assurance that their demands would be met in full, but the indications now are that their influence is not strong enough to cause serious trouble in face of President Wilson's stand. Among these elements are some of the more radical exponents of the Plumb plan for the nationalization of the railways, who contend that no proposition should be considered except out-and-out approval of their plans, without debate.

Radical changes in regard to the part which labor shall play in industry are advocated pretty generally by the more conservative labor leaders, but they are willing to put aside other plans for such readjustment until there has been opportunity for a general discussion. It is said here that Administration leaders, as well as a number of the labor leaders, are satisfied that the Plumb plan for Government ownership of the railroads with the nationalization feature attached cannot be put into effect overnight because of the great economic problems involved, and that they are prepared to follow a more temperate course.

It is believed here that the President will call the conference of employers and employes soon after his return from his Western tour. It is possible that a call may be issued within a few days fixing a date. The President, it is said, has given much thought to the proposition for several weeks and has about made up his mind as to the general lines he will suggest for the conference. It also is understood that the President is prepared to place before the conference a message, giving in some details, the reforms which he feels should be accepted both by capital and labor as the basis for their deliberations.

The decision to call the conference, it is said, was the determining factor in throwing the support of President Gompers and the members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to the movement to prevent a strike in the steel mills at this time. It is said that the President, during the conference, which was held at the White House on Friday last with Mr. Gompers and the members of the steel workers' committee, outlined the proposal which he intended to make to the country in his Labor Day message, and that Mr. Gompers and the representatives of the workers promised at that time to exert every effort to prevent a general strike.

RESCINDS STRIKE OF SHOPMEN.

Hemerlein Holds Up Walkout of 15,000 Workers in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 1.—An order for a general strike of railroad shopmen in Buffalo and vicinity, voted at a secret meeting of union leaders held late last night, was rescinded tonight by Frank L. Hemerlein, executive head of the shopmen's organization on the New York Central Lines. The strike would have affected about 15,000 workers in the shops here and at Depew.

Hemerlein refused to discuss the reasons for the order rescinding the strike call other than to say that "secret developments" were responsible. He said that the shopmen would remain at work, accepting the increase of 4 cents an hour, pending the result of efforts to reduce the cost of living.

Telegrams were sent by Mr. Hemerlein tonight to sixty-two points on the New York Central Lines ordering that any strike calls be held in abeyance for the present.

CHICAGO SHOPMEN HOLD OUT.

Vote on Wilson's Proposal is 96 Per Cent. for Rejection.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Railroad shopmen of the Chicago district voted against acceptance of the four cents an hour wage increase announced last week by President Wilson and Director General Hines, according to an announcement tonight by J. B. Sanders, District Secretary. He said the vote completed tonight showed 96 per cent. of the men opposed to acceptance.

URGES COURSES ON LABOR.

Institute Says Pupils Are Ignorant of Workers' Movement.

The teaching of "labor civics" in schools, through auditorium exercises and class instruction, is urged in a statement issued yesterday by the Institute for Public Service, of which Julius H. Barnes is Chairman. The statement was in the form of an appeal which is being sent to schools throughout the country.

A special appeal is being made to President Anning Prall of the New York Board of Education, and City Superintendent W. L. Ettinger to recognize in school work that "Labor Day is not only a holiday, but also a turning point each year toward greater democracy in industry, in commerce, and in government." The statement says:

"Twenty million pupils and students are being affected by the day. Anything worth stopping work for, worth spending a billion dollars for, is worth making understood to the schools. During the school year 1919-20 no other subject is of as much importance to our country as Labor with a capital L, for in that subject lie embodied and embedded the problems for which the world war was fought, and which popularized the civil war and our Revolutionary War."

Of present teachers it is asserted that "not one teacher in one hundred in our schools, and not one in twenty in our higher institutions, is able to teach the civic meaning of Labor Day, labor movement, labor program, and American labor substitutes for Bolshevism.

A dozen suggestions are made which include having pupils write answers to the question: "What and why is Labor Day?" with the reading and posting of the best answers, and through discussion showing what inadequate answers lack. It suggests that pupils read at assembly exercises what President Wilson said regarding labor in his message announcing that the Peace Treaty was signed, the covenant of the League of Nations concerning labor conditions, the platform adopted by the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City, and labor's demands for education.

ONE UNION PARADE MARKS LABOR DAY

Many Come Here, While Exodus Is Less Than Usual—De Valera Addresses Meeting.

Labor Day opened inauspiciously yesterday with a heavy downpour which ceased shortly before noon. Once or twice during the remainder of the day the sun broke through the clouds, but for the most part the sky was overcast and occasional light sprinkles discouraged many persons from going to the country or the parks.

The homeward rush of vacationists from out of town resorts kept the railroad employes busy and many trains running in two sections were crowded with people standing in the aisles. The railroad terminals were congested and train schedules were from 15 minutes to an hour or more late.

Approximately 7,000 men, women and children took part in the Brooklyn Labor Day parade, which began at 11 o'clock, an hour later than schedule, because of the rain. Each of the unions taking part in the parade displayed service flags showing from 200 to 300 service stars, some of gold.

A large contingent of navy yard workers took part in the parade which wound its way to Prospect Park, where addresses were delivered by W. B. Rubin, attorney for the American Federation of Labor; County Clerk William E. Kelly of Brooklyn, and Compensation Commissioner Thomas J. Curtis. William F. Kehoe, Vice President of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union was Chairman of the meeting, and John T. Coughlin, the President, was Grand Marshal of the parade.

Mr. Rubin denounced Bolshevism, Socialism, profiteering, and "injunction judges," who granted injunctions against strikers. The speaking was followed by games.

There was no Labor Day parade in Manhattan, and the event of the day for the Manhattan workers was the Irish meeting and outing arranged by the Central Labor Union at Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue.

For the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant the theatres did not give their usual extra Labor Day matines. The actors' strike created an amusement famine, and to fill the void people flocked to several theatres where performances were given by members of the Actors' Equity Association and to the motion picture houses.

Thousands took part in community festivals in the city's parks, where music, folk dancing, games, and patriotic exercises composed the programs. The members of local 261 of the Brotherhood of Painters, at New Star Casino, celebrated their "victory" over the employers in the painting industry, and actors from the Actors' Equity Association took part in the celebration.

Field day games for crippled soldiers were held at the Fox Hills, Staten Island, Hospital. Other entertainments were given for service men. Open house was kept by the Cardinal Farley Soldiers and Sailors Club, 15 East Thirtieth Street.

An audience of 1,500 heard Professor Eammon De Valera, so-called President of the Irish Republic, at the Manhattan Casino yesterday afternoon. As the unofficial representative of the Irish Labor Party, Professor De Valera conveyed its greetings to American labor. He said that the laboring men of Ireland were striving for economic independence in the same way that the Irish nation is seeking to fight England. The British Labor Party, he continued, has not yet faced the vital question, and is not ready to grant to Ireland the fulll self-determination to which she was entitled.

In most of the large hotels the managers reported the largest Labor Day crowd that had ever been accommodated. At the Pennsylvania on Saturday the holiday influx brought 1,490 persons. The total number at the Pennsylvania on Saturday night was 3,109, a record for the establishment.

The same was true at the Commodore On Saturday night 2,200 guests were housed, 800 having come from out-of-town for the week-end.

The McAlpin exceeded its average accommodations by a few hundred, taking care of 2,210 on Saturday night. There were 1,200 arrivals at the hotel on Saturday.

The Vanderbilt Hotel and Astor also showed increases. One hundred and fifty more than the average number of daily guests received accommodations at the Vanderbilt on Saturday, it was said, filling the hotel to its capacity. Hundreds of others applied for rooms, it was stated, but most of them were turned away on account of lack of room. The Astor received 300 guests on Saturday.

PROPOSES 6-MONTHS TRUCE

increase in the cost of living. This is a very potent argument indeed. But the fact is that the cost of living has certainly reached its peak, and probably will be lowered by the efforts which are now everywhere being concerted and carried out. It will certainly be lowered so soon as there are settled conditions of production and of commerce; that is, so soon as the treaty of peace is ratified and in operation and merchants, manufacturers, farmers, miners, all have a certain basis of calculation as to what their business will be and what the conditions will be under which it must be conducted."

Again President Wilson said:

"The demands of the shopmen, therefore, and all similar demands, are in effect this: That we make increases in wages, which are likely to be permanent, in order to meet a temporary situation which will last nobody can certainly tell how long, but in all probability only for a limited time. Increases in wages will, moreover, certainly result in still further increasing the costs of production and, therefore, the cost of living, and we should only have to go through the same process again.

"Any substantial increase of wages in leading lines of industry at this time would utterly crush the general campaign which the Government is waging, with energy, vigor, and substantial hope of success, to reduce the high cost of living. Only by keeping the cost of production on its present level, by increasing production and by rigid economy and saving on the part of the people, can we hope for large decreases in the burdensome cost of living which now weighs us down."

Call Unauthorized Strikes Treason.

As a result of President Wilson's appeal, backed by the attitude of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and the leaders of the railway brotherhoods, the threatened railroad strike was averted and the country spared a terribly tragedy.

On every hand there are strikes and threats of strikes. Most of these disturbances have been provoked by the radical agitators who have not the interests of the toilers at heart, but who seek to promote industrial warfare for the purpose of destroying our present economic system and substituting "industrial ownership by the proletariat."

Fortunately, the sane leaders of organized labor have, after a short period, succeeded in regaining control of their temporarily rebellious unions, and restoring orderly procedure under the laws and rules of the American Federation of Labor.

The conduct of men who call themselves loyal supporters of trade unionism in breaking away from the authority of their duly elected officials and inaugurating uncalled for, unnecessary, and unauthorized strikes should at all times be severely condemned and the agitators who foment such outbreaks should be visited with the severest penalties possible under trade union rules.

For trade unions to permit themselves to be brought under the influence of lawless agitators at this time of national stress is treason not only to the principles of trade unionism but to the United States of America. It would not be too severe punishment to revoke the American Federation of Labor charters of such unions and put them outside the pale of decent organized labor.

Your committee is of the opinion that President Wilson's reasoning is based on sound economic principles and that organized labor owes a duty to the President to give him wholehearted assistance in his efforts to reduce the cost of living and place the nation on a strong business basis. We owe the President of the United States the same loyal support that we gave him during the war, even though we may suffer from a temporary disadvantage which, after all, may be more apparent than real.

Increased Production Urged.

Your committee therefore recommends:

FIRST—That organized labor exert itself to the utmost to increase production of essential commodities and thereby lower the cost to the producer, to enable him to lower the cost to the consumer. This applies not alone to the necessaries of life, but to all manufactured articles which are bartered in commerce at home and abroad, and the production, manufacture and sale of which supply the income from which labor draws its earnings and employers their profits.

This can only be accomplished by employers and wage earners working together to that end, each casting aside all striving for temporary advantage, and pulling together in double harness for the general good of all the people of the United States and the emancipation of the world from the economic troubles which now beset the peoples of all lands. The eight-hour day for toilers is, generally speaking, an accomplished fact.

It is labor's duty and it should be its pleasure to produce as much in eight hours as it formerly produced in ten, and even more. To that end every man and woman that works for wages should bend every effort to letting the close of each day's work see that he or she has individually added more and still more of marketable commodities to the wealth of the world than he or she produced the day before.

There should be no letting down. There must be intensified production. That means that we will all have to work a little harder than we are now working. Our material reward will come through decreasing the cost of living, thus automatically increasing our wages. Our spiritual reward will come from the fact that every additional motion we make with our tools adds by so much to the help we extend to the peoples of other lands who are less fortunate than we Americans.

To Save World from Ruin.

Remember what Samuel Gompers has said: "American labor fights not so much for itself as it does to bring more of light and happiness into the lives of less fortunate people everywhere."

As American organized labor did not spare itself in the gigantic task of producing the manufactured commodities which contributed to relieve the world of a military peril, so it should now resolve not to spare itself in relieving the world from the menace of economic ruin.

Second—As every strike which stops a factory wheel from turning or otherwise interrupts the processes of production contributes to retard the United States from regaining its rightful supremacy, and the people from realizing the prosperity to which they are entitled, your committee is of the opinion that every effort should be made by the New York State Federation of Labor to discourage strikes except in cases where vital principles of trades unionism are at stake or where employers are practicing intolerable oppression.

1. Your committee earnestly recommends that the Executive Council take steps to cancel and suspend all strikes now in progress in New York State, and to use their influence to prevent the calling of future strikes except in such circumstances as, in the opinion of the Executive Council, render it imperatively necessary to use the strike weapon.

2. That the truce shall be on the basis of the status quo.

3. That the period of the truce shall be six months, or for such longer period as President Wilson may require to enable him to effect a reduction of the cost of living.

4. That notice be served on all employers that any individual, firm, or corporation which attempts to take advantage of organized labor's attitude, to serve its own interests at the expense of labor, shall be left for a reasonable time to such disciplinary measures as other employers or organizations of employers may wish to put into effect, and that if disciplinary measures be not taken by the employers themselves, then organized labor will fight such unfair and disloyal individual, firm, or corporation in a manner that will never be effaced from the culprit's memory.

5. That copies of this report be transmitted to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and to the various State Federations of Labor throughout the United States, with the recommendation that the policy outlined herein be adopted by all.

Thanks Merchants' Association.

Your committee, through the courtesy of the Merchants' Association of New York, was enabled to hold several conferences at the rooms of the Merchants' Association with representatives of the interests above mentioned. The Merchants' Association named the Committee on Industrial Relations to advise with your committee, and by unanimous action of the Executive Committee Mr. William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants 'Association of New York, was authorized to appoint and did appoint the subcommittee of the Industrial Relations Committee to continue indefinitely the conferences with your Organized Labor Committee.

For these acts of courtesy and helpfulness your committee extends its thanks to the Merchants' Association of New York, President Morgan, Secretary S. C. Mead, Alfred L. Smith, manager of the Industrial Bureau; the Committee on Industrial Relations, the Executive Committee and general officers of the association.

For the committee, respectfully submitted,

JOHN F. PIERCE, Chairman.
ISADORE EPSTEIN, Secretary.

URGES RIGID LABOR POLICY.

Secretary of Credit Men Advocates Law as Basis.

The adoption of a national labor policy that will not only recognize but compel good faith and honor in the contractual relations of employed and employe, in which personal right to hire and discharge at will and to leave and strike at will are subordinated to law, is urged in a letter sent yesterday to the members of the National Association of Credit Men by J. H. Tregoe, its Secretary and Treasurer. Continuing its campaign against high prices the association, through Mr. Tregoe, declared that the remedy to change present conditions rests in increasing production and stimulating personal savings. Regarding the labor question Mr. Tregoe said:

"The right to hire and discharge at will implies the converse, the right to leave and strike at will. Both of these rights, at least up to the present, are under the control of natural laws and when misused carry a moral injury. The strike in its final analysis is too frequently the application of an autocratic power, with brutality that offends community life. It always carries its penalties to the community at large, although the latter holds a superior position in public and private enterprises. It places burdens on the innocent and non-offending.

"We cannot permit, in this nation of ours, with its ideals and traditions, the domination of personal rights over public welfare and happenings, and therefore we must have a labor policy. Let us quit strong-arm methods, the autocratic procedure, the destruction of property, the breaking of contracts, the violation of good faith, the ignoring of public interests and get down to the basis where men can and must live right in their relations, industrial and social, with one another."

ENGINEERS ASK INCREASE.

Association Recommends $500 More for Technical Employes of City.

The New York Chapter of the American Association of Engineers at 1,133 Broadway has approved a report from its Public Service Committee, recommending an increase of $500 annually in the pay of technical engineers employed in the various city departments and the Public Service Commissions and the Transit Construction Commissions, which include engineers for subway and traction railways.

The finding of the Engineers' Committee have been sent to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for consideration. In a letter to Frank L. Dowling, President of the Aldermen; Kay B. Knudson, Secretary of the Association of Engineers, said in part:

"To enable technical employes to meet present living expenses and to permit them to maintain the position in the community which their education and training entitles them to it is necessary that some tentative basis for increase be immediately decided upon.

"If the city cannot offer to highly skilled and specially trained men for service faithfully rendered a compensation which is at least approximately commensurate with the degree of responsibilty required of the men and with the expense and effort incurred by them to train themselves in their avocation the city cannot hope to retain in these positions men of ability.

"I am sure you will agree that such a policy would prove to be false economy on the part of the city, and for that reason I think you will appreciate the importance of effecting at this time an increase in the salaries of these technical employes, even on the basis of a tentative schedule. Such a step will afford immediate relief from an unjust and an unbearable condition, which the taxpayers of the city would not wish to continue if they were fully cognizant of its seriousness."

It was announced that the Engineering Committee will continue their studies of the salary schedules, with the view of making definite recommendations for each particular grade affected.

MAIL MEN SEEK MORE PAY.

President of Letter Carriers' Association Urges 35 Per Cent. Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Postmaster General Burleson's labor policy was condemned in a report submitted by President Edward J. Gaynor of the National Letter Carriers at the opening session of that organization's convention here today. An immediate and substantial increase in pay for the carriers also was demanded. Mr. Gaynor's report in part follows:

"Prior to two years ago the attitude of the Postmaster General toward postal associations was such as to justify apprehension. Alive to the need of the well defined official relations, the convention at Dallas two years ago therefore instructed the incoming board of officers to endeavor to establish means by which a properly accredited representative of this association could present the views of the membership on proposed legislation to the department.

"Developments following the Dallas convention served to emphasize the hostility toward postal associations entertained by Mr. Burleson. On Oct. 3, 1917, I addressed a respectful application to the Postmaster General requesting a leave of absence to care for important duties as President of the National Association of Letter Carriers. This application was denied.

"The convention of the American Federation of Labor was to convene in Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 12, 1917, and I again asked for leave to attend this meeting as a delegate representing this association. Again was the application denied. I tendered my resignation.

"Bridging the gap of these two strenuous years, regretfully I admit that at present the relations between the Postmaster General and the association are not well defined. The labor policy of the Postmaster General is out of tune with modern methods. More intimate should be the relations between employer and employe."

In his demand for better pay for letter carriers Mr. Gaynor urged an immediate advance of 35 per cent., this to be increased to 60 per cent. over the present rate when the regular session of Congress convenes.

It was pointed out that since 1907 the mail carriers had received an increase of only 25 per cent., despite the fact that the increase in the cost of living had advanced 82 per cent.

think that other amendments will be adopted, including that offered by Mr. Johnson to equalize the vote of the United States and Great Britain. When it comes to reservations, it may be put down that drastic ones will be adopted by a substantial majority. No half-way reservations will be tolerated."

Unless reservations along the line framed by Elihu Root were adopted, Mr. New said, the treaty would surely be rejected.

"Will it be defeated if the Shantung amendment is not adopted?" was asked.

"I don't know," replied Mr. New. "Nearly one-third of the Senate will vote to reject it if the Shantung amendment is not carried; perhaps more than that number will vote that way. It is too early to attempt a guess now."

The Foreign Relations Committee will take up the treaty again tomorrow and begin consideration of reservations. While some of the members believe the committee can complete this work in one day, others think it will be the end of the week before the treaty can be made ready for the Senate.

Senator Lodge made public today correspondence between himself and President Wilson as to data that the Foreign Relations Committee asked Mr. Wilson to submit. In a letter to Mr. Lodge, dated Aug. 28, the President wrote, in response to the committee's request, that he was sending it the treaty with Poland. As to a request for a copy of the agreement entered into between the United States, Great Britain, Belgium, and France, on the one hand, and Germany on the other, relating to Rhine boundaries, the President intimated that to make these public at this time would cause embarrassment. The President also wrote that he could not, with propriety, submit the treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria, because they were still under consideration in Paris.

Mr. Wilson's letter was as follows:

Aug. 28, 1919.

My dear Mr. Chairman:

Allow me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Aug. 23 and to say that I shall take pleasure in laying before the Senate the treaty with Poland, signed at Versailles on the 28th of June; and the agreement between the United States, Belgium, the British Empire and France, of the one part, and Germany of the other part, with regard to the military occupation of the territories of the Rhine, also signed at Versailles on the 28th of June.

The declaration of the 16th of June to which you refer was a mere declaration of policy and does not become in any way pertinent until the treaty is ratified. My impression is that a certain degree of embarrassment would be caused, not to the United States, but to the countries with which we must necessarily co-operate in many particulars in the execution of the treaty, if it were communicated now. It will, of course, be made public in due time.

With regard to the treaties with Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, it would be out of the question for me to submit them in their present form, even to the Committee on Foreign Relations. They are in process of negotiation, and subject to change and reconsideration until completed and signed. I am sure that the Committee on Foreign Relations will appreciate the undesirability of creating the precedent which would be created by submitting treaties in their draft form. It would tend to take the function of negotiating treaties out of the hands of the Executive, where it is expressly vested by the Constitution.

Very sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

In his reply to the President's letter, written today, Mr. Lodge called attention to the fact that the agreement between the United States, Great Britain, France, and Belgium on one side, and Germany on the other, had already been published in the British White Book, and the committee had thought it would be entitled to it. Mr. Lodge's letter was as follows:

Sept. 1, 1919.

My dear Mr. President:

I am indebted to you for your letter of Aug. 28, which reached me last evening. I also have to thank you for sending to the Senate the treaty with Poland, signed at Versailles on the 28th of June, and the agreement between the United States, Belgium, and the British Empire, of one part, and Germany, of the other part, with regard to the military occupation of the territory of the Rhine, also signed at Versailles on the 28th of June. The declaration of the 16th of June was printed some time ago in the Record, from the English "White Book," the declaration having been submitted to the House of Commons on the 4th of July, I believe. The committee asked for it merely because they thought it better that it should be officially before them.

As to the request of the committee for drafts for information regarding the treaties with Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, the committee, of course, were aware that negotiations are wholly in the hands of the Executive, and there was no thought of trespassing upon your jurisdiction. You noticed, of course, that the request asked merely for such information as you could give them if "compatible with the public interest."

The four treaties still to be made are so closely connected with the German treaty that many Senators thought that all the peace treaties should be considered together, and the request was made merely for such information as you felt could be properly given in regard to those treaties not yet submitted, in the hope that it might hasten action upon the treaty of peace with Germany. If it is not compatible with the public inteerst to give any information in regard to them, that is a matter on which, of course, your decision is final.

I have the honor to be, very truly yours,
H. C. LODGE, Chairman.

Senator Hitchcock will speak in the Senate today on the treaty, urging its ratification without amendments. While it is understood that Mr. Hitchcock would not oppose interpretative reservations, he will argue in his speech that the treaty amply protects the interests of the United States as written. Later in the week Senator Kenyon, one of the "mild" reservationists, will urge changes that he considers necessary.

There's something about them you'll like.

POLICE DEPARTMENT
Detective Bureau

It is our pleasure to pay this well deserved compliment to the skill recently shown by the detectives connected with the New York City Police Department.

In this city, a few weeks ago, $28,000 in Liberty Bonds were stolen by highwaymen while the bonds were in transit from one banking house to another. This Company paid the loss. Two weeks ago, one of the employes of a financial institution in New York City was sent to deliver $45,000 in Liberty Bonds and failed to make delivery, disappearing with the bonds. This Company paid the loss.

These two cases were reported to the Detective Department with the result that, in a comparatively short time, $27,400 of the bonds were recovered in the first instance, and $41,000 of the bonds were recovered in the second instance. These cases are in addition to the $178,000 Liberty Bond loss recently sustained where recovery has not yet been made.

Only those who are familiar with the ways of men of weak character can appreciate how difficult it is to apprehend them after they yield to temptation. It seems as if they were transformed into beings possessed with a marvelous cunning which often enables them to elude pursuit for a long time, but they are finally apprehended.

We are especially pleased to pay this tribute to our City Detectives!

Government Makes Public Correspondence Telling How Employes Conduct Big Arsenal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Advocates of the Plumb plan for the nationalization of the railroads of the country asserted today that the action of the War Department in turning over actual control of production activities in the Rock Island arsenal harness shops, including appointment of foremen and the determination of prices paid workmen, to committees of employes approximates application by the Government itself of the principles of the Plumb plan.

What was done at the Rock Island arsenal, as announced by the War Department yesterday, was described in the correspondence and statements made public by the War Department as being "the first recognition of the principle of democracy as applied to the manufacturing industry." The documents made public by the War Department comprised a letter written by Secretary Baker on Aug. 23 to R. L. Cornick and James L. McCort, employes' representatives in the ordnance department in Washington, expressing Secretary Baker's "pleasure in the results which have been attained," and further stating Mr. Baker's "hope that the policy which has already been productive of so much good will be successfully pressed."

The celerity with which the Plumb plan leaders have seized upon the announcement which was given out officially at the War Department yesterday cannot be otherwise interpreted than as an effort to make it appear that the Government itself has been won over to the Plumb plan in what has been done at Rock Island. Coincidental with the interpretation by Mr. Plumb of the Rock Island experiment as being nothing more nor less than an application of the principles of the Plumb plan for nationalization of industry, the statement issued here tonight by Manager Keating of the Plumb Plan League takes the same view of the Rock Island experiment. The statement in part follows:

"The report given out by the War Department of the results of the Government's experiment in industrial democracy at Rock Island Arsenal is a happy and timely illustration of the truth of one of the basic principles for which we are contending. We maintain that the participation of labor in the control of management will serve greatly to increase efficiency. The War Department report gives conclusive proof of this by showing the extraordinary results that have been obtained at Rock Island under workingmen's control.

Says Plumb Plan Is Americanism.

"In advocating the Plumb plan we are dealing with a great natural monopoly, which, under private ownership, has been managed with incredible inefficiency in an attempt to maintain a fictitious competition. If in the field of legitimate competition, as in the case with the Rock Island Arsenal, the Government has demonstrated the success of industrial democracy, it is fair to assume that the same principle will be even more successful when applied to a monopolistic enterprise like the railroads.

"This principle of industrial democracy is nothing but old-fashioned, bedrock Americanism. If a man is worthy of a vote in the political field he is worthy of a voice in the field of economic life.

"We have to return to fundamental Americanism and rescue the human factor of co-operation in industry. Of course, men will work harder and better when they share in the responsibilities of the industry and in the rewards of their own labors. There is no fear that American workingmen are not capable of participating in the management of industry.

"After we have a few more experiments like that reported by the War Department people will begin to realize that they have been thinking down a blind alley in these matters. Give the American workingman both authority and responsibility and let him go ahead.

"Of course, the application of industrial democracy has to be determined by the conditions which surround the individual industry. No advance ever takes place in a day."

The material given cut by the War Department consisted of a letter written to Secretary Baker by the arsenal employes' representatives in the arsenal orders branch of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, a memorandum submitted by the employes' representatives, with their letter to the Secretary and Secretary Baker's reply in indorsement of what had been done. The development of the arsenal orders branch in the office of the Chief of Ordnance, and of representation of employes of the manufacturing arsenals in an advisory capacity in connection therewith is not explained in the correspondence given out by the War Department. However, the department authorized this brief statement regarding it:

War Department's Statement.

"With the signing of the armistice, the arsenal employes faced a situation raising grave doubts as to the security of their employment since the products which they had been engaged in turning out were, of course, for use in the war with Germany. Having well-functioning organizations in existence in several of the War Department arsenals, and with members of these orzanizations conversant to an unusual degree with production problems, the employes designated representatives to take up the subject with the Secretary of war and Chief of Ordnance. The outcome was the approval of the suggestion that an arsenal orders branch be established in the office of the Chief of Ordnance to secure orders from other departments of the Government for such things as the Government needed and the arsenals were equipped to manufacture. The experience of the War Department in securing the employes' assistance and devotion by according them a large measure of control over the conditions of production and labor in the arsenals naturally led to creating an advisory committee of employes' representatives in the arsenal orders branch. Employes' representatives actively assist in the work of this branch, in figuring costs when bidding for work, &c."

The letter which Messrs. Cornick and McCort, the employes' representatives, wrote to Secretary Baker, said:

"Primarily the employes feel that yourself and General C. C. Williams are interesting yourselves in them in a vital significant way, that is, concerning the stability of their positions, rather than in paternalistic ways such as have been tried with questionable results in so many instances during the past. They realize that their status is now in the process of change. They no longer feel like mere employes, simply bent on holding down a job quite apart from their conception of life, for no other purpose than the earning of wages, the only crude means available to them for securing the necessaries and perhaps a little of the better things of life. They are beginning to see that they are on their way towards becoming partners in a large enterprise.

"It has been very gratifying to us to note, many times, that the necessity on the part of the men for economical production is well understood. For instance, at Watervliet Arsenal recently during the noon day rallies which were being held, the appeals of the speakers, who were from the workers, were for efficiency. At Watertown some of the men stated that, in the interest of the workers that their abilities were limited when it came to functioning on employes' committees, handling grievances, &c., for, they said that that was not their fort. They did not feel able to confront the management in sufficiently forceful ways while prosecuting cases of such a nature.

"But, they said, they clearly saw their opportunity in the chances which now existed for functioning on production committees. Their abilities, they felt, lay in that direction and they most enthusiastically welcome the circumstances which promise them these new opportunities for self expression. At Frankford and Rock Island instances have occurred where the employes have 'gotten after' individuals who have not been doing as well as they might.

Spirit of Co-operation.

A striking instance of the splendid spirit of co-operation which automatically develops when the employes are given an incentive and a chance for self-expression recently occurred at the Frankford Arsenal. The Post Office Department was in the market for a large order of dials for registered mail locks, for which they had previously paid $45 per thousand. Frankford Arsenal submitted an estimate of $38 per thousand, so when the committee on estimates informed the employes they had figured very closely in order that this work could be secured for them the employes are enabled to participate their appreciation of this new condition and volunteered to work during lunch hour if necessary to live up to their committee's judgment as to direct labor costs.

"There is attached hereto a statement concerning the way things work when the employes are enable to participate in the management of the shop. This is but a mere indication of what really can be made possible in a large way throughout all the arsenals. In short, a spontaneous efficiency is in the making, which, we sincerely feel, will before long produce records of production that will make the most ardent Taylor system advocate envious. And this will all be because the employes want to produce, not because they are obliged to do so.

"We find as a whole that the attitude of the local management is conducive toward the development of this new spirit. Where misunderstandings have existed or still exist we hope to help straighten them out by education and the demonstration of our unalloyed sincerity and loyalty to all the interests at stake."

"We are and will for a long time suffer from the heritages of the conditions we are now on the way towards eliminating. It is our conviction, more now than ever before, that before long the opportunity will be ripe for us to secure outside talent in the form of competent management engineers and production experts to advise us as workers what we can do to help improve things, what the management can do and, finally, what we and the management can do jointly.

"We are not unaware of our own limitations in this respect, and, when the time comes, we hope sincerely that you and the Chief of Ordnance will gladly extend to us the opportunity to have our technical experts co-operate with the arsenal management and their experts for the purpose of doing everything possible to warrant the fullest utilization of the arsenals as centres of production."

To this letter Secretary Baker replied:

"The Government needs not only the hands of its employes but their heads and their hearts, and the spirit of co-operation and loyal enthusiasm illustrated by the instances which you cite to me are not only evidence of a present sound situation but promising of constant future improvement."

PLUMB FOR WILSON'S PLAN.

Asserts President Will Have Co-operation in Wage Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Glenn E. Plumb, originator of the Plumb plan for partial control of the railroads by labor, explained his plan to Philadelphia railroad workers today. He was the speaker at the Labor Day exercises in Fairmount Park, which followed a parade.

High railroad rates, Mr. Plumb asserted, are due to the fact that they are based upon the liabilities of the roads and that these have been pyramided for generations, so that the public today is paying for virtually the entire cost of the railroads since their construction.

"The railroad experience of the last eighty years," he said, "shows that no road ever paid off an indebtedness except by creating a new indebtedness of the same or greater par value.

"Today we are still paying for the use of locomotives long since sent to the scrap heap. We are paying returns on the shades of ties that have been ashes for generations. Rails that have been replaced half a dozen times still demand from us the earnings paid for by our ancestors. The 'property investment account' of the railroad is nothing but a whited sepulchre, full of corruption and dead men's bones."

Mr. Plumb welcomed the plan of President Wilson for a conference between capital and labor.

"If permitted," he said, "the men supporting labor's plan for democratic control of the railroad industry will gladly join with the President in seeking the solution of the tremendous problems we face."

SHAH ON WAY TO ITALY.

Boards British Warship at Constantinople—Not Coming Here.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31, (Associated Press.)—Ahmed Mirza, the Shah of Persia, is on his way to Italy aboard a British vessel. From Italy he will proceed to Switzerland. It is considered unlikely that he will visit the United States during his tour.

During his stay in Turkey the Shah visited his father, who abdicated in 1909, at the latter's mansion on the Island of Prinkipo.

While there he received Gabriel B. Ravndal, the American Commissioner, to whom the Shah expressed appreciation of American relief work in Persia.

The Shah, who is 21 years of age, is a man of medium height, but extremely corpulent. Nevertheless he is of an active disposition and has a pleasant personality. He clothes himself in European style.

OWEN QUOTES LODGE AS FAVORING LEAGUE

Oklahoma Senator Sees Partisanship as Basis of Attack on Peace Treaty.

CALLS OPPOSITION FACTIOUS

League of Nations Association Hears Work of Paris Conference Defended

STONY BROOK, L. I., Sept. 1.—Speaking under the auspices of the League of Nations Association at the Stony Brook Auditorium tonight Robert L. Owen, United States Senator for Oklahoma, criticised Senator Lodge for his "round robin," his "factious opposition, destructive criticism," and for "lining up a party opposition against the righteous judgment of mankind."

The other speakers included Martin Vogel, Assistant United States Treasurer; Alice Carpenter, Federal Judge Martin T. Manton, and Mrs. C. Temple Emmet. A large number of people from the Long Island Summer colonies attended the meeting. Music was provided by Andrea Sarto, baritone; Harriet Youngs, soprano, and Amelia Gray-Clarke at the piano.

Senator Owen praised ex-President Taft and other Republicans who favor the League of Nations. He quoted remarks of the late Theodore Roosevelt approving the principle of international arbitration, and declared that President Wilson, with Lloyd George, Orlando, and Clemenceau were trying to bring about the policies advocated by Colonel Roosevelt.

"The Senator from Massachusetts at Union College in June, 1915," said Senator Owen, "advised the world that nations must unite as men unite to preserve peace and order. Nations must be able to say to any single country, 'You must not go to war.'

"I hope I may be permitted to say I think the Senator from Massachusetts showed a finer Americanism at Union College than he does today leading a narrow partisan fight on the League of Nations in the greatest crisis the world has ever known.

"For over a hundred years there has been a maxim honored by the Senate in dealing with all foreign treaties, which I first heard from the lips of the Senator from Massachusetts. It is: 'Party lines cease at tidewater.'

"Yet, with his round robin, with his factious opposition, with his destructive criticism, with lining up a party opposition against the righteous judgment of mankind, the honorable Senator has forgotten this wise maxim in partisan excitement.

"There is another objection to the amendments and reservations in the resolution of ratification, and that is it would discredit the American representatives at the Peace Conference and the President of the United States. This, however, may be, although I doubt it, a partisan advantage.

"But, fellow Americans, no partisan advantage should be sought when thereby in a great world crisis the peace and happiness of mankind is put in jeopardy, Bolshevism encouraged, and social unrest at home and abroad promoted.

"The League of Nations will prevent future war under penalty of a world-wide boycott, blockade and exclusion of its citizens from any intercourse with the citizens of any other nation. No nation will dare, after the League is established, to invade the territorial integrity and existing political independence of any other nation. The League provides every safeguard to adjust international disputes by conciliation and world opinion and by arbitration.

"The League not only proposes peace; it provides the most abundant means and mechanism by which to accomplish it. It has been drawn by the ablest men in the world. The leaders of all nations are content with it, as the beginning of a great and glorious new era."

ULSTER'S FRIENDS ASK LODGE FOR A HEARING

Loyal Orange Institution Appeals for Chance to Present Its Side of the Irish Question.

A hearing of representatives of Ulster on the Irish question was demanded in a telegram made public yesterday by the Loyal Orange Institution to the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate. The letter was as follows:

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 31, 1919.

Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.:

The Foreign Relations Committee having now heard the Friends of Irish Freedom, more appropriately known to the discerning as the Foes of Friendly Co-operation Between the English-Speaking Peoples, we protest against further action by the American Senate against the millions of Britons who were our faithful allies at the behest of these faithless hyphenates who wear livery of American citizenship to serve Irish Roman Catholic purposes.

The impossibility of reconciling the program of nonparticipation in European affairs that your committee's majority professes to stand for, with recognition and furtherance of this Irish un-American propaganda of interference in the internal affairs of a friendly nation impelled us to withhold protest until the actual consummation of the plot hatched by the foes of England.

We remain convinced that the American Senate has no business meddling with the unquestioned problems of the British Parliament, and that the countenance your majority has given these propagandists who have been denounced by the British Premier constitute an inexcusable affront to a friend and ally. But these foes of England and Protestant America have been heard. The unescapable religious issue has been raised. We, therefore, respectfully ask a hearing for the Friends of Ulster's Self-Determination, and associated organizations who are prepared to prove that Messrs. Cohalan, Dunne, Walsh, Ryan, and the Irish Roman Catholic organization for whom they appear do not represent American sentiment, nor the will of that Irish people who sent their sons with ours to win the war.

Having heard the foes of England, it is imperative that you hear her friends. We seek agreement upon an early date for the voice of the majority of those who upheld both flags in the war to be heard.

GEO. T. LEMMON,
National Secretary, Friends of Ulster's Self-Determination, Averill Park, N. Y.

CARRANZA RETORTS, CHARGING WRONGS

diers and the invasion of Mexico at El Mulato Village last year, the shooting of Mexican peasants by American soldiers in the municipality of Villa Acuna, Coahuila, and the unjust persecution of Mexicans in Bartlesville, Okla., as testifed to in a memorial sent to the Mexican Ambassador at Washington.

The message refers to the invasion of Vado De Piedras, Chihuahua, last April by American soldiers seeking bandits, the beating and wounding of a Mexican, Jesus Aguirre, working in Rockport, Texas, and material discrimination against Mexicans in Rockport; the crossing of the border by American troops following the Villa attack on Juarez, the assaulting and robbing of a Mexican paymaster, M. Palma, south of Marfa, Texas, last July; the killing of a Mexican, Anacleto Salazar, by a policeman in Eureka, Utah; the beating and robbing of a Mexican, Francisco Rosales, during race troubles in the State of Washington; the shooting of Mexicans by an American patrol on the belief that they were deserters, and the injury by mobs in Chicago last August of two Mexicans, Jose Blanco and Elisando Gonzales.

Mention was made of the fact that the Mexican Embassy in Washington had made representations to the United States Government, but it was declared that "'not in all cases have assurances been given that the offenders will be punished." Reference was also made to numerous crossings of the border by American airplanes.

Refers to Punitive Expeditions.

In connection with the recent punitive expedition to find bandits who were holding two American aviators for ransom, the messsage said.

"This invasion constitutes a violation of our rights. Serious and without motive was this violation that has deeply wounded Mexican patriotic feeling."

The message referred further to a request by the United States for the punishment of bandits and cites numerous cases showing that the Government has prosecuted guilty parties and has met with a great measure of success in dealing with bandits.

Speaking of charges of alleged unneutrality by Mexico during the war, the message said:

"The Republic of Mexico observed the conduct of absolute neutrality, but certain Governments have expressed the opinion that the Government of Mexico had not been strictly neutral, although they were not able to affirm or specify any act or mission on the part of the Government of Mexico which would implicate the least violation of neutrality, judging in accordance with the most exigent principles of international law, treaties now in force, and universally established practices. On the other hand, the rights of Mexico as a neutral were not always respected as they were entitled to be, because various units of the American Navy remained in certain exceptional cases more than twenty-four hours in our waters, while there were kept at anchor at Tampico vessels of war under the pretext of protecting their fellow nationals."

Referring to the fact that Mexico had not been asked to join the League of Nations, the President wrote:

"The Mexican Government has done nothing, nor has it made any request whatever, to be admitted into the international society because the bases that sustain it do not establish either with respect to organization or with respect to performance of its functions, perfect equality for all nations and for all races, and the Government of Mexico has proclaimed as the leading principle of its international policy that all States ought to have the same rights and the same obligations, so that the individual within a State should have the power to invoke privileges and protection by reason of being a foreigner or for any other cause."

Regarding the Monroe Doctrine, the message said Mexico did not recognize and will not recognize it, inasmuch as it established, without the volition of all the peoples of America, a criterion and situation in which they were not consulted, and because that doctrine smacked of sovereignty over Mexico and constituted forcible guardianship over all the nations on the American Hemisphere.

"The Mexican Government has in due time established a method of indemnifying losses occasioned during the revolution," said the message, "and has given an example thereby of a more liberal spirit than any other Government in an analogous situation."

Bandits Slay Mine Operator.

EL PASO, Sept. 1.—Adam Shaeffer, believed to be an American citizen, was killed by Mexican bandits at his mine in the State of Zacatecas on Aug. 28, according to a telegram received by the American Smelting and Refining Company here today. Shaeffer was an independent mining operator and was 55 years old.

Mining men here disagree as to Shaeffer's citizenship. American Smelting and Refining Company officials said he was an American citizen of British birth, while other American mining men asserted he still retained his rights as a British subject. Telegrams have been sent to the American Consuls in Torreon and Aguascalientes by the American Consul in Juarez and by the smelting company officials to ascertain the facts.

Shaeffer's home had been in Mexico for more than ten years, and his mother and sister live in Pittsburgh, Penn., according to records on file here with a local mining brokerage firm. This firm confirmed the statement of the American Smelting and Refining Company's official that Shaeffer was an American citizen.

News of Shaeffer's killing was received at the American Smelting and Refining Company's Mexican headquarters from its officers in Aguascalientes, Mexico. Shaeffer was general manager of the Cinco Estrellas mine, an independent property near Pinos, Zacatecas.

A band of Mexican bandits, operating independently, was reported near Salinas, Zacatecas, last week, and it is believed here that it was this band that murdered Shaeffer. Carranza troops from San Luis Potosi were sent to Salinas, Zacatecas, last week to pursue the bandits operating in that vicinity, according to letters received here from Aguascalientes today.

CANADA TAKES UP TREATY.

Governor General Summons Special Session of Parliament.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Sept. 1.—Ratification of the Peace Treaty by Canada was set forth as the chief object of the Special Session of Parliament which was opened this afternoon by the Governor General, the Duke of Devonshire.

The urgency of proceeding immediately to the consideration of the treaty signed at Versailles on June 28, 1919, the Governor General said, compelled him to summon the legislators to renewed labors, which, he hoped, would not be of long duration. He had been advised, he declared, that the document should not be ratified on behalf of Canada without the approval of Parliament. In addition, Parliament would be asked, he explained, to make such financial provision as may be required "in connection with the Peace Treaty and for other purposes."

Referring to the Prince of Wales, the Governor General said: "In this, his first visit to our Dominion, His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, at once renews happy associations with his comrades of the Canadian Army, and at the same time undertakes the important duty of making himself acquainted at first hand with the resources and developments of our country, and with the ideals and aspirations of our people."

DENIED PIER PASSES, WELCOMERS CHAFE

Throng Is Penned In for Hours Awaiting the Arrival of French Liner Rochambeau.

TWO WOMEN FAINT IN JAM

Protest Is to be Made to Washington Against the Collector of the Port's Order.

The French liner Rochambeau arrived yesterday forenoon from Havre with 432 cabin passengers, among whom were several Americans that had been absent for more than two years while serving in the war and a number of women who had been serving with the American and French Armies in France and Flanders. There were also five officers and 240 Czechoslovaks, many of them from this city, who enlisted in the Winter of 1917-1918 and served with the Czechoslovak Army at the front.

As the liner steamed up the North River to her pier at the foot of West Fourteenth Street, the passengers crowded the rail on the starboard side of the upper decks, eager to get the first glimpse of their relatives and friends.

To their great disappointment the pier head, instead of being thronged with welcomers waving handkerchiefs and American flags, was empty except for a few French Line officials and city officials who had come to greet Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures.

No One Allowed on Pier.

By order of the Collector of the Port no one was allowed down the pier to meet the passengers, and the big steamship was made fast without a sign from the pier. Those awaiting friends were penned up in a small inclosure at the head of the pier where there was little ventilation. They had stood there for hours waiting to catch a glimpse of their returning loved ones, and two of the women fainted because of the heat and the intense crowd.

The steamship companies are in favor of permitting relatives to meet and see passengers away from the piers and have protested against the order of the Collector of the Port stopping the issuance of the passes. Customs officials in charge on the piers are in favor of the people going on the piers, as the time of their staff is taken up by carrying messages from persons waiting at the head of the pier to those who have arrived.

The work of examining the baggage is also delayed, due to passengers dashing hither and thither among the crowd searching for their kin.

The pass system was instituted by William Loeb, Jr., and was considered a success in the days when a thousand passengers arrived in New York to every hundred arriving now. Persons returning from abroad who have sent messages by cable or by wireless to announce their coming cannot understand what has happened when they see no one on the pier to meet them.

One Woman in Tears.

One woman on the French Line pier yesterday had tears of disappointment in her eyes. "I do not care for myself so much," she said, "but it is the little ones with me who have been looking forward to seeing their father return on the big ship."

Arthur Henderson, general passenger agent of the French Line, said that the line had done all that it could do to get the order changed so that relatives of passengers could get passes and go down on the piers. "It does not matter to the steamship companies," he added, "but it does give a lot of enjoyment to the people who are leaving or returning to their country as well as to those who remain at home. The steamship offices are besieged all day long by relatives of passengers wanting to know why they have been refused passes at the Custom House."

It is understood that a protest is to be made to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington.

Commissioner Whalen, who went abroad in July with his wife for a vacation and to study the docks and port facilities abroad, said on his return yesterday that New York harbor was better than any in Europe, so far as he had seen.

"The piers in this port are superior because the liners go alongside them and this does away with the necessity of having a big landing stage like they have at European ports, where the vessels have to go before they go to their inclosed docks, which are tidal. The warehouses in London are better than they are here, because the freight trains run right alongside them and the goods can be handled quicker."

Commissioner Whalen said he would make a full report of his trip to Mayor Hylan later. Very few of the wartime passport regulations had been lifted, he added, and he was almost expelled from Belgium because his passport was not correctly stamped.

KILLED ON EVE OF TRIAL.

Charles Burgo, Accused of Robbery Is Slain in Cherry Street.

Charles Burgo, 25 years old, of 643 Water Street, who, according to the police, was to have been brought up for trial this morning in General Sessions on a robbery charge, was murdered at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Cherry Street. The assailant fired four shots at Burgo, all of which took effect, killing him instantly.

The murderer escaped in the confusion which followed the shooting, but the police, in their search, found an Italian in a room at 150 Cherry Street who replied evasively to their questions. He was arrested and held as a witness. The prisoner said he was Salvatore Lavato, 42 years old, of 150 Cherry Street. The murdered man was to have answered the charge of robbing Salvatore Chirmont at 209 East Fortieth Street on Aug. 4.

KNOXVILLE QUIET AFTER RACE RIOTS

3D BATTALION SENT HOME

Two Races Hold Separate Labor Day Programs—Soldiers Still Patrol the Town.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—Under heavy patrol by National Guardsmen and special officers, following the race riots of Saturday night and Sunday morning, in which two men were killed and sixteen sent to hospitals with wounds, Knoxville today passed a quiet holiday. Two of those wounded in the main battle Saturday midnight are not expected to live.

Sheriff Cate tonight caused the arrest of ten white men on charges of assisting prisoners to escape when the jail was attacked Saturday night. Other arrests on this charge and that of rioting are promised.

The situation has improved to such extent that Adjt. Gen. E. B. Sweeney tonight sent home the 3d Battalion of the 4th Tennessee Infantry, from the western counties of the State, and expects to release all other outside companies tomorrow, leaving here the machine-gun company and one rifle company, which have headquarters in Knoxville.

Labor Day celebrations were held separately today by the whites and negroes, as originally planned, the only change being that a scheduled parade was abandoned. No disorder of any kind was reported today.

Troops still were patrolling the business district and the negro sections, with machine guns in position in the heart of the black belt, but search of citizens for weapons has been discontinued, and the barred zones in the negro districts have been abandoned.

Two hundred and fifty citizens, sworn in as special deputies or policemen, are assisting the military authorities. Squads are patrolling all suburban sections in automobiles, with reserves held at the court house to answer calls from nervous citizens. The special officers are under command of Colonel James A. Gleason, late of the 114th Field Artillery, and other demobilized army officers are acting as lieutenants.

A special session of the Grand Jury has been called for Wednesday to investigate the riots and to consider the case of Maurice F. Mayes, the negro accused of murdering Mrs. Bertie Lindsey early Saturday, which crime inspired the storming of the county jail Saturday night and the subsequent race riots. Mayes is in jail at Chattanooga, whither he was taken Saturday noon, before the trouble started here.

In addition to the casualty list, the rioting, it was estimated today, caused property loss of more than $50,000 in damage to the jail and store buildings and loot obtained by the mob. Railroad men report that many negroes have left the city.

PERSHING SETS SAIL SPEEDED BY FOCH

one regret—that the people who have formerly known us only as guests and visitors are without knowledge of the home life of the Americans.

"None of us will ever forget that period of the war when the American forces were assembled and trained for battle under the protection of the armies of France and England, holding the enemy at bay. Nor will we ever forget that moment of the struggle when we found our opportunity to join with the world in the second battle of the Marne.

"All this is now past, but it is upon the past that the foundation of our future relations must rest. In saying goodbye to France—which we have come to love so well—I feel assured that as time goes on we shall regard those days of comradeship and struggle more and more as an everlasting bond between our peoples."

PERSHING TO HEAD PARADES.

Will Stay Here Several Days Before Reporting to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—General Pershing will head the parades in New York and Washington of the 1st Division, it was formally announced today, by Major Gen. James W. McAndrew, former Chief of Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, who has been detailed by Secretary Baker and General March, Chief of Staff, to arrange all military matters in connection with the welcome to be accorded the American overseas commander.

General Pershing, who sailed today from Brest on the transport Leviathan, is expected to reach New York on the morning of Sept. 8, General McAndrew said, and will stay in that city three or four days before coming to Washington to report formally to the War Department. After the 1st Division parade here, it is expected that General Pershing will visit his old home in Missouri, after which he will return to Washington to present his views as to the permanent military policy of the nation before Congressional committees.

General McAndrew, who now is head of the General Staff College here, will go to New York within a few days to complete the military arrangements for the welcome there.

To Plan Pershing Welcome Today.

At a meeting this morning between officers of the advance party of the 1st Division and members of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops plans are to be made for the seating and general handling of the crowds which are expected to view the parade of that division and the city's simultaneous welcome to General Pershing.

WOMAN THROWN FROM AUTO

Mrs. Herman Found Slightly Injured by Police Near Haven Ave.

Lieutenant Sauter, on duty at the West 177th Street Police Station shortly after midnight last night, heard the screams of a woman. He hurried out two policemen and they ran down to Haven avenue, which borders the river near the station house.

They found a young woman lying on the ground, with a child standing over her. The woman, who seemed to be injured, was taken to the station house, where she said she was Mrs. Margaret Herman, 27 years old, of 814 Tenth Avenue, and that the child was her daughter, Florence, 8 years old. Mrs. Herman said that she had been thrown out of a touring car, which stopped soon afterward and let the child out. She admitted knowing the names of her companions in the car, but refused to disclose them to the police. She was suffering from slight bruises.

May Sinclair's New Novel
MARY OLIVIER: A LIFE

A woman's life, her thoughts, sensations and emotions, told without artificial narrative or analysis, without autobiography—this is the theme of Miss Sinclair's new novel. The main interest of this remarkable story is Mary Olivier's search for reality, her passage from the bondage of infancy, through the disenchantments of maturity, to the freedom, peace, and happiness of middle age.

FOOD GOUGING OVER, DECLARES WILLIAMS

Administrator Asserts Dealers Are Trying to Give Public Square Treatment.

PRICES TO COME DOWN SOON

Hopes for Early Regulation in Shoes and Clothing—Army Sales Reopen Today.

Profiteering on foodstuffs on a large scale is at an end in this city, according to the Federal Food Administrator, Arthur Williams. Mr. Williams said yesterday that a week's careful survey of the situation by himself and his aids convinced him most of the dealers were trying to treat the public fairly.

"The fight on high prices, which was begun at the request of the Administration in Washington," he said, "has gained its first objective, I believe. The unchecked boosting of prices has stopped. So far as I have been able to ascertain, and I have investigated conditions as carefully as possible, dealers are abiding by our fair price list. In most cases, they are trying not to take any unfair advantage of the consumer. I feel certain profiteering is about at an end."

Mr. Williams continuing, said the next step in the campaign would be an effort to force prices down. This would be accomplished, he said, only after the forces in food production, from the producer through the wholesaler, selling agent, and retailer, had co-operated with the Attorney General's representatives from one end of the country to the other.

"We cannot yet say that prices are appreciably lower," he said. "Reduction will come only when all the elements in a transaction that brings the commodities from the producer to the consumer are checked up and controlled. Up to the present we have tried only to get hold of the cycle of rising costs, and to stop it rising. If we can hold prices from going higher, pretty soon, they will come down nearer to normal.

"The public should realize that although prices still are high, they are lower than when the Attorney General began his activities. I have found in most instances that the butchers are charging less than the maximum profit allowed under the fair price list.

Urges Careful Buying.

"Prices in shoes and clothing have not yet been regulated, but I have great confidence in the subcommittee of the Fair Price Committee organized under Mr. Friedsam, of B. Altman & Co. I expect that in a week or so they will have their field surveyed, and we can issue a fair price list in clothes and shoes as well as in food.

"In our campaign we must have the support of the public. The housewife must exercise common sense in her purchasing, and must not try to buy beyond her means. Where there are two articles, one inexpensive and the other expensive, the purchaser should choose according to the limitations of his pocket book. We are trying to put comfortable living within the reach of every one, but we can't accomplish this if a buyer is extravagant."

Mr. Williams said the Fair Price Committee was striving to accomplish three things: First, to eliminate the profiteer and gouger; second, to give food dealers a guide by which they can sell their products at a fair margin of profit but no more; third, to persuade purchasers to buy carefully and avoid hoarding.

Under the direction of Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, Chairman of the Fair Price Committee's subcommittee on Field Activities, the Community Councils of Defense in the city will begin a campaign today to get a line on prices of everything in the way of food sold by retailers in the city. More than 60,000 members of the councils will aid in the movement.

Following plans made at a meeting with the Federal Food Administrator last week, the investigators will distribute postal cards among housewives. Food articles will be listed on these cards then will be sent to the head- to mark the price she pays for food and the name of her dealers. The cards tehn will be sent to the headquarters of the borough council, where the prices will be checked up. Where profiteering is discovered, the information will be sent to the Federal District Attorney.

Resume Army Sales Today.

The sale of surplus army food supplies, which has been closed since Saturday, will reopen today in more than seventy schools. Five additional schools, all in Queens, will be opened today. A list of them was printed in THE TIMES Saturday.

Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley said last night that about $500,000 worth of food had been disposed of so far, and that it was expected much more would be sold this week. City authorities in charge of the distribution expect the sales to reach $100,000 today. In schools where primary elections are held, the sale will continue from 10 o'clock in the morning until 2 in the afternoon.

Mr. O'Malley said the Department of Markets was going to get more barges, if possible, to expedite the distribution of food by bringing the goods from the army bases to piers in Manhattan and the other boroughs. Preparations for the arrival of General Pershing, he said, had held up the loading of barges at Port Newark. Two barges there, he said, had only about half of their cargo on board, and work on them had virtually stopped. He expected this condition to be remedied in a few days.

At the schools today, in addition to the list of army food on sale last week, there will be a quantity of evaporated fruits, assorted jams, and canned asparagus. Mr. O'Malley said the prices on these articles would be from thirty to fifty per cent. less than the prevailing market quotations.

URGES TERMINAL MARKETS.

Reconstruction Commission Sees High Cost Remedy in Them.

The New York State Reconstruction Commission, in the last section of its report to Governor Alfred E. Smith on the problems of food production and distribution, which was sent to him yesterday, laid stress upon the additional cost of foodstuffs to the consumer as a result of the lack of terminal market facilities in New York. To remedy the situation the commission made five specific recommendations.

The investigators urge that the city utilize the West Washington and Gansevoort market sites in Manhattan for terminal market purposes by constructing spur track and pier connections, platforms and other facilities for the unloading of freight cars and boats; that a site be selected and construction started immediately of a modern terminal market in the Bronx; that the present Wallabout Market in Brooklyn be reconstructed; that the co-operation of producers and dealers in Richmond be secured for establishing an open public market where produce grown on the island can be sold at wholesale; and that the necessity of securing the co-operation of wholesale dealer, commission men, and jobbers, as well as retailers, in any plans for the establishment or operation of terminal market structure be not overlooked.

The report, which is signed by the commission's chairman, Abram I. Elkus, and Thomas V. Patterson, chairman of the sub-committee on food, calls attention to the distinction between a "public market" and "terminal market," the latter being not only a meeting place for seller and buyer, wholesale as well as retail, but that it is directly connected with transportation systems and provides for the storage, distribution, and display of foodstuffs, the one essential being the connection with transportation facilities.

In summing up the evidence in favor of the proposed plans for terminal markets and the arguments against them, the Reconstruction Commission is of the opinion "that while such markets are by no means a certain panacea for all the evils of the food distribution system in New York City, some adaptation of the terminal market idea should be carried out in at least three boroughs. The spending of vast sums for elaborate terminal market buildings in each borough is unjustified. The possible saving to the public is not commensurable with the burden of cost that the public will have to bear."

HOOVER ASKS TO BE HEARD.

Will Testify Today in Paris Before Congressional Subcommittee.

PARIS, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—The sub-committee of the Congressional Committee on Expenditures tomorrow, on his own request, will take the testimony of Herbert Hoover, Director General of Interallied Relief, on certain questions concerning the Food Administration.

The sub-committee had not intended to make any inquiry into the Food Administration, in the belief that it had no authority to do so, but in view of alleged inaccuracies in the evidence adduced before a Congressional committee in the United States and also before the sub-committee with regard to the food situation, Mr. Hoover requested an opportunity to correct them.

Mr. Hoover's testimony will be taken by the sub-committee as a matter of record.

Say Girl Robbed Benefactors.

CROTON, Sept. 1.—Troopers of the State Constabulary were asked yesterday to find a former prisoner of Bedford Reformatory, who is alleged to have robbed the home of D. A. Outhouse before daybreak in Jefferson Valley, a suburb of Peekskill. A young woman, who said she was Edith Moody, 18, recently paroled from the reformatory, received shelter at the Outhouse home Sunday. During the night she left the house. Investigation disclosed, according to the police, that $500 worth of articles belonging to the family were missing.

TWO MEN DETAINED IN COOPER CASE

ABANDON BLACKMAIL IDEA

Theory That Cooper Was Killed While Backing His Car on the Road.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—Friends of Robin J. Cooper, whose body was found in a creek near his home last Saturday morning, offered an additional reward today of $500 for the apprehension of the murderer or murderers. Relatives already have offered $500, and the Governor an equal amount.

Members of the police force, who refuse to abandon the theory that a bootlegger murdered Cooper, arrested J. F. Fouston and Casey Jordan early tonight and are questioning them regarding the murder. The prisoners are charged with violating the Reid amendment and the so-called "Bone Dry" laws, and they are being held without bail. Fouston also is charged with carrying a pistol.

Steve Fulger, a negro farmer, told the police today that on Thursday night about 10 o'clock—the hour Cooper is thought to have been killed—he saw a "peculiar sight" at Harding Road and Leake Avenue. Fulger was driving his team home, when he saw some one slowly back an automobile off the road. Then the party got out of the machine, walked back to the Harding Road, and jumped into another car parked by the roadside. The lights of this car were out, but they were immediately switched on, and the machine sped on into the night.

The first car was left standing near the Richland Creek Bridge with lights burning. This car, which belonged to Cooper and which was covered with blood stains, was found on Sunday morning.

The theory of the police is that Cooper was killed while backing the automobile from the road and before the machine was stopped. This idea, it is pointed out, is substantiated because the engine was choked with the car in reverse gear. With Cooper driving, it is contended that his foot was on the gear and gas throttle, and, when struck, pressure on the foot pedals was reversed and the engine stopped. The murderers are believed to have then dragged the body to the bridge, about thirty-five feet distant, and to have dumped the victim into Richland Creek.

It was reported today that two men from the Pinkerton Detective Agency were engaged by either Milton H. Smith or members of the Cooper family to investigate the murder.

The idea of blackmail as a motive is scouted by the police. Chief Barthell is still investigating on the theory that robbery was the motive, and with the deduction that whisky dealers were involved.

It has been learned that Cooper borrowed liquor to entertain a Mr. Walker, whom he met in France. It is the assumption that the $200 which he had drawn from the bank on Thursday was to pay for the liquor.

Simple but impressive ceremonies marked the funeral of Mr. Cooper at noon today at Christ Church. The services were conducted by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, assisted by the Rev. E. E. Cobbs, rector of Christ Church.

BOMBS ON COBLENZ TRACK.

COBLENZ, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—Two bombs were found Saturday on a railroad track here. They were thrown into the Rhine by the men who discovered them.

The bombs were found near the main station of Coblenz. There had been no troop movements by special train through the Coblenz station for several days. The next train due at Coblenz on the track where the bombs were found was a local from Cologne, most of the passengers on which were Germans.

SHIP COAL SCARCE ABROAD.

Vessels Held in British Ports a Month to Fill Bunkers.

Captains of steamships arriving from England report such a shortage of coal that vessels are delayed for weeks in port waiting for fuel. The Lake Tulare, which came in yesterday, left Rotterdam on July 15 and put into Cardiff, where she had to wait until Aug. 15 to get her bunkers filled. The Captain of the steamship Sagua, which also arrived, said that when he left Cardiff two weeks ago there were more than 200 vessels waiting there for coal.

The big Atlantic liners carry sufficient fuel from this side to bring them back. These include the British, French, and Italian steamships as well as American vessels. The American transports can get coal from the United States naval stores at Brest.

PLENTY OF SUGAR IN CUBA.

Minister Gonzalez Says Abundance Could Be Had by Sending Ships.

William E. Gonzalez, United States Minister to Cuba, who returned yesterday on leave, by the Ward Line steamship Monterey, said there was plenty of sugar on the island, but that labor conditions were bad.

"There is much sugar stored in warehouses," he said, "and if the United States Government would send ships to carry it away there should be no shortage in America."

Passengers on the Monterey who came from Tampico were pessimistic over the outlook in Mexico. They said no oil wells had been fired yet, but they expected them to be, and that they were bringing their families away.

FORCE COMMUNISTS TO REMOVE FLAGS

Chicago Police Threaten to Break Up Convention Unless Red Emblem Is Barred.

MOVE TO UNITE RADICALS

Left Wing Socialists Widen the Breach with the Conservative Faction.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—A strenuous day in the deliberations of the radicals now convening in Chicago, attained its climax this afternoon when the left wing of the National Socialist Party sent a bouquet and a bunch of red flags to the communist convention hall on Blue Island Avenue.

The Communist leaders placed the flags on the speakers' platform. Soon afterward Detective Sergeants Egan and McDonough of the Anarchist Squad of the Detective Bureau arrived and ordered them taken down.

I. E. Ferguson and others protested. They were informed that if the flags were not removed the convention would be closed. The red flags were removed and the police ordered that American flags be substituted. S. B. Montgomery, a Chicago attorney, was arrested for protesting. On the first floor of Machinists' Hall on South Ashland Boulevard the left wing of the Socialist Party was busy electing committees. The most important one was intrusted with the task of amalgamating the left wing with the communists and the I. W. W.

Meantime, on the second floor, the right wing, or conservatives of the Socialist Party, under the leadership of Victor L. Berger and others, was having trouble with recalcitrant delegates. Twelve from California deserted the Berger faction after styling its parliamentary tactics as "unfair and high-handed."

The business before this session was to throw out a block of delegates from Kansas, New Jersey, and other States who were said to have been ruining party discipline. The fact that these delegates had been elected in a democratic manner by members of the party, it was argued, had nothing to do with the case. Discipline, one orator maintained, was more important than anything else. Numerous arguments ensued.

Little progress was made at any of the conventions, the time being devoted to internal bickerings. There was much impassioned oratory and singing of international hymns.

Bolshevik, Bolshevik, Bolshevik—bang—
We are members of 'Gene Debs's gang.
Are we rebels? We should smile;
We're for the Soviet all the while.

When the members of the Left Wing Committee who had been in conference with a similar committee, appointed by the Communist Convention, filed into the Left Wing convention hall Chairman Charles Baker of Cleveland called on the members to welcome the returning committee by repeating the chorus of the song. This was done, all the delegates standing.

Then "Comrade" Bauer, Chairman of the Left Wing section of the Joint Conference Committee, read the committee report, which paved the way for an amalgamation with the Communists and for a unification of the radical elements of the Socialist Party in a new organization. This was to be consummated, however, only after a complete survey of the situation and a careful study of the political views of the various delegates that are to be gathered into the fold.

Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee was chosen Chairman of the conservative Socialists in the upper hall of the Machinists' Building. About seventy-five delegates were in their seats. Victor L. Berger, Jacob Panken, a Judge of the Municipal Court of New York; S. John Block, a New York attorney; State Senator Melms of Wisconsin, and August Claessens and Charles Solomon, Assemblymen of New York, were conspicuous in the convention.

POGROMS IN HUNGARY.

Vienna Hears Also of Wholesale Arrests of Red Sympathizers.

VIENNA, Aug. 31, (Associated Press.)—The Viennese newspapers continue filled with reports of wholesale arrests and persecutions in Western Hungary of all persons charged with or suspected of being in sympathy with the Communists. The same conditions are said to prevail in the trans-Danubian region, where pogroms are reported to be in progress.

Many specific instances of arrests and cruelties are recited, with the names of the places where they occurred and details. It is said that the Allied Military Mission at Budapest has been apprised of the situation.

Paul Garami, former Hungarian Minister of Justice, who has arrived in Vienna on his way to Switzerland, is reported to have confirmed these reports, particularly with respect to the pogroms.

TO DRAIN PASSAIC VALLEY.

Plans on Foot to Redeem Swamp Lands Subject to Inundation.

Special to The New York Times.

VERONA, N. J., Sept. 1.—Plans are being made for the drainage of the upper Passaic Valley through organizing agricultural interests in favor of the proposal and seeking the co-operation of dwellers in cities. It is said the drainage would do much to eliminate the mosquito.

It will be emphasized that the redemption of swamp lands will have a tendency to lessen the cost of living for those who must depend on the markets for their food. It is estimated that the flood in July covered an area of at least 20,000 acres, and that the high water remained long enough to destroy crops on at least 13,000 acres, 4,000 of which were in Essex County, 7,000 in Morris County, and 2,000 in Passaic County.

Old Prussian Office Abolished.

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—The abolishment of the office of Military Governor of Berlin, which has just been effected, marks the passing of a Prussian military institution dating back to 1658. The military administration of the city now devolves upon the local command of the regular army organization.

SAVED BROOKLYN GIRL.

Young Woman Rescued at Niagara Falls is Interpreter Here.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The young woman rescued from the Niagara River, at the brink of the Horseshoe Falls last evening, admitted to the police today, they said, that she was Kenia Fedostowa of 78 Hicks Street, Brooklyn. Miss Fedostowa said that she came from Russia to this country about two years ago after her family's property had been confiscated by the Bolsheviki. She said that she had not heard from her parents since she left Russia and worry over their fate had made her despondent.

The girl said that she speaks seven languages and is an interpreter in a New York City bank. The local police communicated with her uncle, Mohron Schildts of College Point, L. I., who promised to come here to take Miss Fedostowa home.

French Liner Sinks a Trawler.

Let's do a little straight thinking on prices

THE present situation is not new in the world; there have been other wars and other periods of high prices.

Homer Hoyt's article in the August NATION'S BUSINESS points out some of the fundamental economic truths about the cause and cure of high prices.

His September article carries the discussion one step farther.

Most men will continue to talk without thinking. The appeal of the Nation's Business is to the men who want to do their thinking first before they talk—to business leaders who now, more than ever before, ought to equip themselves to lead.

CHARGES CRUELTY TO INJURED FIREMAN

COLLAPSED AT HIS POST

William Bullock, director of the Good Government Bureau, made public a statement yesterday in which he asserted that Henry F. Williams, an engineer fireman attached to Engine Co. 16, has been in Bellevue Hospital since March 21 as a result of being ordered to return to work, although suffering from an injured spine, by Fire Commissioner Drennan and Chief Medical Officer Dr. Joseph E. Smith. Williams is said to be encased in a plaster cast from his ankles to his arms and supported by a block and tackle harness.

According to Director Bullock, Fireman Williams appeared before Commissioner Drennan and Dr. Smith with a diagnosis from Dr. Reginald H. Sayre, Professor of Orthopedic Surgery in the New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College that he must rest motionless in bed for six weeks because of an injury he sustained when he was thrown from his engine which had collided with a motor truck of the American Railway Express Company on Jan. 12 last. When he appeared before the Commissioner he was wearing a plaster jacket, which had been fitted to him by Professor Sayre, according to Director Bullock.

Williams, according to Bullock, was ordered back to work on March 20, and when he went back to his engine company and tried to work he collapsed, and was sent to Bellevue Hospital, where in five months, it was said, he has not recovered sufficiently to raise himself in bed. In his statement Director Bullock said:

"Inquiry into the case was made by the Good Government Bureau by request of members of the Fire Department. These men stated that there have been many instances of grave offenses against firemen on the part of higher officials of the department; that cruelty and inhumanity had been practiced against Williams to a degree calling for public knowledge of the facts, and for quick and drastic action by Mayor Hylan relative to the culpable officials. They pointed out that the injustice done Williams was especially serious for the reason that under the semi-military rule of the Fire Department Williams could only obey his superiors.

The reasons which prompted Chief Medical Officer Smith and Commissioner Brennan to order the fireman to active duty, encased in plaster, are not known."

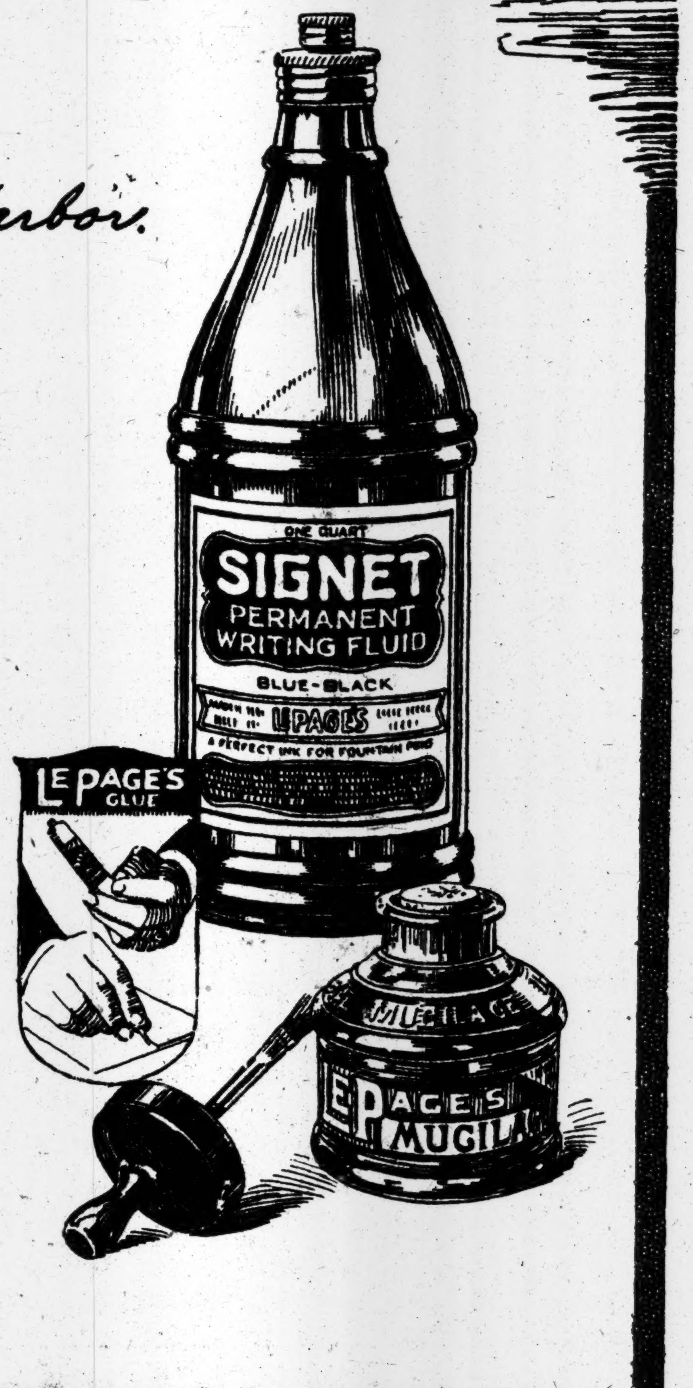
This bank book was fished out of Boston Harbor.

Here is proof of the wonderful permanency of Signet Ink. After soaking for weeks in mud and salt water, Signet's everlasting records came back as fresh, clean-cut and legible as when written. Even the column rulings of the bank book were wholly obliterated. Nothing but the destruction of the paper can kill Signet.



SIGNET THE PERMANENT INK

Not only is Signet absolutely permanent, but it is wholly without sediment; writes a pleasing blue that turns jet black; never refuses to follow the pen—and you can feel and see its goodness—your hand and eye will know it's right the minute you touch the paper.

Particular dealers who know the high reputation of LePage's Products feature Signet because Signet Ink, like LePage's White Paste and LePage's Mucilage, is made and guaranteed by the manufacturers of LePage's Glue, the standard for a half-century.

It is just as easy to get Signet—an ink that possesses the perfect ink essentials—and superior for all ink uses in office or home—if you insist on Signet. Get any one of the convenient sizes today, and know that you've bought the highest possible quality in ink at no greater cost than you'd usually pay.

Do You Know Your Own Business?

If you own shares in a business do you want a Government employe to tell your executives how to run your business?

If you are a loyal employe, do you want a political appointee to have the power to injure your concern by hampering its operations or by interfering with its efficiency?

Perhaps you have noticed the effect of Government control on the railroads, telegraph, and telephone.

Bills have been introduced to license and regulate the packing industry—perhaps your business will be next.

You would probably dislike to have this happen to your business even more than you would dislike to have your daily supply of meat interfered with.

SHELL-LOADING COST EXCEEDS ESTIMATE

Expenses at Fort Delaware Plant Were $14,000,000 When Armistice Was Signed.

CONTRACT FOR $1,250,000

Big Increases in Salaries of Officers of the Trading Concern After Government's Order.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The House sub-committee, investigating ordnance expenditures during the war, tonight made public testimony taken in its hearing that the Government shell-loading plant at Fort Delaware, uncompleted with the armistice was signed, had cost the Government to date $14,000,000, although the estimated cost, when the contract was let on the cost-plus basis, was placed at from $1,250,000 to $1,500,000.

The difference between the estimated cost and the total thus far paid out by the Government for the building of the plant is shown in testimony given by Lieut. Col. R. M. Hawkins of the Ordnance Department and a report made last October by Major Clair Foster of the Construction Division of the Army, and inserted by the committee in the records.

The contract for the plant was let to the Marlin-Rockwell Corporation, which organized a subsidiary concern known as the Marlin-Rockwell Loading Company, which in turn contracted with the Fred T. Ley Company for construction of the big plant and adjoining town to house 20,000 persons.

Major Foster's report cited some of the salaries paid by the Loading Company and the Ley Company, with advances in pay made after a few months' service. The Manager of the former company, the report asserts, had his salary raised from $10,000 to $15,000; the Assistant Manager, "a lawyer and former bond salesman," from $12,000 to $15,000; the Chief Engineer, from $7,500 a year, with $180 a month for living expenses, to $10,000 a year, and the Treasurer, from $4,800 to $6,000.

Of the Treasurer, the report said: "Government officers, questioned as to the Treasurer's duties, said they never had been able to see that he did anything except to indorse the Government's checks and sign those of the Loading Company."

"Please bear in mind," said Major Foster's report, "that all these salaries do not come out of the Loading Company's fee. The Government pays them and then pays 10 per cent. on top of them."

The testimony made reference to a recent request of the War Department for an appropriation of $185,000 to purchase additional land at the site, although Major Foster asserted that "most of it is swamp."

ROOSEVELT "FLAG FLIGHT."

Boy Scouts Will Carry Emblem from Buffalo to Oyster Bay.

As a preliminary to the nation-wide appeal for a $5,000,000 fund to build a Theodore Roosevelt memorial, a "flag flight" through New York State will begin tomorrow at Buffalo, and end at Oyster Bay, Oct. 19. High school students and Boy Scouts will carry a silken standard across the State, and at each stop a star will be added to the blue field, until at Oyster Bay the last star will be sewed on.

The flight will start after a mass meeting at Buffalo. The flag will remain overnight at the Ansley Wilcox residence in Buffalo, where Colonel Roosevelt took the oath as President, Sept. 14, 1901. Thursday, the flag will start for Batavia. From there, the flight will be through Rochester, Canandaigua, Geneva, Watkins, Elmira, Owego, Binghamton, Ithaca, Cortland, Syracuse, Oswego, Rome, Utica, Little Falls, Amsterdam, Johnstown, Warrensburg, Elizabethtown, Plattsburg, Essex, Port Henry, Crown Point, Ticonderoga, Whitehall, Fort Ann, Lake George, Fort Edward, Saratoga Springs, Mechanicsville, Troy, Schenectady, Albany, Hudson, Catskill, Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, West Point, Peekskill, Stony Point, Tarrytown, White Plains, Yonkers, New York City, Brooklyn, and Oyster Bay.

When the flag arrives at Oyster Bay, members of the Brooklyn squad will carry it to the Roosevelt home at Sagamore Hill, where it will be under a color guard until it is taken to the high school, where the last star will be sewn on.

PLAYGROUNDS CLOSE YEAR.

2,000 Children Take Part in Big Athletic Meet.

With 2,000 children taking part in an athletic meet, and with championship baseball games and the award of prizes and medals, the Parks and Playgrounds Association has closed a year which its President, George Gordon Battle, says has been one of its most successful seasons.

After-war conditions have lessened contributions to some extent, but financial difficulties have been weathered and the results for the children have been what the association desired. There have been games and amusements in the parks for children of all ages, from tiny tots to full-grown boys, and the more than 1,000,000 children have had a chance for natural and healthful play in the open.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

New Equity Shows Launched.

Fifty-first Street and Lexington Avenue continues to be the capital of the theatrical world, and the new program which the Actors' Equity Association presented there last evening is, by just a little, the best thing it has done. By this time the new régime of the players in the huge theatre there has taken on the air of an old, time-honored institution. When the last chair in the last box in the fourth tier has been sold Charles Ruggles has learned to announce the fact from the box office with a distinguished nonchalance, and the leading ladies now lead you to your seat as though they had never played any other parts in all their lives.

The new program at the Lexington is the sort of super-vaudeville which an ingenuous public always expects the Lambs' Gambol to be and which the Lambs' Gambol never is. The big number this week is the last act of "The Copperhead," with Lionel Barrymore easily hushing the vast audience for his offered glimpse of one of the really notable pieces of acting this generation has witnessed. It is not easy to think of any other modern play with a single act so well fitted to stand by itself nor any other in which a single rôle is so outstanding.

Then there is good fun in the Equity Minstrels with James J. Corbett as interlocutor, with the endmen honors going to Hal Skelly and Tom Lewis, and with a hundred male voices booming in the choruses. Ada Lewis and Jack Hazzard have a hilarious interlude all to themselves, playing a triangle play with two players and a bit of imagination. Dorothy Dickson and Carl Hyson are the chief dancers of the week, Gladys Rice sings to tumultuous applause and the incomparable Adele Rowland sings some new songs just a little bit better than any one else could sing them. The new master of ceremonies in Ernest Glendinning, who is proceeding on the heretical notion that it isn't absolutely necessary for a master of ceremonies to be just too funny for anything every minute.

While these festivities were in progress at the Lexington, the second Equity bill was being unfolded in Brooklyn and the new Equity revue was under way at the Second Avenue Theatre. This revue, which appears to have been thrown together at the last minute, is the work of Roger Gray, the comedian who played Marcel in "The Royal Vagabond" and who can tell his grandchildren some day that during the great war of the theatre in 1919 his understudy was George M. Cohan. All the way from Broadway to Second Avenue the Equity Revue has conducted some of the most beguiling of the chorus girls, who in more peaceful days were the lights of the Follies and the Winter Garden. Only zeal for a great cause could possibly have lured them so far from town.

The bright particular star of the Second Avenue revue, though its program boasts some more familiar names, is the new-risen James Barton, whose clown-dancing has provided the heartiest laughter of the actors' strike. Barton can do more than dance, however, for he also makes off with the chief honors in the fairly amusing burlesque of "John Ferguson." He plays the part of the coward, and falls prone if looked at or spoken to roughly, the while "Clutie" John, with the simpering manner, plays his pipe from a comfortable seat on the kitchen range.

Coast Orchestra Enlivens Cascades.

Art Hickman's orchestra, which has played for the last five years at the Hotel St. Francis in San Francisco, gave the people of New York an idea of Western rhythm when it played last night for the dancers at the Cascades in the Biltmore. Hickman's orchestra of ten took the long journey to play for two weeks at the Cascades for James Wood, manager of the Biltmore, and former manager of the St. Francis, where Hickman first became director of an orchestra. Hickman said that there was nothing unusual about his orchestra, except that he tried to give the public the "time to make them dance," and that his musicians were specialists, and the pick of the Western States.

STADIUM CONCERTS END.

250,000 Persons Have Heard Volpe Orchestra This Summer.

The Stadium Orchestra closed its second Summer season at the City College athletic field last evening, following a holiday matinée which was the first and only afternoon performance that Arnold Volpe and his players have held there. Both performances were well attended. It was said that audiences had averaged close to 4,000 throughout the season, making a total of about a quarter million persons who have heard the music in the open air. The majority of the tickets sold were at 25 cents, with others at 50 cents and $1, the cost of the concerts being underwritten by Adolph Lewisohn, donor of the Stadium.

Announcement was also made last night that Mr. Volpe with an augmented orchestra of 100 men will this Winter continue his popular-priced concerts at the Hippodrome on alternating Sunday afternoons.

BOY HELD FOR ROBBERY.

Sixteen-year-old Charles E. Hilliard of 112 East 102d Street pleaded guilty before Magistrate Charles E. Sims, in Harlem Court yesterday, to larceny and was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Hilliard, with Edgar Chisolm, 14 years old, of 104 East 102d Street, was arrested Sunday night by Patrolman Teasler of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, on the complaint of Mrs. Katharine Smith of East Seventy-seventh Street. As Mrs. Smith was walking on Fifth Avenue with her daughter Agnes two youths rushed at them as they were passing the home of Henry C. Frick, at Eighty-eighth Street. While one held Mrs. Smith's arm, the other snatched her handbag, which contained several dollars in change.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter screamed and pursued the boys, who ran toward Madison Avenue, followed by a crowd. They were caught in the basement of an apartment house. Chisolm will be arraigned in the Children's Court.

BOSTON BRAVES DEFEATED BY McGRAW'S MEN IN CLOSELY FOUGHT BATTLE AT POLO GROUNDS

GAME OF THRILLS IS WON BY GIANTS

KEEN BATTLE OF PITCHERS

Baseball Proletariat Works Hard on Labor Day—Morning Contest Is Postponed.

There was no spirit of unrest or defiance of umpirical authority in the Labor Day activities of the Giants. On this day, when the prolitariat sits around in his shirt sleeves, the baseball player goes right on working just as if labor and capital had never made faces at each other. Up at Harlem yesterday, the workingman's day of repose was duly observed by the Giants when they unveiled a skillful display of baseball, which brought McGraw's men out on the joyful end of a 3 to 2 score.

No game at the Polo Grounds this season had more thrills or interest than the stubborn resistence which the tribe of George Washington Grant put up against the Giants yesterday. It was a pitching competition for seven innings between Art Nehf and Dick Rudolph, who for years were club mates on the Braves. Nehf had the better of the flinging, for the Giants bunched their hits on the West Nyack farmer with a little more judgment than Boston used. There were times, however, when Rudolph cast a magic spell over the New York batsmen when there were men aboard the bases and timely hits were needed to send them home.

The teams were to have played two games, but the showers of the early morning led the officials to call off the morning game. Although the weather outlook was far from promising in the afternoon, a crowd of 20,000 risked getting wet and were well paid for their trouble by the sensational plays which decorated the pastime.

The Boston club has been renovated since it played here last. Charley Pick and Leslie Mann, who escaped from Chicago, are in the Boston lineup and both show signs of improvement after their brief sojourn in the classic atmosphere of Back Bay.

Charley Herzog has disappeared from second base, and the daily clowning between Maranville and Herzog is missing. Hank Gowdy is one of the few players in the game who can talk about the umpires without calling down their wrath in large chunks. Hank yesterday disapproved of the work of both O'Day and Quigley and didn't hesitate to say so. "Any time there is a decision on any of our players when we are at the bat you don't have to wait to hear what the umpire says because he is always 'out,'" said the former traveler of the Rhine. Both O'Day and Quigley laughed when Hank was beefing.

Chief You-Said-a-Mouthful.

The cultured aborigine, James Thorpe, who never raised his voice against the wisdom of the great paleface umpires when he was a member of the Giants, has found his tongue with Boston, and he spilled heap big conversation to Quigley when the umpire called him out sliding into second. Jim was strong on the redman oratory and showed that his name when he was a member of the Sac and Fox tribe must have been Chief You-Said-a-Mouthful.

Sommersault grabs by Mann, one-handed stabs while traveling under full steam by Young, and nifty pickups by the infielders of both clubs enlivened the drab afternoon and worked the crowd up to a pitch of excitement where it was yelling every time any of the Giants' batsmen hit a foul.

The most serious bruise that was made on Nehf's pitching was a home-run smack by Leslie Mann in the fifth inning. Luckily there was no one aboard the cushions at the time, so the very worst that the homer did was to tie up the score at 1 to 1. That deadlock didn't last long, for Mann, whose bat and wonderful fielding had brought him into such popular favor, made a muff of Fletcher's fly in the fifth and paved the way for the run which sent the Giants into the lead.

This muff put Fletcher on second, and Heinie Zim came to the front with a single which pushed Fletcher home. It was the run which Fletcher scored in the seventh inning, after he had poked a double to right, which marked the margin of the Giants' victory. Fletcher was perched impatiently on second in this inning when Zimmerman walked, and it was Frank Frisch, the Fordham youngster, who lashed a single to left which teased Fletcher home with the run which eventually won the afternoon's sport.

Hank Gowdy, very much discouraged when Young robbed him of what looked like a sure home run in the fifth, got his revenge in the eighth when he started a rally which would have pulled Boston through to victory if the other Bostonese had displayed the same enthusiasm as Hankus Pankus. Hank led off with a single to centre, and Red Smith, inserted as a hitter in place of Rudolph, ambled. A double play killed Boston's chances for catching up with the Giants, but it also put Gowdy on third. Charley Pick, the former Chicago player, then thumped out the hit which scored Gowdy and made the count 3 to 2.

Braves Waste Hits.

The Braves plucked a couple of hits off their old clubmate, Nehf, in the opening inning, but they made poor use of them. There were two out when Powell singled to left. He went to third when Jim Thorpe stung a single to right. Walter Holke left both citizens marooned when Fletcher tossed him out at first.

The Giants derived no benefit whatever from a brace of bangs they made off Dick Rudolph in the second. Zimmerman singled to left and Frisch hit into a double play, Pick to Maranville to Holke. Kauff beat out a roller to second, and stole second. Chase walked and the Giants' opportunity faded when Rudolph chucked out Snyder.

The Giants tickled Rudolph for two more useless hits in the third. Nehf doubled to right and Burns rolled a grounder to Boeckel, who tagged Nehf going to third. Young got an infield hit when he beat Holke to the bag, and Burns went to second. Fletcher's sacrifice sent both along a station. Rudolph tossed Zim out at first and ended the inning.

A pass from Rudolph started New York in the scoring business in the fourth. Frisch was favored with a free ticket and Kauff flied to Thorpe. Frisch went to second on Chase's out at first and scored when Snyder singled to right. Nehf kept up the good work with a single to right, which sent Snyder to second. Burns rolled to Boeckel, who forced Snyder at third.

Boston Ties Score.

The Stallings tribe tied it up in the fifth when Leslie Mann deposited a full-grown home run into the right field stand. Hank Gowdy started out in the same inning to make a home run and pasted the ball a mile into the deepest corner of right field. Ross Young made a remarkable one-handed catch just as the ball was saying "good-bye."

McGraw's men took the lead again in the fifth. After Young skied to Pick, Fletcher hit a fly to left centre. Mann muffed the ball after getting all his hands around it, and Fletcher reached second. Zimmerman crashed a single to centre, scoring Fletcher. Frisch brought the proceedings to an unexpected close when he walloped a hot liner to Maranville, who doubled Zimmerman before he could get back to first.

Two of the Giants, Burns and Young, were safely put away on the shelf in the seventh when Fletcher chopped a two-bagger to right centre. Zimmerman walked and Frisch jammed a single to right, coaxing Fletcher over the scoring pan. Zimmerman's feet carried him too far off third and he was trapped between third and the plate.

The Braves got dangerously close in the eighth. Hank Gowdy poked a single to centre and Red Smith, batting in Rudolph's place, walked. Boeckel sent a grounder to Fletcher who promptly unpeeled a double play, Gowdy going to third during the proceedings. Charley Pick larruped a single to the right field wall and Gowdy registered.

Murchison Goes to Milwaukee.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 1.—The sale of Pitcher Tim Murchison to the Milwaukee club of the American Association was announced here today by the Peoria club of the Three I League.

Curves and Bingles.

You may search high and low, far and near, through the major leagues but you will never find a better ball game than the Braves and the Giants unraveled yesterday. It was snappy and fast and was jammed with exciting plays. The fielding gems were so numerous that circus plays were common.

Leslie Mann made the first spectacular grab of the game when he ran in to pluck Young's drive from the grass tops in the first inning. Mann got the ball in his fingers and then turned over on his ear a couple of times, but came up still clutching the ball.

Boeckel, who has Red Smith's job at third base for the Braves, peeled off several plays which brought forth loud applause.

The five-star final stunt of the whole game, however, was Ross Young's daylight robbery of Hank Gowdy's home run in the fifth. Hank smote the ball a terrific smote and it was on its dizzy way to the fence in deep right when Young appeared from nowhere and ripped the ball from the air with one hand. The tremendous reception which Young got after the inning could be heard all over Harlem.

Jim Thorpe compiled a couple of hits for himself. The Indian tried to stretch one of his singles into a double but Young whipped the ball over to Frisch in the fifth and the Fordham boy made one of the prettiest plays of the afternoon in tagging Thorpe with a side twist which would have been difficult for a contortionist. Thorpe wouldn't believe he was out until Umpire Quigley repeated the decision several times.

The New York infield, which, at the critical moment of the season, showed alarming signs of old age, has temporarily recovered from its infirmity and displayed plenty of life yesterday.

The game scheduled for yesterday morning was called off. The few fans who went to Harlem found the gates closed and no signs on the fence. It was the anticipation of rain rather than because of any real wetness that prompted the postponement. The game will be played this afternoon. Today and tomorrow are open dates with the Giants because the games scheduled for these days have been played on previous Sundays.

Arthur Nehf was as skillful with the bat as he is in tricking the opposing batsman with his southpaw slants. He got a single and a double yesterday and Mann prevented him from getting another hit with a pretty catch in the sixth.

Shortstops don't come any better than Rabbit Maranville. In the seventh Young hoisted a foul out over the left field foul line. The Rabbit raced after it and made a difficult catch look as simple as an apple falling into a bushel basket.

ROBINS PLAY GAME OF 'IFS' AND LOSE

If Kilduff Hadn't Slipped Rounding Third—But Phils Win Anyway, 6 to 4.

Old Man "If" hobbled into Ebbets Field yesterday and thereby hangs the story. If a couple of episodes had not taken place, the final score would not have been 6 to 4, with the Phillies leaning on the heavy side, in the Labor Day encounter. But the "if" is what made the ball game interesting to the 5,000 fans, even though the interest proved costly to Uncle Robbie and his crew of ball players, who are struggling to finish the season in the charmed first division. The morning game yesterday was postponed on account of rain and will be played today.

With the score standing 5 to 1 in the eight inning, the Dodgers started a hitting rally. Three runs were scored, and Pete Kilduff was bringing the tying tally in, when he slipped 'twixt third and home. The gentleman who claimed there was many a slip between the cup and the lip must have been a baseball fan. Kilduff was rounding third base without his Weed chains adjusted, and the accident happened. Before he could straighten out his wayward course Jack Adams had tagged him, and the frame ended with the Phillies leading by a 5-to-4 score.

The Philly run which made the score 6 to 4 came in the ninth, when Olson made an error on Blackburne's roller, the Quaker City third sacker coming in with the tally. That was the wisp that broke the dromedary's spine, and the Dodgers made a hurried exit in their half of the last frame.

Bradley Hogg sailed along smoothly, allowing ten hits. He scattered his gifts along with a fine Italian hand, but in the second inning Myers managed to score after drawing a walk, advancing on Konetchy's single, and scooting home on Hickman's fly to Meusel in left.

Meusel's Arm Afflicted.

Meusel, who is usually in right field, exchanged places with Callahan, and his arm was sadly out of condition for long throws. On several occasions he allowed a runner to advance on a fly hit to his section of the lot because his toss to the infield had to be relayed. But his affliction did not affect his batting, and he lined out a double and a triple in his five trips to the plate. Davey Bancroft also used his bludgeon with telling result, cracking out a triple, and two singles as his share of the day's work.

Jeff Pfeffer, who started on the hill for the Dodgers, was on his way to the showers before the fifth inning had been completed, having previously had a shower of Philly hits rain about him. Cadore took his place, but gave way in the ninth to Mitchell, after Schmandt had been used as a pinch hitter in his place in the eighth. Nine hits were made off Pfeffer, while Cadore and Mitchell were each nicked for one.

The turf was as tricky as the man with the three shells, and ball chasers on both teams found difficulty in locating the pellet. In the first inning Hy Myers muffed a fly ball, and shocked the fans to near-hysteria. The ball floated right into his hands and then out, letting Callahan camp safely on first. The Philly gardener was caught off third later in the frame on a peg from Mack Wheat, so the error was not costly.

Bancroft opened the second inning with a triple to centre, and then scored on Hogg's single to left, hanging up the first Philly tally. Davey started another rumpus in the fourth, when he singled to centre, advancing on Paulette's single to short. Adams tried to bunt, but popped a little fly to Pfeffer. Hogg then drove in his second run by making a freak hit. He connected with a fast one, the ball making a carom off Pfeffer's shoe for a single, giving Bancroft opportunity to score, while Paulette was running between second and third on all fours. Blackburne's single brought Hogg home with the second run, after he had advanced on Callahan's infield out.

Phillies Add Two More.

The Phillies made another brace of runs in the fifth. Meusel drove to deep left, and a race between the ball and Hickman ensued. The ball won by a nose, Jimmy landing on his own nose in the damp grass. When things were righted, including Hickman, Meusel had pulled up on third. Luderus then walked, and Meusel scored when Olson threw out Bancroft. Paulette singled, scoring Davey. They made another run in the ninth when Olson slipped up on Blackburne's roller. The third sacker advanced on a brace of put-outs, and scored on Bancroft's hit.

The eighth inning was the one which brought joy to the heart of Flatbush. Griffith, Myers, and Konetchy singled in succession, Hickman made a sacrifice fly, and Schmandt, batting for Cadore, connected for a safety. When the smoke of the battle had cleared three runs were hung up, and, if Kilduff had not skidded, one more might have been the result.

The batting order for the Dodgers was changed yesterday, with Myers hitting in the clean-up position in place of Zach Wheat, who has been out of the game for several days. Konetchy batted fifth, with Hickman following.

The Phillies play at Ebbets Field today, and then the Dodgers leave, to return Sunday for the last home contest of the season, which is also with the Quaker City organization.

PITTSFIELD WINS PENNANT.

Snatches Eastern League Championship from Worcester on Final Day.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 1.—Pittsfield, which returned to the Eastern League this season after a lapse of several years, won the league pennant today after a great uphill battle in one of the closest baseball races ever recorded.

Garry Fortune, star pitcher for Pittsfield, was in the box in the morning game in that city and hung up his sixteenth consecutive victory when Worcester was defeated, 5 to 3. This victory gave Pittsfield the flag, and put Worcester, the runner-up, out of the race. Worcester took the afternoon game, but this only made the final margin of victory smaller for Pittsfield. Joe Birmingham, former Cleveland American outfielder, is manager of the Pittsfield club.

The final standing of the Eastern League follows:

REDS BREAK EVEN WITH CHICAGO CUBS

Merkle's Homer Beats Cincinnati in Morning, 4 to 3—Leaders Take Second, 4-2.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Chicago and Cincinnati divided the holiday bill today, the league leaders dropping the morning game, 3 to 4, and winning the afternoon game, 4 to 2. Merkle's homer broke the tie in the first contest, giving Chicago the game after each club had scored three runs by bunching hits.

Vaughn's wildness in the first inning of the second game, coupled with Rath's double, Daubert's sacrifice, Neale's single and a double steal by Neale and Kopf gave the visitors a lead which Chicago was unable to overtake, although they hit Sallee hard. Poor base running cost the locals several runs.

PIRATES SPLIT TWIN BILL.

Beaten by St. Louis, 5-4, in Morning—Win, 2-1, in Afternoon.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1.—Pittsburgh and St. Louis split even in today's games, the visitors taking the morning contest by a score of 5 to 4, while the Pirates won in the afternoon, 2 to 1. Miller was knocked out of the box in the morning game, after St. Louis had scored all their runs in the first two innings on mixed hits, and was relieved by Hamilton, who held the opposition scoreless after that. Schupp became unsteady in the fourth inning and was succeeded by Doak, who kept his team in the lead. Cooper won the afternoon game for Pittsburgh when he tripled with a man on first in the fifth inning and scored himself on a balk. He held the visitors to six hits and one run.

YANKS TAKE EIGHTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Bunch Hits Off Noyes and Defeat Mackmen, 5 to 2—Quinn Is a Puzzle.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—The campaign of the Yankees to finish among the top three, and thereby extract some of the receipts from the coming world's series, got some more nourishment here this afternoon, when the tribe of Miller Huggins hooked up with the tail-end Mackmen at Shibe Park. The Yanks made it three straight over the minions of McGillicuddy, having taken two at the Polo Grounds before coming here for the holiday. The score was 5 to 2. Two games were on the holiday card, but the morning engagement was called off on account of rain.

Today's victory was the eighth which the Yankees have hung up since they started their belated rush a week ago at Chicago. They took one from Chicago, four from Washington, and added three more against the Mackmen before starting out for a short series with the Red Sox in Boston. As a result of the spurt Huggins and his men have visions of finishing in either second or third place. Tonight the Hugmen are only two games behind the Tigers, who hold third place, and only three and one-half games behind the second-place Indians. The gap between the Yanks and Browns was widened further during the day, and the New Yorkers now lead the Burke brigade by five full games.

It was Jack Quinn who drew the pitching assignment against the Mackmen, and the veteran performed as creditably as in the series with the Senators last week. He let the home team down with seven hits, which were bunched in only one frame, the sixth. Two clean hits and an infield scratch were closely interwoven in this frame, and they pushed over the one run which the home team deserved against Quinn. The run which drifted across in the second inning would have been cut off but for a fumble by Roger Peckinpaugh, the only misplay turned in by the visitors.

Noyes Is Sent Back.

Win Noyes, who lasted only three innings against the Yankees at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, was sent back this afternoon by Mack and he lasted the entire game, despite the fact that he was hit hard. It was not entirely on their hitting, however, that the Yanks made the game so easy, as Noyes drew anything but airtight support. Four misplay were made by the home team and they helped to some extent in the run getting of the New Yorkers.

The upper section of the New York batting order found the delivery of Noyes to their liking. Both Fewster and Peckinpaugh landed on the home hurler for three hits, and Del Pratt collected a pair. All the Yanks, with the exception of the battery men, got at least one hit off Noyes. The drives were well bunched in the three innings which produced runs for the New Yorkers.

Huggins's men wasted no time going to the front, and they were not headed or seriously threatened after the first inning. Fewster greeted Noyes with a single to right, and galloped around to third when Peckinpaugh laced a double to left field. Walker allowed the ball to get away from him, and Fewster romped home, while Peck moved along to third. Frank Baker, who found the surroundings at Shibe Park quite familiar, promptly lined a single to centre and Peck jogged home, with the second run. After Pipp had fouled to Thomas, Baker was thrown out stealing, and then Pratt got the fourth hit of the inning, a single, through the box. It did not help in adding any runs, as Lewis closed the inning with a fly to Witt.

Mackmen Score in Second.

The Mackmen were set down in order in their first frame, but they picked up a run in the second. George Burns opened the frame with a single to right and Dugan smashed a hot grounder to Peckinpaugh. The Yankee shortstop was in a hurry to make a double play and the ball got away from him, both runners being safe. Thomas sent the pair along with a pretty sacrifice and Burns crossed the plate while Terry Turner was beating out a slow roller. Perkins closed the inning by hitting into a double play, Pratt to Peck to Pipp.

The Hugmen threatened again in the third when Fewster opened with a pass and Peck advanced him to second with a sacrifice. Neither Baker nor Pipp could deliver a hit, however. Fewster moved along to third while Baker was being thrown out by Turner, and he was left when Burrus made a good play on Pipp's hot smash.

In the fourth the Yankees added one more run to their total. Pratt opened with a single to centre and pulled up at second when Lewis bounced a single off Fred Thomas's glove. Ping Bodie moved the pair along with a sacrifice, and Ruel sent Pratt over the plate with a sacrifice fly to Witt. Lewis advanced to third on the throw-in and was left there when Quinn bounded to Noyes for an easy out at first.

From the second to the sixth inning the Mackmen were helpless before Quinn, failing to get a runner on the bases. In the sixth, Noyes started the home team on the way to its last run by driving a double to right field. Burrus outsprinted Peck's throw on his hopper to short, and Noyes went to third. The pitcher held third while Witt was forcing Burrus at second, and patience was rewarded. Walker lined a single to centre and Noyes registered.

Yankees Get Two More.

In the seventh a double play by Burns and Dugan turned the Yankees back after Ruel had reached first on a high throw by Thomas. Fewster got his third hit of the game in this frame but was thrown out on an attempted steal. In the eighth the vistors picked up their last two runs. Peckinpaugh singled to right and was forced at second when Baker bounded to Noyes. Pipp beat out a grounder to Turner and when the latter threw past first Pipp reached second, Baker going to third. On Pratt's smash to Noyes Baker was thrown out at the plate, Pipp taking third on the play. Dugan fumbled Lewis's grounder, and Pipp scored. Bodie followed with a single to right and Pratt raced home with New York's last run.

The Mackmen opened the seventh with a single but failed to get a runner to second base. In the eighth Burns singled with one down and it was the same story.

RUTH MAKES 24TH HOMER.

Red Sox Take Double Holiday Bill from Senators, 2 to 1 and 4 to 1.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Babe Ruth made his twenty-fourth home run of the season in the second game today. Boston took both games from Washington, 2 to 1 and 4 to 1. Ruth, who pitched the first game, tripled in the third inning, scoring Roth from first, and came home on Schang's single.

In the second game, with the score tied 1 to 1 in the seventh, Roth walked. Immediately afterward Ruth sent the ball into the right field bleachers for a home run. Cheers in football style were roared from grand stand and bleachers.

WHITE SOX CAPTURE TWO.

Destroy Tigers' Last Remaining Pennant Hopes by Double Triumph.

DETROIT, Sept. 1.—Sustained and opportune hitting won both games for Chicago today, the morning contest, 6 to 0, and the afternoon game, 5 to 1. The visiting pitchers, Williams and Cicotte, held Detroit safe at all times in both games, the latter striking out Cobb and Veach in the ninth as a climax to his spectacular game. These two defeats practically eliminate Detroit as a possible pennant winner this year.

Both Games Are Shutouts, Newark Winning, 1 to 0, and Jersey City, 3 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 1.—Newark and Jersey City divided a double header today, Newark taking the first game, 1 to 0, and then submitting to a 3 to 0 defeat in the second contest.

Letter scored Newark's only run in the sixth inning of the first game, when he walked with two out, stole second, and scored on Druggy's hit to right field.

Jersey City scored in the third inning of the second game on Wiglesworth's double, and Kane's single. A triple figured in the other two tallies. Fitzsimmons singled, and scored on Mooer's three sacker in the seventh. Lenoville then hit safely, scoring Mooers. Berrigan twisted his ankle in the first inning and had to retire from the second game.

BLOOMINGTON, Iowa, Sept. 1.—Announcement was made today by the Bloomington Three I League club of the sale of Ted Turner, premier pitcher of this league, to the Chicago National League Club. Catcher Walter Henline and Outfielder Wheat Orcutt have been also sold to the Indianapolis American Association club.

DELAY SERIES DISCUSSION.

No Plans to be Made Until Pennant Races Are Settled.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Tentative plans for the world's series will not be made for possibly ten days or two weeks, when the pennant races are definitely settled, August Herrmann, Chairman of the National Baseball Commission, announced tonight.

The meeting of the commission scheduled to be held here tomorrow was generally understood to be in connection with the world's series, but Chairman Herrmann said the question of drafting players from the minor leagues was the only business to be considered.

"We will not take any action in regard to the series until the prospective winners have won the championship," Herrmann said. "It would be entirely out of order to make any plans at present."

The action of the minor leaguers in abrogating the draft rule agreement is causing the major leaguers some concern, Chairman Herrmann said. The minors broke off relations with the American and National Leagues several months ago, deciding that if the major league club owners wanted the star players developed in the minor leagues, they would have to purchase their release outright instead of drafting them.

NATIONAL TENNIS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP. RESTS TODAY BETWEEN JOHNSTON AND TILDEN

TILDEN DECISIVELY DEFEATS WILLIAMS

Philadelphian Gains Straight-Set Victory in National Tennis Semi-Finals.

JOHNSTON BEATS JOHNSON

Californian Drops But One Set to Chop-Stroke Wizard — Both Matches Brilliantly Played.

The two Williams of tennis royalty, William M. Johnston of San Francisco and William T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia emerged victorious yesterday afternoon from the semi-final round of the National Championship at the West Side Club, and today's final match will decide which of these super-stars shall earn the title of William the Conqueror, so far as America and the tennis world in general are concerned. William the First took his place at the top of the bracket by defeating his near namesake, William F. Johnson, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3, and William the Second crushed the aspirations of the 1916 champion, Richard Norris Williams 2d, in straight sets, 6—1, 7—5, 6—3.

In the extra events Clarence Hobart and Frederick G. Anderson reached the veterans' final, with the Andersons and the Chapins, last year's champions, surviving in the father and son competition. Richards and Neer advanced to the finals of the junior doubles, and Ingraham and Jones will face Farquhar and Haas in the remaining bracket among the boys' teams.

Both of the big matches yesterday were scintillating exhibitions of the world's most popular game. The Tilden-Williams encounter offered the more spectacular features and the harder hitting, but the Johnston-Johnson affair was equally impressive as a demonstration of what steadiness and headwork, combined with a perfection of stroke, can accomplish. There was more good tennis crowded into these two short battles than any full day of thrills produced last week. As a finale to the afternoon's play, the new national doubles champions, Norman E. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson of Australia, appeared in an exhibition match against Watson M. Washburn and Frederick B. Alexander, the former winning in straight sets, 9—7, 7—5.

Plays to Rival's Weaknesses.

There are those who will argue that Williams was off his game when he went down to yesterday's decisive defeat, but such a claim would be absolutely unjust to the brilliant, well-ordered, and amazingly controlled tennis displayed by Tilden. The latter, having previously defeated the Harvard star three times this season, knew exactly how to take advantage of his weaknesses, and, more than that, he was able to make exactly the kind of shots that would cause Williams the most trouble. The stroke analysis, it is true, charges the loser with a great number of errors, but practically all of these were the result of his being compelled to hit the ball in unfavorable positions, at his feet or far out toward the sidelines, and by the baffling changes of pace employed by the Philadelphian.

Tilden seldom gave his rival the opportunity to get well set for a stroke, and, when he did, Williams was just as unbeatable as he seemed last week. There were placements, gets and volleys from the losing racquet that in their way were quite as extraordinary as anything flashed by the winner, but they had neither the consistency nor the variety that characterized Tilden's technique. Williams has been erroneously called "The player of a thousand shots." As a matter of fact, he is the absolute master of a comparatively small repertoire, and he usually wins by using each of these strokes to the limit of its possibilities. When he meets a man who cannot only return his best, but can also keep him from making those daring experiments which may at any time develop into a streak of irresistible magic, he is quite likely to lose, as he did yesterday.

Taking into account the wonderful qualities of the game he was facing, the necessity for constant vigilance, for complete confidence of stroke, quickness of thinking, and consistency of execution, it may well be stated that no tennis player in the history of the game has ever set a higher standard than was established yesterday at Forest Hills by William T. Tilden, 2d.

Winner's Admirable Head-work.

The greatest things are sometimes the least obvious, and the real greatness of Tilden's tennis was appreciated only by those who closely followed every shot he made, and fully grasped its meaning and the reasons for its effectiveness. Even in the most desperate situations, there was scarcely a return that did not have some significance. Except for a few inevitable slips of carelessness, Williams was compelled to earn every point he made, and generally his scores came as the result of a sucession of aggressive shots, any one of which would ordinarily have closed the rally. Tilden, on the other hand, secured his points more and more easily, for by making his rival play as often as possible under unfavorable conditions, he eventually robbed him of confidence in carrying out even the simpler formulas of the game, the more familiar situations coming almost always in the nature of a surprise and being frequently wasted in consequence.

Tilden knew that Williams was a deadly volleyer when the ball came to him shoulder high, or even above the waist; therefore, he always tried to shoot them as low as possible when his opponent came to the net. He knew, also, that speed had no terrors for the ex-champion, so long as he had the ball in front of him. Therefore, he undercut all his straight shots, so that the ball floated up at a deceptively slow pace and wa frequently knocked far out of court in consequence. He knew that Williams could hit a fast rising ball unerringly, therefore he chopped to him whenever he had him in deep court, the ball hanging in the air or skidding off the ground with an irrational break. He knew that his rival preferred a fast service to a twist, and so he fed him with high twisting bounces, which actually scored the equivalent of aces, even on the second ball. Finally, realizing that Williams is unsteady overhead except when right on top of the net, he made a practice of tossing up an occasional deep lob, and even though the majority of these shots landed beyond the base line, enough remained in court to induce a few timely errors in rallies already seemingly lost.

Double Faults Hurt Williams.

Williams hurt his game by a tendency to double fault at crucial moments, but this is an old habit of his and seems a necessary adjunct to his remarkably fine placing of his service. Tilden himself erred at times in this respect, but was always able to save the situation by calling on other resources. He was visibly annoyed at times by external circumstances, to which he habitually and temperamentally attaches an exaggerated importance, but in general he seemed able to concentrate on the business in hand and to play his hardest from start to finish. If he can preserve the same mental attitude today, he should repeat his victory in the final round, but any lapse from form or faltering of ambition may easily prove fatal.

For Johnston also is at the top of his game just now, and when two such stars meet on the court the first one to grasp a slight advantage is quite likely to force his opponent more and more below the actual level of his ability. That is what happened to Johnston at Newport, when Tilden defeated him in straight sets, and in a lesser degree the same rule held yesterday.

It was really far closer tennis than the scores would indicate, for Williams was always ready with a sensational shot when the opening presented itself, and the winner had to exercise all his power to see that such openings were not too frequent. A few points resulting differently here and there might have changed the entire aspect of the match. It was as though two boxers were face to face, each one thoroughly respecting the other's ability and fearing the knock-out blow which might come at any unguarded moment, but each one fighting desperately, yet carefully, for any little advantage that might add to his ultimate chances of victory. Following this comparison to its logical conclusion, it may be said that Tilden won a decisive victory on points, but that there was no knockout.

Williams Loses Opening Service.

Williams served first, but was immediately beaten on his own errors, and Tilden made it 2—0 on service. A movie camera began to play on him as he started the last rally of this game, but his annoyance expressed itself only in a winning shot to the corner of the court. Williams won his next delivery with a beautiful stop volley, after Tilden had passed him with a great drive, but from here on there was no checking the winner's rush. He served himself into a 3—1 lead and then broke through again with astonishing placements. His next service ran to deuce, but ended successfully, and when Williams served three double faults the set quickly fell to Tilden at 6—1.

In the second session Williams was moving at his fastest clip, while Tilden had several short streaks of carelessness after taking the opening game easily on service. He was aced by Williams on a second ball, which tied up the games, and then lost his delivery to a marvelous half volley from the former champion's racquet. But Tilden pulled himself together and broke through, in turn, for a love game, beating Williams's volleys with low shots as he rushed in and profiting by another double fault. Still keeping the ball low, the Philadelphian advanced to 3—2, but saw the set squared again after several trainloads of passing soldiers had added their noise to the genleral uproar. Umpire Conlin had to chide the standees at the north end of the inclosure for their riotous ways as Tilden again served himself into the lead, 4—3. Then three astounding placement shots, assisted by a double fault, brought another break for 5—3. But with the set in his hands, Tilden indulged in some wild driving, netting three in succession and finally lobbing out for the game, which made it 5—4. Williams quickly served the set square at 5 all, and Tilden, after trailing, 15—30, took the odd with splendid serving and an extraordinary recovery of a fast and well-placed shot. A deuce game gave him another opportunity to break through, and, with the first vantage point in his favor, he smashed hard for the set, 7—5.

Third Session One-Sided.

The third session was far more one-sided. Tilden broke through on the second game and was at 3—0 before Williams stopped him with a love-game on service, volleying exceedingly well whenever he could get his racquet squarely on the ball. They divided service up to 5—3, Williams endangering his last game with two more double faults, after enjoying a lead of 40—love. Tilden also double faulted in his final appearance, but balanced the mistake with a finely placed overhead shot to the exact corner of the court.

An out by Williams brought up the match point. Tilden drew his rival out of position with a chop and then shot a terrific forehand drive to the unprotected territory on his rival's left. Williams made no attempt to get the ball as it whizzed by him, but ran in to shake hands, convinced that he had met his master, the set being scored at 6—3.

Johnson Takes Opening Set.

Wallace Johnson upset the fine driving game of the 1915 champion in their opening set much as he did at Newport earlier in the Summer, and drew first blood with ridiculous ease at 6—2. His well-placed undercut shots had Johnston digging wildly for the ball, and he made enough errors to offset whatever points he could earn. The Philadelphian was aggressive and confident, finding his own strokes under such good control, and frequently went to the net to finish the points, after he had pulled his rival far out of position by shooting accurately for the corners.

The Californian soon realized that the only way he could break up such a game would be by applying terrific speed with almost equal steadiness, and this is what he set out to do in the second session. He lost only one game out of seven, and that one came on his own service when two bad decisions went against him, one resulting in a double fault.

With the match all square, Johnston continued to pound the ball, particularly off his forehand, occasionally closing in for a very effective overhead smash. The games were divided up to 2-all, but, after that, the ultimate winner forged ahead, twice breaking through the chopper's service, and eventually winning the set, 6—3, lobbing successfully for the final point, after drawing his rival in close with a soft cut by way of reprisal.

Californian Speedier and Steadier.

The final set went to Johnston by the same score and in much the same fashion. Both players were very accurate at this stage, but the Californian had a slight edge in both speed and steadiness. He ran into a lead of 4—1, after breaking through service once. But Johnson took a love-game on his own delivery, ending with a clean ace after a timely smash had scored and the broke through in turn, cutting Johnston's lead to 4—3 when he netted a deep lob, and then drove out. Another break, however, made it 5—3 against the Philadelphian, and, with the winning weapon of his service, Johnston quickly cleaned up with a love-game, taking the set and match, 6—3.

Doubles Titleholders in Action.

The exhibition doubles match was welcomed by the crowd of 10,000 spectators as an opportunity to see the new national titleholders in action. The quality of play was uneven, however, the Australians running into an early lead of 5—0 on their opponents' errors, only to see the games brought to deuce by their own leaning toward reciprocity. Brookes and Patterson eventually won the opening set, 9—7, breaking through Alexander's service for the winning points.

The same player was the victim of the crucial break in the second set, losing his delivery for a 7—5 decision, after service had alternated in winning from 2 all to 5 all. In this set the Americans led at 2—0, Washburn having upset Brookes with a splendid passing drive. But the Australians got back the game against Alexander and thereafter remained steady to a victorious finish. Patterson's overhead hitting delighted the crowd, and Brookes was as clever as usual with his volleys. Washburn excelled in ground strokes and Alexander did his share in general defensive work.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 1.—There were more than one hundred competitors in the bogie handicap golf competition this morning at the Ekwanok Country Club. W. L. Garey of Baltusrol surprised the handicap committee by finishing 4 up on bogie with his allowance of eight strokes. Paul Hunter of Midlothian and A. L. Walker, Jr., the intercollegiate champion, put up stiff fights against their heavy handicaps and had rounds of 76 and 75, respectively, for net results of all even and 1 down. Walker was handicapped at plus 4 and Hunter at plus 3. A. G. McIlwaine, 2d, at plus 1, finished 1 down.

The better scores follow:

W. L. Garey, Baltusrol, 8, 4 up; C. L. Becker, Pinehurst, 8, 2 up; L. W. Callan, Baltusrol, 8, 2 up; Carl Connell, Scranton C. C., 8, 2 up; Howard Morris, Jr., Onondaga, 6, 1 up; W. G. POINSETTE GAINS SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Defeats Beattie and Wallace on Forest Park Links—Other Tournaments.

A. F. Poinsette of the New York Newspaper Golf Club, winner of the recent public parks championship and the Herald Cup over the Van Cortlandt links, continued his winning streak in the Brooklyn Forest Park tournament yesterday by defeating two opponents and reaching the semi-final round. In the first round the tall, young public links champion defeated A. Beattie, a home club player, in a match that was carried to the nineteenth green before Poinsette could shake off his opponent by the margin of 1 up. In the afternoon he had an easier time winning from William Wallace, Jr., son of Bill Wallace, whom Poinsette defeated in the semi-final round for the Herald Cup at Van Cortlandt. The son proved easier than the father, for the veteran carried Poinsette to the nineteenth green, whereas the youngster struck his flag to Poinsette by the wide margin of 7 and 6.

H. Serine, another home club player, who won the medal in the qualifying round with a 77, the only score under 80, was quickly eliminated in the first round of match play by A. Stazely, another Forest Park golfer. Poinsette was tied for second place in the qualifying round with an 82. Stazely also won his second round match from H. Graeurholz of Forest Park by the margin of 4 and 3, and will meet H. Eckhardt of Forest Park in the upper half of the semi-final bracket.

The Fox Hills golfers turned out in force yesterday, despite the threatening weather, to qualify for the A. S. Prall Trophy. The contest brought out some exceptional golf, the best score of the day being that of A. C. Perry, a scratch player, who turned in a card of 72 for the round, one stroke under par. Under the heavy going this was remarkably good play for the day. He stuck fairly close to par figures all the way, equalling par on no less than twelve of the eighteen holes. On three of the other six holes he was a stroke over par, on two he was a stroke under, and on the long fourth hole, par 5, he sank a putt that gave him a 3, two strokes under the regulation figure. His card was as follows:

Out ....5 4 4 3 3 5 4 4 4—36
In .....5 4 3 5 4 4 3 4 4—36—72. Par 73

The sixteen golfers who qualified for the Prall Trophy match play rounds were H. C. Jennison, 82, 14—68; J. H. Young, 93, 22—71; A. C. Perry, 72, 0—72; W. M. Richardson, 97, 25—72; B. T. In the afternoon there was a two-man team best ball contest for a trophy donated by Royal N. Smith. This was captured by B. T. Allen and W. H. Follett, better known as "Pipe" Follett, whose combined efforts brought in a best ball card of 70 for the round.

Although H. H. Good captured the thirty-six-hole medal play handicap at Apawamis yesterday with a card of 175, 16—159, C. M. Sheafe, Jr., was the biggest winner of the day, for not only was he second to Good in the net thirty-six-hole score, but his morning round of 82, 6—76 gave him first prize in the eighteen-hole handicap and he also captured the sweepstakes prize for the morning.

The leading scores of the day were:

Thirty-six Hole Medal Play; Handicap.—H. H. Good, 175, 16—159; C. M. Sheafe, Jr., 175, 12—163; G. T. Synes, 188, 24—164; Basil Harris, 175, 10—165.

GREAT NECK, L. I., Sept. 1.—Jack Noble and Frank Canning won a foursome on the links of the Great Neck Golf and Country Club today, when they emerged by a margin of 1 up over Charles Urquhardt and George Nicolai. Canning had the best score of the quartet, 77, over the eighteen-hole route.

R. H. Boyd and F. F. Phillips tied in a competition against bogie on the links of the Flushing Country Club yesterday, each being 2 down. Par for the course is 74, and Bert Battel, the club's professional, figures that bogie is in the neighborhood of 78. H. Kenworthy, who was 3 down, finished third. A. S. Andrews, the club champion, did not compete.

H. Stanley Green won the final round for the Governor's Cup at the Belleclaire Golf and Country Club yesterday, when he defeated Ralph Wolff, by 3 up and 2 to play. N. W. Lawson won the Tierney Cup in a medal play competition when he returned a card of 80. F. J. Matchett and John J. Cavanaugh were tied for second, with 83 each. O'DOWD OUTPOINTS LEWIS.

Has Better of Seven Rounds Out of Ten in Fast, Hard Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—More than 4,000 persons saw Mike O'Dowd, world's middleweight champion, outpoint Ted (Kid) Lewis, former world's middleweight title holder, in a ten-round bout here tonight which did not end until after midnight because of the long list of preliminary scraps on the program. It was the most sensational encounter staged in Syracuse in three years, and boxing critics will be talking of the bout for many weeks to come. It developed into a grudge scrap early, for the boys had been boxing less than one minute in the opening round when Lewis hit O'Dowd when coming out of a clinch, and from then on, until the final bell sounded, the two boxers employed every trick known in the game to try to cut up the other. Heads were bumped often, and frequently the boxers drew gloves across each other's face in coming out of a clinch, with O'Dowd being the worst offender.

In the first three rounds Lewis made O'Dowd look like a selling plater, for the former welterweight king danced about the middleweight king in magnificent style and poked away with left jab after left jab and then backed out of danger before O'Dowd could get over a dangerous wallop. Early in the fourth round O'Dowd whipped up an uppercut which landed on Lewis's lips, cutting his mouth, and from this point on O'Dowd forged steadily to the front, winning every one of the last seven rounds of the battle.

In the fifth round O'Dowd was hissed several times by the fans for getting his head under Lewis's chin and then raising up, intending to cut Lewis's jaw. Both boxers were fortunate that they were not badly marked up, considering the way they tried to butt each other.

At the beginning of the seventh round Charley Harvey sent Lewis from the corner with instructions to mix it up for all that he was worth. This just suited O'Dowd, for he met Ted in the centre of the ring and they slammed into each other like two wildcats. Neither would give ground for several seconds, but finally O'Dowd forced Lewis to the ropes and inflicted some terrific body punishment.

In the eighth round, both boys kept mixing it up and the ninth was about the same, with the fans standing on the seats of the chairs, cheering the two boxers. Lewis was tired in the tenth round, but O'Dowd was not able to hurt the former welterweight champion.

JACKSON OUTBOXES DUNDEE

Bronx Lightweight Scores Clean-Cut Victory in Jersey City Bout.

Willie Jackson, the Bronx lightweight, scored a clean-cut victory over Johnny Dundee, the local Italian lightweight, in their eight-round bout last night at the Armory A. A., Jersey City. The Bronx lad, showing a style of attack which Dundee could not solve, carried off the honors in six of the eight rounds and administered a sound drubbing to the Italian boxer.

In only the second and fourth sessions did Dundee show to advantage, and the Italian's work in these rounds was easily discounted by Jackson in the other sessions. Jackson plied his opponent with a variety of blows to the face and body alternately, which at times had Dundee befuddled. At close quarters, particularly, did the Bronx lightweight show to advantage, for he pounded Dundee hard about the body with solid right and left hand smashes which took much of the steam out of the Italian. Dundee essayed to offset his adversary's attack with his jumping-jack tactics, but even in this the Italian was unsuccessful, for Jackson solved this style and almost continually had the Italian boxer on the defensive. A large crowd witnessed the contest.

Sharkey Outpoints White.

Coogan Outpoints Adair.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 1.—Mel Coogan of Brooklyn outpointed Barney Adair of New York in their ten-round bout here today.

NEW YORK BANTAM OUTPOINTS HERMAN

Lynch Takes Seven of the Ten Rounds, but Champion's Caution Saves His Title.

WATERBURY, Conn., Sept. 1.—Bantamweight Champion Pete Herman took no chances with his title in the bout here today with Joe Lynch of New York, who outpointed the titleholder, taking seven out of ten rounds. Lynch forced the fighting at all times and frequently compelled Herman to cover up to protect his jaw. Lynch failed by one pound to make the weight of 118 pounds agreed upon, while Herman was underweight.

Although the champion was at no time in danger of a knockout, he took punishment from the New York boy repeatedly. Herman seldom showed a desire to trade punches with Lynch, who was continually on the aggressive. Instead, he appeared satisfied to leave no openings for damaging blows which might give Lynch the championship by a knockout. The crowd hissed Herman for his cautious tactics.

Herman's most effective blow was a left hook to the wind, with which he scored frequently. This punch was delivered so low as to cause Referee Fitzgerald to caution Herman twice.

The first round was even, the third and fourth went to Herman, but all the others were won by Lynch. In the second and every other round, from the sixth to the final bell, the New York scrapper made it so hot for the champion that he had to use gloves and elbows to protect his jaw. Lynch attacked like a tiger in the tenth, driving his punches home so warmly that the New Orleans boy's defensive skill was not equal to the task of blocking them.

The bout was held in an open air arena, before a crowd of 9,000 people.

Honors Even in Opening Round.

Herman had the better of some in-fighting at the opening of the second, and, a moment later, landed a hard left hook in Lynch's face. The blow stung the New York boy, who replied with a volley of left and right hooks to the head and body. They mixed it earnestly, Lynch piling in punches so fast that Herman had to cover. This was Lynch's round.

Herman did his best fighting in the third. He landed his left often in Lynch's face, Lynch countering weakly with rights to the body. Herman used his left to the stomach effectively.

The champion's left hand bothered Lynch again in the fourth, but he was able to land several hooks to the body himself. Lynch attempted to force the fighting in earnest, but Herman gave him as good as he sent in this round. Herman's round.

Lynch Assumes the Lead.

In the fifth round Lynch took the lead from the start, landing a light left and making the champion miss a left swing. Lynch jabbed his left to Herman's nose and hooked to the body. Herman landed once with a left to the wind, but was quickly forced to cover up under Lynch's attack. Lynch brought his right into play, but missed with it as often as he landed. Lynch's round.

The New York boy's aggressiveness was felt again in the sixth. He forced Herman to cover his jaw, while he hooked rights and lefts to the champion's body. Herman scored with his left to the body when he attempted to fight back; but mainly contented himself with playing safe. In a hot mix-up at close range, Lynch hooked rights and lefts to the body, and had the champion covering up again at the bell.

Lynch bobbed Herman's head back with a left jab at the opening of the seventh. After repeated clinching, he scored rights to the head and body, but Herman responded quickly with two rights to the kidneys. Lynch jabbed cleanly, then went at the champion with both hands, forcing him to cover up. They exchanged rights and lefts in some hard milling. Lynch counted with a left to the body, and the champion was protecting himself at the bell.

Champion Takes Severe Punishment.

Lynch forced Herman to the ropes in the eighth and punished him severely. The champion missed a left swing badly. Lynch attacked aggressively again, and rained punches on the champion's guard. Herman landed a left to the face and a right to the head. Lynch felt Herman's left hook to the wind once again, but it failed to slow him up. Lynch's round.

The ninth round started with Lynch rushing and mixing it with the champion at close quarters. Herman hooked his left to the body, but was again forced to cover. Herman showed some desire to fight in this round. He countered with lefts and rights to the head, and scored on Lynch's body. The New York boy kept after the champion, however, and landed more than often enough to win the round.

Lynch was a veritable whirlwind in the tenth, rushing Herman repeatedly and raining blows upon him. The champion was on the defensive, but was not able to block half of Lynch's leads. Herman resorted to holding in the clinches, in order to save himself from punishment. Lynch slowed up a trifle in the last minute, but was still making Herman give ground at the bell. Lynch's round.

1 Fill up with the new gasoline that vaporizes fast

2 Set your carburetor at 15 to 1 — this article tells you how

Two ways to increase your gasoline mileage

How motorists can save real money on fuel bills

MOST motorists today are wasting money on gasoline. They are using far too rich a mixture of air and gasoline vapor.

The most efficient mixture for every automobile is 15 parts of air to 1 of gasoline.

The February 1917 Bulletin of the Society of Automotive Engineers shows the 15 to 1 mixture of air and fuel to be scientifically correct for all loads and all speeds.

Every motorist can use 15 to 1, the real efficiency mixture, if he wants to. Here's how to do it!

1. Use Tydol, the Economy Gasoline, that vaporizes fast.
2. Set your carburetor at 15 to 1 —this article tells you how.

Why low-grade or sluggish gasoline wastes fuel

Sluggish gasoline vaporizes slowly. There are three kinds of sluggish gasoline on the market:

(1) Common, low-grade gasoline of 52° to 56° gravity.
(2) Low-grade gasoline or kerosene blended with very light casing-head gasoline to improve quality.
(3) Gasoline mixed with kerosene.

A large percentage of such gasoline never becomes vapor at all. That unvaporized gasoline cannot explode and cannot help drive your engine. It is waste fuel. To produce even fair results, sluggish gasoline requires a "rich," wasteful mixture.

Unvaporized fuel means low gasoline mileage and wasted money. It also means excess carbon, sticky piston rings, gummed-up valves, and diluted lubricating oil. It is the principal cause of an engine that lacks power.

The new economy gasoline uses 15 to 1 mixture

Tydol, the Economy Gasoline, vaporizes fast. It is made to give best results in a 15 to 1 mixture of air and fuel.

Where you can buy Tydol

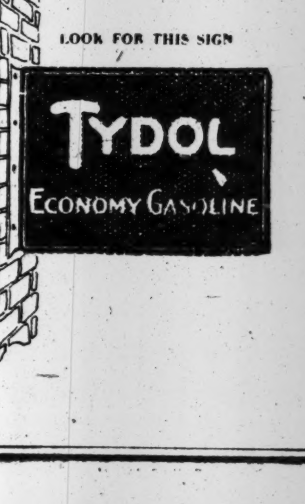
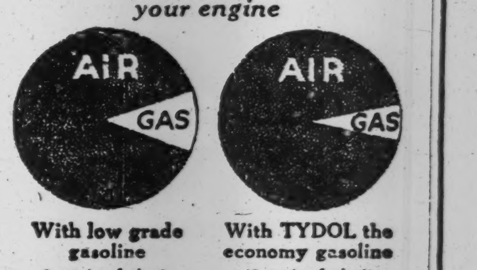
TIDE WATER OIL COMPANY
11 Broadway, New York
Telephone: Bowling Green 8000



What really explodes in your engine



With low grade gasoline
8 parts of air to 1 part of gasoline

With TYDOL the economy gasoline

How to make 15 to 1 adjustment

Fill the gasoline tank with Tydol and warm up your engine. With the car standing still, and the engine running, use the gasoline adjustment on the carburetor, to decrease gradually the quantity of gasoline going through the bowl of the carburetor until the engine begins to slow down.

Then increase the proportion of gasoline going through until you get a maximum engine speed, but not a fraction further.

With Tydol you will get approximately a 15 to 1 mixture (15 parts air to 1 part gasoline).

The same procedure with low grade gasoline will decrease the proportions to about an 8 to 1 mixture (8 parts air to 1 part gasoline). This means low mileage and excess carbon deposits.

Tydol is made so you can use less fuel and more air.

WAR CLOUD AND LUCULLITE SET NEW TRACK MARKS ON FIRST DAY OF BELMONT FALL MEET

TWO RECORDS FALL ON BELMONT TRACK

LUCULLITE ALSO TRIUMPHS

Lowers Figures for Six Furlongs—25,000 Racegoers Attend Opening of Fall Meeting.

Before a great throng of 25,000 persons, who welcomed the return of racing at Belmont Park yesterday, A. K. Macomber's War Cloud made a remarkable comeback and won the Belmont Park Autumn Handicap, lowering the colors of the mighty Cudgel and setting a new track record for the mile and a furlong. This son of Polymelus stepped the distance in 1:50 1-5, clipping four-fifths of a second from the mark made by Stromboli in 1915 in the same event. Cudgel could do no better than third in the event, as he was quite handily defeated for the place by S. C. Hildreth's Valor, while R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Corn Tassel brought up the rear.

The record broken by War Cloud was the second to fall in the day's racing. S. C. Hildreth's Lucullite set a new mark for six furlongs in the first race, winning handily in 1:10 3-5, as against the record for the distance of 1:11 2-5, which was made by Housemaid in 1915.

The holiday crowd taxed the capacity of the big stands, which had but recently been improved to increase the accommodations. The roof, which had been entirely covered since the last meeting in June, was thrown open to the patrons, and many took advantage of this unobstructed view of the course, while the stands themselves were packed and the lawn was a seething mass of humanity.

Quite appropriately, an excellent card was provided for the opening day, and, although the fields were generally small, owing to the fact that many of the horses which were campaigning at Saratoga have not yet arrived at their new quarters, the crowd was fortunate in seeing an unusual number of stars perform. Three of the six events brought out some of the best horses in training and resulted in some close finishes. The crowd also saw two of the popular racers go down to defeat, for, besides Cudgel, Miss Jemima was soundly defeated in the Tomboy Handicap for two-year-olds. She came home third to Wedding Cake and Germa.

War Cloud's Showing a Surprise.

The victory of War Cloud was something of a surprise, for it was the first really good race he had run this season. In fact, it was his first good race since the running of the Dwyer States a year ago, when he defeated Jack Hare, Jr., in a very stirring finish. He made a rather poor showing in his races at Saratoga, but it was certain after his victory yesterday that he had again reached his best form. He was easily the best of the four starters, and, after a brief battle with Valor in the stretch, had little difficulty in winning.

The defeat of Cudgel was a great disappointment to his many followers, as he had recently indicated that he was at his best, and at his best he is one of the greatest racers in the country. However, Cudgel has never been able to win a race at Belmont Park. Apparently he does not like the turns to the right, and on occasions he has run out badly at the turns. But there was no such excuse to offer for him yesterday, as he ran straight enough, but was unable to catch the leaders, though he came along gamely in the last quarter of a mile. He proved, rather, that he could not carry 132 pounds against 118 for War Cloud and beat the latter at his best form.

Valor rushed into the lead with the springing of the barrier, with War Cloud right at his heels. Cudgel, always a slow starter, was last through the first eighth of a mile, but soon moved up and passed Corn Tassel. Valor set a very fast pace and held the lead all the way into the stretch. War Cloud was always close at his heels and apparently was running easily, right up to the time he took command. But Fator, on Valor, and Kummer, on War Cloud, seemed to fear a rush from Cudgel and they attempted to gain such a lead that the Ross horse could not make up the distance in the stretch.

Sande brought Cudgel around on the outside at the last turn and settled down for a hard drive. Cudgel responded and raced at his best, but Valor had set such a hot pace that Cudgel had considerable ground to make up. Valor began to weaken in the last furlong and War Cloud came up with him. The two raced neck and neck for a few strides, when War Cloud began to draw away, to win easily. Cudgel made an effort to catch Valor, which was evidently tiring, but Valor held on gamely, and Cudgel found the task too much for him. He gave up the fight before the wire was reached. Corn Tassel was never a contender at any stage of the race.

Favorites Lose in Tomboy Handicap.

The Tomboy Handicap, for 2-year-old fillies, brought out six starters, and among these were C. E. Rowe's Miss Jemima, at one time regarded as the best of her class in the country, and Homely, which defeated the Western racer at Saratoga. These two were made almost equal favorites, Miss Jemima being quoted at 6 to 5, with Homely offered at 7 to 5. Miss Jemima was still regarded as the best of her field, despite the fact that she carried 130 pounds and gave away weight to all her rivals. Her defeat at Saratoga had not been taken seriously, but it was quite evident yesterday that she had raced too much this season and that she was no longer as formidable as when she was gathering laurels in Kentucky. Miss Jemima ran her race and finished fourth, while J. H. Rosseter's Wedding Cake captured the event, with G. W. Loft's Germa second and Homely third.

Miss Jemima was the first to leave the barrier, but as she leaped forward she collided with one of the rivals and was bumped badly. Despite this she raced into the lead again and held that position for a furlong. Germa and Homely were close to her and Homely came along to pass Miss Jemima. At the same time Wedding Cake began to get her racing legs and rushed up among the leaders. The pace was so fast that Miss Jemima began to tire, and in the last furlong she was under the lash, but this could not make her keep up with the leaders. Germa and Homely ran a dead heat down the stretch only a length back of Wedding Cake, and, while the latter won decidedly, there was much dispute over which of the other two finished second. From the stands it appeared that Homely had a slight advantage and should have been placed second, but the judges decided that Germa had the advantage.

S. C. Hildreth's Lucullite started the day well for the favorites by winning the first race handily from a field of sprinters which included some popular favorites. Old Rosebud was out for another trial and the others were Peter Piper, Fruit Cake, War Marvel, Panaman, and Audacious.

Lucullite had not raced in nearly six weeks, having been kept out of competition since the meeting at Empire City, but he came back in fine form and though carrying 130 pounds had the race at his mercy from the head of the stretch. There was considerable support for Old Rosebud, but he failed to show his former speed. Old Rosebud was also quite fractious at the post and delayed the start. He is becoming hard to manage in his old age. He was continually out of position and Starter Cassidy had to have him led up to the barrier before he could send the horses away.

Lucullite's Race by Four Lengths.

Peter Piper raced to the front and showed his usual flight of speed through the early part of the race. Lucullite was off among the last, but went up to third position on the backstretch and then Fator followed the pace and waited for the turn into the stretch. There he drew up with Peter Piper and the two drew away from the others Once they had been straightened out, Lucullite raced past Peter Piper and had the contest all to himself. He came down the stretch drawing away from his field and won by four lengths. Peter Piper managed to hold the others safely and was five lengths in front of Fruit Cake.

Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Robin Goodfellow won the Broadhollow Steeplechase Handicap from M. Schwartz's Delaware and H. W. Maxwell's Decisive. Robin Goodfellow followed the pace set by Delaware until the last turn of the field, when he went to the front. Delaware, which is a newcomer to the cross-country sport, ran an excellent race and fenced well, but could not last over the distance. Decisive was badly beaten all the way.

S. C. Hildreth won double brackets when his Poacher was first in the fifth race at a mile for three-year-olds and upward. This was strictly a contest between Poacher and J. K. L. Ross's Queen of the Sea. The latter was last all the way to the stretch, where Sande made an effort to catch Poacher. But the latter had plenty of speed and won by nearly two lengths. Queen of the Sea easily disposed of the others and was several lengths in front of Jim Dinney, which finished third.

W. R. Coe's David Harum graduated from the maiden class in the last race for two-year-olds. He had showed considerable promise at Saratoga but had been unfortunate in some of his races. Yesterday he suffered no mishaps on the straight course.

Hoofbeats of the Racers.

Some improvements have been made at Belmont Park since the Spring meeting. The roof of the main stand was opened to patrons for the first time, and was well patronized. Among other changes the press box was practically erased from the premises. It was discovered in an obscure spot and found to have shrunk to half its normal size.

The small field in all the events yesterday was attributed to the delays in shipping horses from Saratoga, and it is expected that more starters will soon be available.

Commander J. K. L. Ross yesterday bought Conduit from Steve Judge, and, after running her in an event or two at Belmont Park, he intends to ship her to his farm where she will be used for breeding purposes.

James McClelland will not be represented in any of the races at the present meeting. He has shipped all his horses, including Eternal, to Havre de Grace.

The racers from the stable of John Sanford and J. K. L. Ross are being accommodated at Belmont Park. Formerly they were kept at Jamaica and Aqueduct.

The condition of the track was a surprise to many who thought it would show the effects of recent rains. It proved to be lightning fast when two track records were broken.

RACE MEET IN MORNING.

United Hunts Will Stage Six Events on Saturday.

The United Hunts will have a morning race meet on Saturday at Belmont Park Terminal, when a good card will be offered. The Hunts meet will be a kind of curtain-raiser to the afternoon's sport at the Belmont track.

There will be three races on the flat and the same number over the steeplechase course. That there will be fields of good class in both is indicated by the entries, the majority of which have been made by some of the biggest stables on the American turf. The first race will be called at 11 A. M., and as the meeting will be over by 1 o'clock it is anticipated that a goodly gathering will be on hand.

LONG BIKE RACE IS HELD AT VELODROME

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Sept. 1.—Alfred Goullet and Reggie McNamara, two of the strongest six-day bicycle riders, won the 100-kilometer, or sixty-two and a half mile, team race at the Velodrome today before a large holiday crowd. It was a gruelling grind, with sprints for points every two miles, which made practically a continuous "jam" of the race, reminding the fans of the busy hours in the famous New York six-day race. In the sprints points were awarded, one for first, five for second, seven for third, nine for fourth, and ten for all other places, the team with the lowest total winning.

Goullet and McNamara finished with a total of 152 points, second place going to Eddie Madden and Jake Magin, who gathered 204 points. Oscar Egg, the Swiss star, and Francisco Verri of Italy, who were by far the most popular team in the race on account of their sensational riding from the rear, finished third with 239 points, and were given a bigger ovation than the winners. Fred Hill and Willie Hanley were fourth with 254 points, while fifth place went to Willie Coburn and Charley Piercey, who totaled 271 points. Of the thirty-one sprints ridden, Goullet won seven of them and McNamara six.

McGREGOR THE GREAT WINS.

Defeats Large Field in the Chanticleer at Charter Oak Opening.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 1.—McGregor the Great, Walter Cox's great trotter, defeated a field of seven horses in the Chanticleer, for 2:10 trotters, in the opening card of Grand Circuit racing at Charter Oak Park today. The best time was 2:07 3-4. Cox maneuvered his entry in front at the start of the first heat and he was never headed in that heat or for two following. Echo Direct, piloted by Brusie, took second place in each heat.

The 2:09 trot furnished the most thrilling finish of the day, when in the first heat Labe Riddell, Tara's Hall, and Gentry C. tore down the stretch neck and neck, less than a head separating the three trotters at the finish. The best time was 2:10, made by Tara's Hall in the second heat. Labe Riddell won the two other heats and the race.

Ante Guy was not in condition for the scheduled match race with Lu Princeton and Mabel Trask was substituted. Lu Princeton defeated the famous mare in both heats. The best time was 2:06 1-2. The track was fair, although muddy on the home stretch.

HOME ATHLETES VICTOR.

Betsy Head Playground Competitors Win Brooklyn Titles.

By a margin of three points the athletes of Betsy Head Playground gained the playground track and field championship title of Brooklyn yesterday in the Fall athletic championships conducted at the Betsy playground. The home competitors registered 30 points in the eleven events, which comprised the program, while the representatives of Bushwick Playground were second with 27. McKibben Park's athletes took up third position with sixteen markers.

The day's individual laurels fell to A. Braunstein of McKibben Park, who impressed the large crowd, which witnessed the sports, with a brace of victories. Braunstein scored his initial success in the 60 yard dash for boys weighing 115 pounds and under. He sprinted to victory in this event with a convincing burst of speed, which carried him over the line a comfortable margin in front of Howard Thompson of Betsy Head Playground. The time was 7 seconds.

Stepping out of his class Braunstein next competed in the 70-yard dash for boys weighing 130 pounds and under and showed his flying heels to a formidable field of rivals. The McKibben Park sprinter broke the tape a winner in eight seconds and left no doubt as to his superiority over the sprinters who opposed him. The points registered by Braunstein enabled his team to finish in third position. Frank Hall added five points to McKibben's total when he captured the running high jump for 115-pound competitors with a leap of four feet six inches.

Betsy Head's athletes garnered three victories and in one event accounted for all the points. This occurred in the 120-yard dash for 130-pound boys, when H. Gerry M. Fried and I. Weiner formed a procession over the line. Gerry's victory was the closest of the afternoon. He fought hard from the start to get through the large field opposing him and succeeded only when within a few yards of the finish line. He broke the worsted a winner by a matter of inches over Fried in 12 4-5 seconds.

Another procession was furnished in the 220-yard dash, unlimited weight class, but this time the athletes of Bushwick Playground were the actors. S. Miller won this event, and was followed by R. Smith and M. Karp, teammates. The time was 24 4-5 seconds.

A special open one-mile run for novices was conducted as an added attraction and attracted a large field of starters. The winner turned up in Harold Kooman, who covered the distance in 5:22 4-5, easily outdistancing Oscar Parrick of the Kings County A. A.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Novice hunters and saddle horses were featured in the first day of the Rochester Horse Show, displaying class enough to insure their being real contenders in the open field competitions. The biggest event of the day was the showing of ladies' harness pairs. The three old rivals of local shows, Miss Isabella Wanamaker, Miss Constance Vauclain, and Mrs. Loula Long Combs, appeared. Mrs. Combs driving Glenavon Orchid and Farina Regal of the John R. Thompson Stables. Miss Wanamaker won with Eve and Netherall's Pride, while the Thompson entry was in reserve.

Black Watch, of Woodin Farms, was the victor over fifty hunters in an open competition; Ennis Clare Farms' Ridgefield being in reserve. Mrs. F. P. Garvan's Silver Tips was a big winner in a Shetland pony class, not exceeding 46 inches.

A fine showing of Arabians appeared, W. R. Brown's Sinbad winning. C. L. Whiting's Nipissing captured the blue among novice lightweight hunters, and Ennis Clare Farms' Newburn took similar honor among the novice heavyweight hunters. C. L. Whiting's Dawn of Peace was best among the novice heavyweight saddle horses.

BLOOMINGTON WINS FLAG.

Leads Peoria by Twelve Games in Three-Eye League.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 1.—The Three-Eye League closed its twentieth annual championship season today with the Bloomington, Ill., club, the pennant winner by a margin of slightly more than twelve games. Peoria finished second, and Evansville, Ind., was third.

Both in attendance and in the sale of young ball players it has been the greatest season the league has had in ten years. Total attendance in the six cities has been close to 300,000, and already more than a dozen players have been sold to major and Class AA League clubs.

It is the first pennant the Bloomington club has won since 1903. Joseph Dunn of Springfield, Ohio, managed the team.

BOYER IS FIRST IN RACE.

Wins 225-Mile Motor Event Over the Uniontown Speedway.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., Sept. 1.—Joe Boyer, driving a Fontenac, won the 225-mile Autumn classic at the speedway here this afternoon. Boyer's time was 2:24:19 6-8, and his average was 94.6 miles per hour.

Roscoe Sarles was second and Louis Chevrolet, third. Boyer stopped on the 118th lap for two tires, losing first place to Tommy Milton, but regained the lead when Milton's car burned on the 189th lap. In the preliminaries Boyer set a new local record of 105.82 miles an hour.

PAULIST A. C. WINS CALEDONIAN GAMES

Hulsebosch's Victory in Two-Mile Run Captures Point Trophy for His Club.

A sweeping victory in the two-mile handicap run gave the representatives of the Paulist A. C. the point trophy at the sixty-third annual track and field meet of the New York Caledonian Club, held yesterday at Washington Park, Maspeth, L. I. The athletes of the West Sixtieth Street organization compiled the winning total of 25 points, six markers better than the score of the St. Christopher Club standard bearers, who finished second. The Morningside A. C. took third position with thirteen tallies.

Al Hulsebosch, veteran distance runner of the Paulist club, led his teammates in a procession over the finish line in the two-mile run. Wearers of the Winged P occupied the four point places at the end of the journey. Jack Costello was second, Pat Flynn, the scratch starter, a veteran of the late war, finished third, and Bob Spear took up the tail end of the procession. This accomplishment gave the club eleven points and an insurmountable advantage over the colored athletes of the St. Christopher Club, who held an early lead in the battle for the point laurels.

Hulsebosch's success, while clean-cut over the distance, nevertheless left something to be desired. Through an oversight on the part of the officials the race was not run over the full two miles. The track, supposedly measuring 220 yards to the lap, was found short by some 100 yards or more on two miles. The watches in the hands of expert timers disclosed this condition when the winner was clocked in 9:01 4-5. An additional ten seconds was plastered on these figures in lieu of the ground shortage, and the official time was announced as 9:14 4-5.

Hard Luck for Flynn.

When he breasted the worsted at the finish of his race Hulsebosch was exerting every ounce of his strength in a winning effort. He started with an allowance of 110 yards, and completed the run with an advantage of about eight yards on Costello. Flynn, running along smoothly, and apparently the freshest athlete on the track, was right at Costello's shoulder in third position. Many of the officials were of the opinion that Flynn would have captured first prize had the race been run over the full two miles, for the hardy Irishman was gaining ground with each stride in the closing stages of the race.

Hulsebosch went to the front soon after the mile mark had been passed and remained there, beating off the challenges of ambitious rivals to the finish. A field of twenty-five started in the race, but the majority retired at various stages of the run, until the final lap found less than a dozen in the battle for prizes.

A crowd conservatively estimated at 6,000 looked on and cheered the competitors to the echo as they strove for prizes. The track events were held over a trying cinderpath, which was unfavorably laid out and tested the endurance and stamina of the athletes. Part of the track was on an incline which produced a sort of cross-country effect to the races, and the width of the circle, or rather lack of width, interfered somewhat with the competition in the longer races. This was reflected in the half-mile novice run, in which a field of eighteen runners entered. The officials decided on two elimination heats with nine runners in each heat, thus forcing the successful competitors in the heats to run a mile because of the narrowness of the track. Despite the conditions, every race produced sterling competition. It was one of the most successful meets ever held by the old Scottish organization.

J. Hayden of the Paulist A. C. showed promising ability in taking the half-mile novice run. The Winged P wearer won the first heat handily from a field of eight rivals, and in the final displayed some of the craftiness of a veteran in annexing premier prize. For two laps Hayden raced off in front of his rivals and set a stiff pace. On the third lap, however, the young Paulist runner dropped back into third position and prepared for his final drive to the worsted. He made it when about thirty yards from the finish and, rounding the final turn, swept past W. Scott of the St. Christopher Club to victory by about five yards.

Weiman Judges Pace Poorly.

Eddie Weiman of the Morningside A. C. started with an allowance of fifty yards in the 1,000-yard run and set a stiff pace for a field of twenty-one rivals on the first two laps. The effort, however, burned up his vitality, so that when the test came Weiman closed up like a jack-knife and slid back into an obscure position as the runners scampered over the closing lap. Clarence Sherman of the St. Christopher Club finished strongly, winning by about seven yards from J. McAuley of the Knights of Antony.

Joseph B. Pearman of the New York A. C. started from scratch in a one-mile walk, but the Mercury Footer failed to redeem his allowances. I. Boskin of the American Walkers' Association made the best of a 55-seconds start and won handily. Pearman finished third, close on the heels of Louis Labowitz of the Pastime A. C.

In a handicap medley relay race Sydney Jackson gave the runners of the St. Christopher Club a commanding advantage on the first leg and the margin was maintained in successing relays despite the efforts of the Paulist A. C. and Brooklyn A. A. runners.

The day's activities were not confined to open A. A. U. competitions alone. Tests were conducted for exponents of Scottish dancing, bagpipe playing, and Highland dress, which attracted the undivided attention of the large crowd. Angus Fraser was the most successful competitor, scoring victories at bagpipe playing, open Highland dress, and closed Highland dress, and landing a second place in the sword dance.

LOCKHART DOUBLE WINNER IN MEET

Helps Queensboro Capture Manhattan and Richmond Playground Championship.

Athletes of the Queensboro Playground in East Fifty-ninth Street carried off the silver cup, emblematic of the public park playground championship of Manhattan and Richmond, in the annual track and field meet conducted yesterday under the auspices of the Park Department on the Sheep Meadow in Central Park. The Queensboro Playground competitors, led by Thomas Lockhart, a veteran middle-distance runner of the Yorkville Catholic Club, compiled a total of 30 points, leading the John Jay Park representatives by eight tallies. Tompkins Square Park finished third with 17 points.

Lockhart carried off the day's individual laurels and impressed a crowd of more than 5,000 with a brace of victories. The veteran Yorkville runner captured the 100-yard dash, unlimited weight class, in a stirring finish with Ernest Osborne, a teammate, who finished less than a yard back of the flying Lockhart. In the half-mile run, unlimited weight class, Lockhart again showed to advantage, and in this race the victory was more impressive. Lockhart took the lead shortly after the start and carried his rivals around at a stiff pace. He won by more than twenty-five yards in 2:37, being followed across the finish line by C. Earl of the Central Park Sheep Meadow.

P. Torracco of Thomas Jefferson Park attracted considerable attention by his performances in the field events. He captured the 8-pound shot-put with a heave of 42 feet 2 inches, and won the standing broad jump with a leap of 9 feet ½ inch. In addition to these victories Torracco carried off third prize in the half-mile run and fourth award in the running high jump. In the latter competition the Thomas Jefferson representative jumped 4 feet 7 inches. The winning jump was made by C. Kablitz of the Tompkins Square Playground, who crossed the bar at 4 feet 10 inches.

The meet attracted a crowd of about 6,000, and produced a number of exciting competitions on track and field. More than 1,000 athletes answered the call for entries and a majority of them competed for the prizes. This unusually large entry list necessitated many trial heats in the various races and provided an abundance of close finishes.

Ernest Osborne, runner-up for the metropolitan junior sprinting championship, scored the first victory for the Queensboro Playground when he romped off with the 75-yard dash for 125-pound competitors. This success, with the victories of Lockhart, and a number of other point placements, gave the Queensboro Playground athletes the championship title.

The Queensboro Playground representatives gained additional glory by capturing the baseball championship in the 95-pound division. The Queensboro nine defeated the Central Park Reservoir Oval clan by a score of 8 to 0 in this titular tilt, which went seven innings. In the struggle for the 115-pound title the Thomas Jefferson Park team downed Hamilton Fish Park by a margin of 8 to 6 in seven innings.

METROPOLITAN OARSMEN WIN THREE RACES IN MIDDLE STATES REGATTA

NEW YORK OARSMEN WIN ON SCHUYLKILL

Union Boat Club Crews Take Two Events and New Rochelle Captures Another.

KELLY SETS NEW MARK

National Champion Does Quarter Mile in 1:14 3-5 and Also Wins Senior Single Sculls.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—New York oarsmen showed fine form in the Middle States regatta held here this afternoon, winning the intermediate eight-oared shells, the intermediate four-oared gigs, and the quadruple sculls. The two former went to the Union Boat Club, coached by James Pilkington, and the latter event to New Rochelle, coached by George Van Vliet.

New York's Union Boat Club eight-oared shell crew, coached and rigged by Pilkington, the great rowing authority, covered itself with glory at the very beginning by winning the intermediate eight-oared shell race from the speedy combination of the Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia in the fast time of 5:09. The New Yorkers went right out from the shot of the gun and had the best of it by a quarter of a length at the trolley bridge, which is a quarter of a mile from the start of the one-mile Schuylkill course, over which the races were rowed. Union continued to gain until at the head of the island, which is a bit less than a quarter from the finish, they were one length to the good. Here both spurted and Pilkington's men drew out ahead a few feet more, gaining for themselves open water.

In the intermediate four-oared gigs, the Union Boat Club outrowed the Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia from start to finish. At the head of the island the Union men were in the van by more than a length of open water, and although they did not exert themselves, they added still more to the lead in the last quarter mile. The winning time was 3:09 and for Undine, 5:12.

New Rochelle in Hard Struggle.

George Van Vliet's New Rochelle quadruple scull crew copped the junior centipede race, but not, however, without a terrific struggle with the Arundels of Baltimore, coached by the former Columbia University mentor, Jim Rice.

Henry Penn Burke sent off four other crews with these two. They were the Crescents of Philadelphia, Potomacs of Washington, Vespers of Philadelphia, and the West Philadelphia combination. New Rochelle and Arundel were in a class by themselves, and the other four dropped immediately behind. The Baltimore quartet led to the head of the island and there New Rochelle gathered strength enough to push ahead and win by a bit of open water. These youngsters covered the course in the excellent time of 5:15.

Seigel and Froleich of the Lone Star Boat Club of New York were barely beaten after a hard race by Keller and Supplee, former University of Penn. 'Varsity men, rowing under the colors of the Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia. The New Yorkers were placed second in a field of six.

Kelly Hangs Up New Record.

In the quarter-mile dash the national champion, Jack Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, and George W. Allison of the Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia went to the start. Kelly was clocked in the record time of 1:14 3-5. This is the second time this season that Kelly has hung up new figures for the distance. The wind was favorable, and, rowing beautifully and sticking them in at the rate of forty-six at one time, Kelly won without apparent effort.

In senior championship single sculls Kelly, George W. Allison of the Undines of Philadelphia, and Walter Ringling of Vesper got off to an even start. Little George Allison crept into the lead, and at the trolley bridge was a quarter of a length to the good. Kelly, however, soon came up on even terms and was content to stay there for two-thirds of the distance before he let out a couple of links and shot ahead, winning from Allison by a third of a length. Ringling was a good third, despite the fact that he was tired out from winning the intermediate and association senior singles almost immediately before the start of the race.

Vespers Capture Senior Doubles.

In the senior double sculls, Jim Rice's crew, Allers and Scharfe of the Arundels of Baltimore, got the jump at the start over Kelly and Costello of the Vespers of Philadelphia, and went out into the front. However, the Southerners lead was short-lived, and before the trolley bridge was reached Kelly and his partner had this event tightly sewed up, and rowing well within themselves went to the finish easy, winners by nearly ten seconds. The times were 5:38 1-5 and 5:48.

Today's winnings give Kelly seventy-six victories earned in amateur races open to the world. This is a record in itself.

John Hoyle, former assistant coach to Charlie Courtney of Cornell University, brought up a four-oared gig crew from the Ariel Rowing Club of Baltimore, which won from the Malta Boat Club of Philadelphia. Hoyle's men got the best of the start, drew ahead and went under the trolley bridge a quarter of a length of open water to the good. After this it was an easy journey for the Baltimoreans, who won by a length of open water. The time was 5:53 1-5.

Senior eight-oared shells from the Undine Barge Club of Philadelphia, Union Boat Club of New York, and the Fisk Red Tops of Chicopee Falls, Mass., lined up in the order named, numbering from the west shore. This was the third race of the afternoon for the Union men and they were fatigued.

Undine caught the water first, closely followed by Fisk. The Union coxswain did not have his boat pointed properly and was faulty thereafter in his steering, which put the New Yorkers behind. A great fight started then between Undine and the Down Easterners. At the head of the island the Philadelphians had come up even, and during the finishing spurt drew half a length ahead of the Fisks. Union came in a creditable third. The winning time was 5:08 4-5.

FANTASIE HOME FIRST.

Beebe's Yacht Takes Atlantic Club's Event.

Yacht racing for the season of 1919 on Gravesend Bay came to an end yesterday afternoon with the annual regatta of the Atlantic Yacht Club. Before the war it was the custom of the club to always send the yachts that sailed in the annual regatta over outside courses. As there were no large boats on the lower bay this season, the Regatta Committee, made up of Samuel L. Finlay, Chairman, and Lieutenant John R. Brophy, decided to keep all the divisions inside of Norton's Point.

The wind was light and from the northeast when the course signals were set. It came from a quarter that is exceptional on the lower bay, and as a result the craft had a windward start for the first time this Summer. On the first leg, from Sea Gate to Bensonhurst, not only did the yachts have a head wind, but they also had to buck a strong head tide. As the wind was light and the tide was strong, the smaller classes found considerable trouble in reaching the first mark.

The wind kept hauling to the north and growing stronger as the afternoon advanced. Once around the Bensonhurst mark, the craft had a reach to Fort Hamilton and then a run back to Sea Gate. Ethel, the only starter in the first division of the handicap class, was disqualified for fouling the stake boat at the start. In the second division, Fantasie, the property of I. L. Beebe, Jr., again won on both actual and corrected time.

THE BEFIRST IS FIRST.

Wins Bayside Bee Class Race in Bayside Y. C. Regatta.

H. H. Clarke won the race for the Bayside Bee Class with his yacht, the Befirst, in a regatta over the course of the Bayside Yacht Club in Little Neck Bay yesterday afternoon. He steered his entry to victory over the short course 13 minutes and 10 seconds ahead of H. Gaines's Vespa. A fair northwest breeze greeted the nine yachts of the three classes that started.

F. W. Teves won another race with his yacht Neptune, of the Star Class, when it crossed the line ahead of some of the fastest yachts of that division in these waters. The Neptune is classified in Class B among the yachts of this type that are striving for the interclub championship, yet this entry, which finished second in its own class yesterday on Manhasset Bay, today defeated the yacht which won in Class A yesterday, the Aria. In fact, the best the latter could do was to finish third, second place being taken by J. R. Robinson's Big Dipper.

COMRADE FIRST OVER LINE.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 1.—Light and variable winds from the north made weather conditions ideal for sailing. When the yachts started over Indian Harbor's five-mile course this morning, A. G. Hanan's Comrade, sailed by John R. Johns, was the winner among the Arrow Class yachts. A feature of this race was the close finish between the Windward Second, owned by Richard H. Monks, and Clifford D. Mallory's Rani. The Windward Second was second, beating the Rani by seconds. The Snapper was only eight seconds behind The Hawk, which was fourth in the race.

RIVERSIDES WIN REGATTA.

Take 5 of 13 Events in New England Rowing Association Regatta.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge won five of the thirteen events in the New England Amateur Rowing Association's thirty-first annual championship regatta on the Charles River Basin today. Second honors went to the St. Alphonsus Association of Boston.

Canoe racing formed an important part of the day's card, the singles and tandem events going to the Crescent Canoe Club of Waltham, while Tatassi of Worcester won both the club four and war canoe contests by a slight margin.

GOLD CUP RETAINED BY MISS DETROIT III.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 1.—Miss Detroit III., flying the flag of the Detroit Yacht Club, successfully defended her title of speed boat champion in the final heat of the Gold Cup race on the Detroit River today from the Miss Detroit II. and Eleventh Hour, making the thirty miles at the rate of fifty-five miles an hour and the fastest 2½-mile lap at 58.4 miles an hour. The champion was pressed by the Miss Detroit II., which finished runner-up just 11 seconds behind. The Eleventh Hour, after running almost eight laps, twisted her shaft, lost the propeller wheel, and was forced out.

Excellent water conditions favored the racers. Both the Miss Detroits early in the race showed that they possessed greater speed than the Eleventh Hour, and it was seen that they would fight it out for the Aladdin Cup and the gold trophy, the former going to the series winner and the latter to the winner of the fastest heat. Miss Detroit III. outstepped her rival and won both trophies.

No New Record Made.

The time did not create a new world's record, as expected. The Miss Detroit II. made the thirty-mile course at Minneapolis in 1917 at the rate of 56.5 miles an hour, and had two five-mile laps, the second and third, on the same day at the rate of 59.43 miles an hour.

The first lap of the Miss Detroit III. was the best of today's race and was made in 2:34, or at the speed of 58.4 miles an hour.

"G. A. R." Wood drove the Miss Detroit III., W. E. Sanborn piloted the Miss Detroit II., and Paul Strasburg was helmsman of the Eleventh Hour.

In winning the gold cup the Miss Detroit III. becomes the national and also the world's power boat champion of 1919, as Europe will not resume its championships until next Summer. The races here were conducted with the sanction and under the rules of the American Power Boat Association, the governing body for North America.

In addition to winning the gold cup, Wood also won the Aladdin trophy, offered for the fastest thirty-mile heat. He retains both cups for a period of one year. It was also the seventh victory in eight starts that Wood has made since he took up hydroplane racing two years ago.

First Lap the Fastest.

The first two and a half miles was the best of the laps, Wood covering it in 2:34, averaging 58.2 miles an hour. He made his next in 2:40, averaging 57.5 miles an hour for the first five miles. By this time he had opened up a wide gap and was content to just keep out in front and be sure of victory. Sanborn, in the Miss Detroit II., came up rapidly, but was 11 seconds behind at the finish. Sanborn's best lap, the eleventh, was made in 2:39, an average of 56.5 miles an hour.

The hydroplane that Wood defeated today was one with which he raced two years ago at Minneapolis and defeated the Miss Minneapolis. However, only the hull remained, as, like the Miss Detroit III., she was equipped with a Liberty "12" engine.

Wood, driving the express cruiser G. A. R., Jr., also won the 45-mile express cruiser handicap for The Detroit News trophy. Wood did not finish the final fifteen-mile heat, as he had engine trouble, but his margin of points, having won the two previous heats, gave him first place. The results:

Boat and Owner.	Time.	M.P.H.
Miss Detroit III., G. A. Wood	32:43	55

Defeat Kings County by Narrow Margin in League Match.

Batsmen had all the worst of the argument in their struggle with the bowlers in the Metropolitan League championship games between the Brooklyn and Kings County Cricket Clubs at the Prospect Park Parade Grounds in Brooklyn yesterday, with the result that both sides were put out for less than fifty runs. Brooklyn was returned the winner by the narrow margin of 11 runs, after dismissing Kings County for the small total of 38, of which J. D. Maclennan, former Crescent A. C. soccer star, made 14.

The best bowling average stood to the credit of Harry Rushton, who dismissed five batsmen for 15 runs, but E. J. Atwood of Kings County was a close second with five for 19. Other good bowling figures were those of H. Clarke, Brooklyn, three for 21, and J. D. Maclennan, Kings County, four for 29.

LARCHMONT RACING SEASON IS ENDED

Mistrel, Joyant, and Rowdy Win Feature Events of Holiday Yachting Program.

LARCHMONT MANOR, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The racing season of the Larchmont Yacht Club came to a close today with the annual Autumn competition for the cups of the organization. An excellent fleet came to the starting line off Larchmont Breakwater. Being a holiday, the start was advanced, and as a result practicly all of the classes made early finishes. Although arrangements had been made to start the O class and schooners, not any of the larger boats were here, with the exception of two of the forty-footers of the New York Yacht Club. They had a good race, with Philip Mallory's Mistrel again beating Shawara, the property of H. Wesson, over a twenty-mile course.

As neither had a class competitor, the Class P sloop Joyant raced and defeated the schooner Miladi, the property of George W. Scott. They went over a 15¾-mile course, as did also the thirty-footers of the New York Yacht Club and several of the other larger divisions. The winner among the thirty-footers was Rowdy, the property of Charles Belsky, which had won on Saturday at Oyster Bay. Rowdy also beat Young Miss, a Buzzard Bay one-design boat, in a match race.

The Long Island Sound schooner Allure, the property of E. P. and J. W. Alker, won in its division, as did Aquamarine in the Jewel class. Among the Stars the winner was Altair, the property of E. V. Willis. Sirene won in the Larchmont interclub class. In Class U the winner was Tern. In a special race between the New York Yacht Club thirty-footer Adois and Zingara, another Buzzard Bay boat, the winner was the former craft.

The sailing canoes that have been racing on Long Island Sound over the holidays again had a race, the winner being Leo Friede in his Mermaid. Among the sailors was Ralph D. Britten of Canada, who raced against Friede for the International Cup a half dozen years ago.

He is an all-Ohio athlete and captained football and baseball and basket ball teams at the university.

WOMEN SWIM TO RECORD.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 1.—A new American relay swimming record for 400 yards was created here this afternoon by the quartet from the Women's Swimming Association of New York in the aquatic carnival conducted at Sea Side Park, under the auspices of the local Volunteer Life Saving Corps.

The New York team, consisting of the Misses Ethelda Bleibtrey, Charlotte Boyle, Leslie Bunyan, and Alice Lord, defeated a crack team from Philadelphia, and in doing so hung up a new record of 4 minutes 59 seconds. This mark eclipsed the best previous figures by seven seconds. The latter mark, 5 minutes 6 seconds, was made by the Philadelphia Turners' quartet, composed of the Misses Olga Dorfner, M. Arklie, Elizabeth Becker, and Helen Pennypacker, last year.

The victorious quartet led from start to finish of the race and won by the commanding margin of about twenty yards. At no time did the Quaker City swimmers threaten the advantage of the New York four. The Philadelphians were clocked in 5:13 4-5. Miss Boyle, swimming anchor on the successful team, plowed her way through the water in the fast time of 1 minute 8 1-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second slower than the American record for the 100-yard swim.

Miss Boyle was the individual star of the meet. In addition to her performance in the relay event, she captured a 100-yard handicap swim from scratch, and, with Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, won a doubleoar race at 50 yards. Miss Boyle might have added another triumph to her day's activities but for an unfortunate misunderstanding which resulted in her downfall. In a 500-yard handicap swim Miss Boyle was the scratch starter and seemedon the verge of overtaking Miss Elinore Uhl of Philadelphia, after covering 400 yards.

Miss Boyle unwittingly stepped out of the water, thinking the race completed, while her Philadelphia rival, who was allowed a start of 24 seconds, continued on the last leg of her journey. Before Miss Boyle realized her error Miss Uhl had increased an advantage of one foot to more than three yards. The New York star, deeming it impossible to overcome this disadvantage in the final 100 yards, did not again take to the water, and was placed second.

SMITH MAKES NEW RECORD ON RANGE

A. E. F. Lieutenant Sets World's Mark by Scoring 56 Bullseyes at 500 Yards.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 1.—Lieutenant R. E. Smith, of the A. E. F., today established a new world's record for a 16-inch bull's eye at 500 yards, when he made a consecutive string of 56 bull's eyes shooting in the Swiss miss and out match. He actually scored 58 bull's eyes as both of his sighting shots were centre shots. Last week Lieutenant Smith won the National individual trophy match at the navy rifle range at Caldwell, N. J.

Dr. W. G. Hudson was second with 21 bull's eyes, and Sergeant Lester V. Hansen, of the A. E. F., was third, with 22 bull's eyes.

The Spencer Match, shot at 1,200 yards, will be concluded tomorrow, as darkness overtook five marksmen before they finished their shooting today. Lieutenant Robert A. Grant and Captain Eugene Mullahy of the United States Marines are tied for first place with 67 perfect shots each out of a possible 75.

The Columbia Trophy team match was won by the 6th New Jersey Infantry with a total team score of 1,567; the 3d Battalion, State Militia, was second with 1,425; the 2d Battalion, State Militia, was third with 1,382, and the 6th Battalion State Militia was fourth with 1,358.

The National Guard Trophy team match was won by the 3d Battalion State Militia with a score of 1,425; the 2d Battalion State Militia was second with 1,382, and the 6th Battalion, State Militia, was third with 1,258.

Corporal Raymond Coulter, of the Marine Corps, won the Hayes Match with a score of 119. At the opening day's session of the annual tournament at the Sea Girt ranges today. The match was ten shots at 600 yards. A condition of the Hayes Match was that if a contestant made a perfect score at ten shots he was to keep on shooting until he missed. Coulter made a perfect string of bullseyes for twenty-three shots and a four on his twenty-fourth shot. Major Stuart Wise, of Massachusetts, was second, with 89 points, making seventeen bullseyes and a four on his eighteenth shot.

The Meany Match, ten shots at 500 yards, perfect scores at ten shots to keep on shooting until a miss, was won by Sergeant Morris Fisher of the United States Marines, who had a total of 129, making twenty-five bullseyes and a four. Second place in this match went to James Loughlin of Staunton, Mass. He made a score of 109, with twenty-one bullseyes and a four. Other high scores were made by Lieutenant James Coppedge, of the A. E. F., 84; J. W. Hessian of the New York Athletic Club, 79, and Sergeant Theodore Crowley of the A. E. F., 59.

TO AFFECT 100,000 PERSONS

Chairman Luce in Letter to Law Committee Reviews Work of Past Four Months.

Supreme Court Justice Robert L. Luce, Chairman of the Law Committee of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, in a letter to the one hundred members of the Law Committee yesterday, reviewed the work accomplished in the campaign conducted during the last four months in combating the rent profiteers. He referred to the estimate based on the settlements made during the past four months, to the effect that the eight months ending Dec. 31, will show adjustments of rent differences affecting 20,000 families or 100,000 persons, with a net saving to them of over a million dollars.

After thanking the members of the Committee for their work and urging them to attend as many as possible of the hearings being held in the Municipal Building and the borough halls of the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens, Judge Luce continues:

"I desire to call the attention of the members of the Law Committee to the fact that the Mayor's Committee is receiving full support from every department of the City Government, especially the office of the Corporation Counsel, the Police Department, Department of Health, the Controller's office, Park Department, Tenement House Department, Fire Department, Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Department of Public Charities, Board of Standards and Appeals, Tax Department, Department of Plant and Structures, and the Office of the City Chamberlain. The Municipal District Courts, city marshals, and all borough and county officials are behind the work of the committee.

"The Federal Government, through the Department of Justice and other departments, is fully co-operating with the committee in its work.

"The committee is also receiving the full support of the press and all public spirited citizens and good government organizations. The Community Councils of National Defense, of which George Gordon Battle is Chairman, are co-operating with the committee.

"The Governor of the State of New York and his State Reconstruction Commission and the State Legislature at Albany have all co-operated with the committee to the fullest extent.

"It now only remains for the Congress at Washington to co-operate with the committee by passing remedial rent profiteering and housing laws.

"Members of the Law Committee, by attending the hearings of the committee, qualify themselves in an educational way for public speaking on the rent profiteering and housing problem confronting the Nation, and it also qualifies them for writing articles to the newspapers in order to acquaint the millions of newspaper readers with the evils of rent profiteering and housing shortage and the possible remedies through enabling legislation at Washington.

"The committee is also under obligations to Samuel Untermyer and Frank Moss for valuable work as counsel to the committee.

"As Chairman of the committee, I wish to commend the splendid work of Charles A. Strauss, Secretary of the Law Committee, and Edward F. Bennett, assistant corporation counsel, and Mr. Walter S. Kennedy, who is now in full charge of the Law Committee work at headquarters, Room 1220 Municipal Building, and in full charge of all hearings in the Borough Halls and elsewhere. Examiner Charles A. Goldsmith assists as examiner at all hearings, under direction of Assistant Corporation Counsel Kennedy. Assistant Corporation Counsel Tarbox rendered valuable service to the committe in an advisory capacity."

OSSINING HONORS HEROES.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Sept. 1.—Chauncey M. Depew and Brand Whitlock, Minister to Belguim, were the speakers at the homecoming reception to soldiers and sailors of Ossining today. The exercises took place on the grounds of Mount Pleasant Military Academy after a big parade in which returned soldiers, sailors, marines, the firemen, fraternal, commercial, patriotic, and other organizations marched.

Charles Youmans was parade marshal. Lieut. Col. Howard Kipp led the military division in which about 700 veterans paraded. Thirty-four trees were planted in memory of thirty-four Ossining residents who died in the service during the war with Germany.

"You know it is really astonishing," said former Senator Depew, "what a brief period there is in American history. I remember my grandfather, who was a soldier in the Revolution, talking to me about it. Here you have before you a man who has talked with the soldiers of the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, was in the civil war himself and talked with the soldiers of the Spanish War, and now to the soldiers of this war."

LAFAYETTE AND MARNE DAY.

Double Anniversary to be Observed with Three Celebrations Saturday.

Three celebrations will be held in honor of Lafayette's 162d anniversary and of the battle of the Marne in this city next Saturday. Formal exercises will be held at City Hall at 11 o'clock with Judge Victor J. Dowling presiding and Ambassador Jusserand as the guest of honor.

Representatives of many foreign nations and many distinguished guests will attend the ceremony. The speakers will include ex-Governor Myron T. Herrick, who was Ambassador to France at the time of the battle of the Marne in 1914. Captain de Saint Seine, French Naval Attaché, will accompany the French Ambassador Baron Finley, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, will head the British delegation, which will also include Major Gen. Bethell, British Military Attaché, and Lieut. Col. Norman Thwaites, Assistant British Provost Marshal, will represent the British Army.

An important celebration will be held in the afternoon at the Lafayette Monument in Union Square. Dr. William T. Manning and Dr. Lawrence F. Abbott will be the principal speakers. The other official observance will be at the Joan of Arc Statue on Riverside Drive. Dr. George F. Kunz is arranging the details of the meeting.

Ideas That Pay!

Plenty of chances for new ideas.

But which ideas will pay?

Experiment—if you have time. Guess—if you can afford to take a chance. But do you know the source of tested, tried, proven ideas that hundreds of thousands of business men are using?

Stop at the first newsstand for a copy of SYSTEM, the Magazine of Business. There you will find a vast fund of ideas—ideas on sales, costs, collections, handling men—ideas on how to be more efficient in your personal work, and how to deal skillfully with everyone about you. You simply apply to your own problems the experiences of other business men.

Here are eight of 76 ideas that have paid—yours in September SYSTEM:—

A Cure for Strikes

EIGHT thousand men were quitting their jobs every month when General Brice P. Disque was sent to the Northwest to increase spruce production. He found the entire lumber industry infected with the strike fever virus. But he turned undependable lumberjacks into enthusiastic workers, increased production 2,700%—and absolutely cured the strike fever. September SYSTEM tells of the plan under which, during the armistice period, workers accepted several reductions in pay!

"Doesn't Charge Enough"

YOU don't charge enough," said other retailers. Your policy would ruin any store." But the M. L. Parker Company increased profits by leaps and bounds.

When so many concerns are accused of profiteering these days, it's refreshing to read the successful experience of a firm which bases prices on actual costs. In September SYSTEM A. E. Simmons tells all about this unusual policy.

Stop Losing Sales!

WHY are sales lost? [illegible] R. Miner, of the Baird Machine Company, says there are eight reasons. He has worked out a plan that makes them surprisingly apparent. Five years' test has proved his analysis the answer to many important problems of sales, advertising and competition. In September SYSTEM.

Cured a Sick Business

OVERNIGHT C. O. Frisbie became president of a business he knew nothing whatever about. It was "on its last legs." A pair of blue overalls taught him the cause of the disease and its cure. Then he took to the road with his salesmen and learned how to develop his market. Result? Ask Dun's for the standing of the Cornell Wood Products Company. Read this inspiring experience in September SYSTEM.

Why Pay Men when They're not Working?

WOULD you keep a full force on your payroll during business depression? James C. Boyd, first vice-president of Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co., Inc., tells in September SYSTEM why his company willingly sustains big losses during slack seasons.

How this policy develops loyalty and better workmanship—how it keeps a smoothly-working organization, is good news to any employer with large labor turnover.

He Makes Salesmen out of Blacksmiths

IF you can take a blacksmith and make a salesman out of him, you know how to build a 100% sales organization"—says Wm. H. Britigan. The toughest possible test of his method was Jim Strong, a lanky, uncouth Westerner. Today Jim is one of Mr. Britigan's best salesmen. In September SYSTEM Mr. Britigan tells how to train, develop and get the biggest possible results out of a sales organization.

Getting the Men to Suggest Ideas

BILL" or "Jim" often know more about everyday cost-absorbing routine than the man in the front office. Why, then, are so many suggestion systems failures? Success and failure of getting ideas from men are discussed in September SYSTEM with surprising frankness.

How Much Work? How Much Play?

THERE is a limit to the amount of good work anyone can do"—says Charles H. Sabin, President of The Guaranty Trust Company, in September SYSTEM. The story of his success gives a rare insight into the personal efficiency methods of the man who heads the largest institution of its kind in the world.

Quality and mileage, however, can only be attained provided the proper organization, ample resources and fair policies are behind the tire.

The company is operated under the executive management of men who have been successful in the rubber industry for over thirty years. It has, in addition, secured the services of able men who have had years of experience as department heads for some of the largest tire producing companies in the country.

Its facilities include a plant of thoroughly modern character, located on a property covering about four acres. The floor space alone comprises about a quarter million square feet.

All these features have a direct bearing on the finished product.

Statements of a tremendous daily output or an enormous number of dealers may be true enough; they may be proven realities—but they do not add one iota to the quality of a tire or the mileage you demand from it.

Remember, the Madison Tire & Rubber Company will make the BEST tires rather than the most tires. Remember the facilities and resources behind this purpose. Then, try one Madison Tire—either cord or fabric—and you'll soon fall in line and use

STAGEHANDS NOW RUN THEATRE STRIKE

STOP "MIKADO" OPENING

Labor Demands Said to Stand Between Settlement by Artists and Managers.

BIG PICTURE HOUSE CLOSED

Actors' Equity Association Goes On with Plans for Opening More Theatres.

Musicians and stagehands who were to assist in the presentation of "The Mikado" at the Shubert Theatre last night went on strike at 7 o'clock, despite the fact that the performance had been sanctioned by the Actors' Equity Association. Jefferson de Angelis, a member of the Equity Council, was to have been featured in the production, and the failure of the theatre to reopen was therefore looked upon entirely as a move of the stagehands and musicians.

Fortune Gallo, manager of the English Opera Company, which was to have given the performance, appeared before the Equity Council several weeks ago and informed them that he was not a member of the Producing Managers' Association. Mr. Gallo said last night that he had obtained the consent of the musicians' and stagehands' unions to give a performance.

He was informed on Saturday afternoon that he could not give a performance, but this notice was later withdrawn and the matter held in abeyance until yesterday. Last night the musicians failed to report, and the stagehands, who came to the theatre, did not enter the stage door. Hundreds of people who had bought tickets received their money back. The engagement of the Gallo Company was to have been for two weeks.

Neither the heads of the Stagehands' Union nor of the musicians' would comment last night on the sudden order. The turn of events was generally taken as further evidence that it is the stagehands and the musicians, rather than the Actors' Equity Association, who are now seeing to it that the Producing Managers' theatres remain dark, and that from them no quarter need be expected.

One unconfirmed story last night, but which gained some credence, was to the effect that President Shay of the stagehands has now become the absolute czar of the theatre, and that it is he alone who is preventing a settlement between the actors and managers. According to this story the managers were willing to settle on Sunday on the basis of Equity recognition and a continuance of the open shop, but Shay is said to have declared that the actors must demand a closed shop or the stagehands would not return to work. A stand of this kind would centre the fight definitely as one between the Producing Managers' Association and the American Federation of Labor, since the managers have announced repeatedly that they believe the closed shop would mean the death of the theatre.

One Picture House Closed.

The strike spread to the motion pictures earlier in the day, when the Bronx Opera House, at Third Avenue and 149th Street, was prevented from opening with "Yankee Doodle in Berlin." The house, it was said, was closed solely because it is operated by Cohan & Harris. It is not thought that the closing is indicative of a general move to close up picture houses.

Although Equity members generally gave it as their opinion that the managers were "weakening" and that another week would see the end of the strike, the association went ahead with the broadening of its production plans and leased the Lenox Theatre at Lenox Avenue and 111th Street and announced that it would open a show there next Monday. Last night the Equity offered their third program at the Lexington Theatre, and in the afternoon they gave the first of five performances at the Second Avenue Theatre. A performance was given also at the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night, and the Thomashefsky Theatre will be opened tonight.

Another Equity ball will be held in St. Nicholas Rink next Monday night, under the auspices of Mrs. De Wolf Hopper, and still another is planned for Sept. 11 in Audubon Hall, Broadway and 166th Street.

The Actors' Fidelity League last night declared that its membership is now more than 2,500, and that a demand had come from Chicago for several hundred application blanks. Eight or nine theatrical companies are on strike in that city. The Fidelity announced also that a fund has been created to assist those members who might be in need of it.

Wilson Replies to Warfield.

"In most of the arguments presented by the members of the Fidelity League one finds almost indecent exposure of childlike intelligence. David Warfield seems not to have heard of such things as the right of collective bargaining, the right of an individual to be represented by counsel, or that autocracy of employers and corporations is a thing of the past.

"Only a few days ago a pompous member of the Fidelity League held forth interminably on the utter impossibility of managers granting such terms. Suddenly, to what must have been to the pompous member's humiliation, the master's voice was heard, and, behold, the terms were not only granted, but bettered!

"This yielding was due to no managerial consideration of the actor or of appreciation of what David Warfield, continuing to speak largely, calls the 'terrific disturbance in the profession.' Not at all. It was wholly inspired by the desire to attract much needed members to the thin ranks of the Fidelity League, (sometimes called the Fidoes,) and in furtherance of the futile plan to disrupt the Actors' Equity Association.

"Mr. Warfield's concern over the obstinacy of 8,000 members of Equity insisting upon the recognition of their association, is strikingly illustrated by the story of the lone, hold-out juryman who complained of the pigheadedness of the other eleven jurors."

A meeting of the Motion Picture Players' Association took place last night at Geneva Hall in West Forty-fourth Street. This is the new organization of motion picture extra people. It is purposed to demand a minimum salary of $5 a day, and immediate application will be made to the American Federation of Labor for a charter.

The Hippodrome, now an Equity theatre in every respect, reopened yesterday with a holiday matinee, after losing five performances owing to the strike.

SIX BOSTON HOUSES CLOSED.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 1.—The arrest of actors and actresses who joined the general walkout which closed six Boston theatres just before the curtains were to be rung up for the holiday matinees this afternoon will be sought tomorrow by the managers of the local theatres. Attorneys for threatre men will charge that the players violated court injunctions when they joined the walkout.

The strike was a 100 per cent strike, even the Colonial Theatre, where it had been announced that Raymond Hitchcock and His "Hitchy Koo" Company would go on, being closed. Every company quit, forcing the managers to announce to patrons after orchestral overtures that there would be no performance and that money would be refunded. The musicians and stage mechanics joined the actors immediately, and the Tremont, Plymouth, Shubert, Wilbur, Colonial and Park Square theatres are affected.

The Equity Association enrolled many new members this afternoon, and it was announced that another organization meeting would be held tomorrow afternoon at the Crawford House.

The Producing Managers' Association said tonight that only thirty-one actors were actually on strike, and that the other 171 went out because they were forced to. This was denied by the members of the Equity Association, who said that in many of the theatres the companies are organized 100 per cent.

Strike Closes Providence Theatres.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 1.—Three legitimate theatres due to open here today were unable to do so because of the actors' strike. The Shubert-Majestic, the Mayflower, Klaw & Erlanger's new theatre here, and the Providence Opera House, are theatres affected.

Legal War on Packers Begins in Chicago Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—With the return today from Washington of Charles F. Clyne, United States District Attorney, it became definitely known that subpoenas had been issued for the complete records of the "Big Five" packers in about forty cities in which the packing companies have offices. The records, together with testimony of witnesses, will be presented to the Grand Jury which convenes tomorrow, it was said.

District Attorney Clyne has held three conferences with Attorney General Palmer in Washington preparatory to launching the Government's legal attack on the packers. It was reported tonight that Oliver E. Pagan, indictment expert in the Attorney General's office, would arrive in Chicago tomorrow to aid in preparing the cases for the Grand Jury.

MAGYAR CABINET OFFERS RESIGNATION

BUDAPEST, Sept. 1, via Vienna, (Associated Press.)—The Government of Premier Friedrich has offered to step down and out. It is reported that the Premier has offered the Entente the resignation of the entire Cabinet, his Ministry to be succeeded by one under Franz Heinrich, the present Minister of Commerce.

This new Cabinet, according to the reported plan, would include Jules Peidll, the former Premier; Paul Garami, Minister of Justice in the Peidll Cabinet, and Karl Payer, Minister of Home Affairs in the same Cabinet; Martin Lovassy, Foreign Minister in the first Friedrich Cabinet, and Stephan Szabo, Minister of Small Farmers in the present Friedrich Ministry.

Certain conditions are attached to the offer, according to authoritative sources. The Entente, it is declared, must recognize and negotiate with the new Government as representing the constituted authority of Hungary and permit it to organize a new army and police force. It is stipulated likewise that the Rumanians shall gradually leave the country, and that while they remain they shall discontinue acts such as the disarming of Hungarian officers and the requesitioning of supplies.

The Rumanian Government on Friday issued orders prohibiting all Hungarian officers and men from carrying arms, including swords, and also prohibiting officers, except those attached to the Rumanian provost forces, from wearing uniforms. The order likewise provides that officers must not leave the city, and makes it compulsory for them to report weekly to the Rumanian authorities.

Reports reached London Sunday from Vienna and Berlin that the Allies had presented an ultimatum to Premier Friedrich demanding his resignation.

COUNTRY EXPELS CITY FOLK.

Austrian Rural Districts Fear for Winter Food Supply.

VIENNA, Aug. 31, (Associated Press.)—Pathetic accounts are being received of the hardships and sufferings endured by Viennese families, who are endeavoring to return to the city because of provincial decrees of expulsion issued in various parts of the empire.

Alleging that the presence in the country districts of the city's Summer crowds endangered the Winter food supply, and also that these people were willing to pay any prices for food and conveniences, which had caused an advance in the cost of living, the provincial authorities issued arbitrary expulsion decrees regardless of the Central Government. In Salzburg the time limit expires Monday. After that day visitors will be fined 5,000 crowns each and forcibly put on board trains for points outside the city

Tonight the trains coming toward the capital are crowded. Many children on board them have been separated from their parents. The railway stations in the country districts are jammed with persons desiring to get away. There also is an exodus of visitors from Tyrol and Upper Austria. The Central Government has taken no steps to ameliorate the situation.

GERMANS ADMIT BALTIC GRAB POLICY

HIS DUPLICITY REVEALED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—There is an almost complete absence of news regarding the further course of events in the Baltic Provinces, where the German troops have refused to obey orders to evacuate. No further official communiqués have been issued, although tonight a semi-official message appears in the press to the effect that the German Government abides by its determination that its orders must be carried out, and that steps are to be taken to insure this.

The message also says that in Government circles the opinion is held that the attitude of General von der Goltz toward the Government has been loyal, and, therefore, the question of his recall has not been considered.

Several messages have appeared, however, about the troops attempting to convey a reassuring impression as to their attitude. Thus, although it is admitted by practically all Socialist and Liberal sections of the press—and the militarist press has been ominously silent about the whole business—that the troops have committed excesses and done nothing to make Germany loved in the occupied territories, yet they are made to appear more as a happy-go-lucky army, intent on retaining what it has, than anything else. We are told that they are having an easy, comfortable life in Lettland and do not wish to give it up. We are told that they know nothing about politics and are concerned only with their own prospects of employment after demobilization. We are told that they enjoy their present life so much that they are beyond even their officers' control and are not to be depended upon to take part in a counter-revolution.

Von der Goltz's "Political Army."

But this, even if it is true, is only camouflaging the real question now at issue, which is, What was the political motive behind the formation of this army, and what political motives are now prompting its leaders? For that everything about this army is political is now admitted by the whole Liberal press. The Vossische Zeitung says the reasons for the Baltic adventure had nothing to do with the desires of the soldiers, but were of a purely political nature, and; going much beyond its ostensible object of repelling the Bolshevist invasion, the whole Baltic expedition, according to this journal, was simply a continuation of the Baltic policy initiated during the war and an effort to interfere with the self-determination of the Baltic peoples.

Vorwärts, too, which is a Government organ, is among those who reproach the Baltic policy as being "all wrong." It says the initial mistake was made when the Baltic junkers were allowed to raise a volunteer army for the defense of the Baltic provinces. This army was recruited simultaneously with the imperial army, so that confusion existed in the public mind regarding the status of the two armies, and the junkers were able to use their army for purposes which did not serve the interests of the German Government.

Indeed, it is now openly admitted that the whole policy of this army, as conducted by von der Goltz and his junkers, was simply one of land-grabbing, and we find even such a paper as the Berliner Tageblatt seriously advising the troops to evacuate the stolen land only because its retention will lead to civil war.

But a peculiarly nasty twist is given to the story by the publication in the Freiheit of a secret army order issued by von der Goltz July 31 last. According to this order he was openly advocating to his command service with the Russian counter-revolutionary armies operating in the Baltic provinces. By itself this seems harmless, but it simply means that von der Goltz was ready to don any uniform which would secure for him possession of the lands which he craved.

The official Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, while not denying the authority of this army order, interprets it as meaning that individuals can accept service under the Russian counter-revolutionary Generals, but that this is no part of Germany's policy. As to that, it may be commented that von der Goltz is admittedly beyond his Government's control and would be prepared to negotiate on his own account.

Perhaps it is the knowledge of this Russian complication which makes clear to all sections of the press other than the militaristic how dangerous and involved is the situation which has been created by von der Goltz's scheming and makes them write with apprehension as to what may ensue.

Meanwhile it is right to add that all reports go to show that the Baltic Barons have been acting largely on their own account, that the German Government will not support the revolting troops in their insistence on any rights in Lettland, even under the first treaty with the Ulmanis Government, and that the press, both in Berlin and the provinces, is wrathful against von der Goltz.

ZIONISTS VOTE FOR AMERICA

Want Next World Congress Held in This Country.

At the final session of the regional conference of the Zionist Organization of America, which was held yesterday at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 East Eighty-fifth Street. resolutions were adopted recommending that the next World Zionist Congress be held in America. This will be the first time for the World Congress to be held here, those in the past taking place in Switzerland, The Hague, London, and Berlin.

After a three hours' discussion it was also decided that the American delegates to the World Congress bring before the Congress a resolution demanding that the three Zionistic parties be assimilated with the General Zionist Organization. At present there is the Zionist Organization with a membership in this country said to be 156,000; the Poale Zion, the socialistic body, with an alleged membership of 8,000, and the orthodox wing of the Zionist Movement, called the Mizrachi, whose membership was said to be 11,000.

It was resolved, also, that after the political status of Palestine shall have been determined, Jerusalem, instead of London, shall be the seat of Zionist administration.

All the decisions, however, which were reached at the New York conference are not final, but are recommendations to the twenty-second annual convention, which will take place at Chicago, beginning Sept. 12.

Great Pacific Fleet Enters Bay Through Fog; San Francisco Sees Review by Secretary Daniels

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—The Pacific Fleet emerged from a bank of fog from its anchorage outside the Golden Gate and passed into San Francisco Bay today, where Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels reviewed it. The fog which enveloped the bay early in the day lifted somewhat.

The sky was overcast while the review was in progress. Hundreds of thousands, who lined the shores from the Golden Gate to the foot of Market Street, were able, however, to see the manoeuvres.

Half an hour before the first vessel was sighted Secretary Daniels and his party were piped aboard the battleship Oregon, while the guns of Fort Scott boomed out the Secretary's salute.

By this time a long line of the fleet—coming single file—was approaching the Gate, led by the dreadnought New Mexico, and with the dreadnoughts Mississippi and Idaho following at intervals of 700 yards.

The next group, commanded by Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz, was composed of his flagship, the dreadnought Wyoming, and the dreadnoughts Arkansas, New York, and Texas following, preserving the distance of 700 yards between ships.

Vice Admiral Clarence S. Williams, on his flagship, the predreadnought Vermont, led the third group, which also included, in this order, the predreadnought Nebraska, the armored cruiser North Carolina, the predreadnougt Georgia, and the cruiser Seattle.

Rear Admiral Henry A. Wiley commanded the fourth group in his flagship, the cruiser Birmingham, and the destroyers Ludlow, Crane, Anthony, Williams, Chauncey, Sproston, Lamberton, Breese, Ramsey, Radford, Gamble, Montgomery, Rathburne, Buchanan, Elliott, Waters, Dent, Philip, Yarnell, Tarbell, Wickes, Woolsey, Lea, Ward, Boggs, Walker, Thatcher, Crosby, and Palmer. They proceeded at intervals of 350 yards.

The long line of warcraft crept through the Golden Gate, past the Presidio military reservation and the once impregnable old Fort Point, whose thick brick walls the engineers of civil war days built to withstand the solid shot of enemy frigates; past the modern forts, Miley and Winfield Scott, on the San Francisco side of the harbor, and under the long-range guns of Forts Baker and Barry, hidden in the golden brown hills on the opposite shore, where Mount Tamalpais stands sentinel to the Golden Gate.

Each ship was "dressed" for the event. The Admiral flew his flag—a field of blue with four white stars—from the foremast, and the largest and newest American flags from mainmast and stern. The flagship of the Vice Admiral bore a blue flag with three white stars from its foremast, and those of the two Rear Admirals, blue banners with two white stars, from the corresponding masts. The other vessels flew the national ensign at foremast and mainmast and stern.

TAKE TWO TOWNS FROM BOLSHEVIKI

Poles, Letts, and Lithuanians Advance, Capturing Many Prisoners and Guns.

RED SUCCESSES IN SOUTH

Moscow Soviet Reports Capture of Three Towns and 1,300 Men from Denikin.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The Poles have captured the fortified town of Bobruisk, 85 miles southeast of Minsk, an announcement by the Polish authorities today says. The Poles took 500 prisoners. They used tanks for the first time. The enemy retreated to the eastern bank of the Beresina River, destroying the bridges.

Lettish and Lithuanian troops have driven the Bolsheviki from Novoalexandrovsk, 15 miles southwest of Dvinsk, according to a statement issued by the Lettish Press Bureau at Copenhagen. It is said that the neighborhood has been cleared of the Bolsheviki, and that a large number of prisoners and guns have been captured by the Letts and Lithuanians, who are advancing.

Major Gen. William E. Ironside, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces on the Archangel front, in an official report on the recent fighting for the village of Emptsal says that Russian troops, supported by two companies of the Royal Fusiliers, and many Australians, attacked the Bolsheviki on the Archangel-Volga front, south of Obozerskaya on Aug. 29.

"The attack was completely successful," the statement says. "All our objectives were gained, and all the enemy's gun positions and the village and station of Emptsa fell into our hands.

"After the capture of Emptsa the Bolsheviki counter-attacked with several armored trains, regaining the village. A further attack by the Royal Fusiliers recaptured the village, which is now in our hands. Aircraft co-operated in the attack, bombing barracks and armored trains.

"So far ten guns, including a 6-inch howitzer, many machine guns, and 500 prisoners have been captured. Our casualties were light."

An official statement issued by the Bolshevist Government at Moscow, and received here by wireless, declares that Kharkov, 115 miles northeast of Ekaterinoslav, on the front of General Denikin, is preparing to surrender without fighting.

The statement claims that the Bolsheviki have occupied Sugja, 90 miles northwest of Kharkov, Obojan, 80 miles north of Knarkov, and Balykley. In the region of Orenburg the Bolsheviki captrred a sharpshooter battalion of 800 men and a Cossack regiment of 500, the statement asserts.

As a result of negotiations, which are in progress between General Denikin and General Petlura, the Ukrainian commander, it has been decided that the Ukraine shall abandon its political independence, although retaining its position as a State, another Bolshevist wireless message from Moscow asserts.

An all-Russian Constituent Assembly to be called, it is declared, will decide upon the final form of government for the Ukraine.

ADRIATIC SOLUTION WAITING ON WILSON?

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 31.—The Italian Parliament will reopen without Tommaso Tittoni, Minister of Foreign Affairs, being able to be present to give a full statement on the Adriatic situation; but hope is expressed that he will return before the Chamber adjourns and direct the discussion of the peace treaties with Germany and Austria. It is understood here that the Adriatic solution now awaits only the approval of President Wilson, which it is hoped will reach Paris this week. Meanwhile Parliament will not lack questions of vital importance to discuss. Chief among them are the projects for new taxation and a forced loan, which seems to be favored by the majority of the Cabinet.

Another subject which causes most heated discussion is the inquiry into the Caporetto disaster; but there is growing opposition on the part of Senators and Deputies to giving fresh official publicity to unpleasant revelations, especially while Italian aspirations abroad remain ungratified. The Socialists and Neutralists, however, are determined to have Parliament make further investigations and inflict punishment.

For the same reason these parties favor the project, attributed to the Minister of War, for the transformation of the General Staff by detailing officers to serve on it temporarily. This is naturally opposed by all the pro-war parties, because it might be interpreted as an expression of disapproval of the General Staff, which lost in the war 20 per cent. of its officers, coming immediately after the infantry, which lost 25 per cent.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The Chamber of Deputies today passed a bill providing for the Chamber to be officially represented next Saturday at the laying of the cornerstone of the monument at the mouth of the Gironde River which is to commemorate the first landing of American troops on French soil.

President Poincaré and the Presidents of the Chamber and the Senate will attend the ceremony.

CURBING AGITATION FOR RHINE REPUBLIC

French Assert That Ludwigshafen Rioting Was Not a Revolt.

TWO OFFICIALS ARE SLAIN

MAYENCE, Sept. 1, (via Basle.)—The French authorities of occupation state that the German newspapers have published erroneous reports concerning the disorders of Friday at Ludwigshafen. They say that there has been no revolt, and that the disturbance, which resulted in the death of the postmaster and another postal official, was due to exaggerated nervousness on the part of the local police.

COBLENZ, August 30, (Associated Press.)—French troops are in complete control of the situation at Ludwigshafen, where an attempt to establish an independent republic in the Palatinate appears to have come to a head early yesterday.

According to German newspapers, a number of adherents of Dr. Haas of Landau attacked the post office at Ludwigshafen and after a four hours' fight succeeded in overpowering the resistance of postal officials. In the course of the rioting, in which hand grenades are said to have been used, the postmaster and another postal official were killed.

The movement for a Palatinate republic has been planned for some time under the leadership of Dr. Haas, the scheme not being related to that of Dr. H. A. Dorten of Bonn, who headed the agitation for the creation of a Rhenish republic last June. The followers of Dr. Haas are seeking to make the Palatinate independent of Prussia. They are also accused of desiring to sever the Palatinate entirely from Germany.

Dr. Dorten has recently been entering the American occupied area. It was announced today at the headquarters of the American forces in Germany that not long ago he made a speaking tour in this area without the permission of the Americans, who since last December have refused to allow the holding of political meetings within the occupied zone or any other action tending to cause a feeling of unrest among the civilians.

Dr. Dorten came to army headquarters at Coblenz at the request of intelligence officers and the army authorities in charge of civil affairs. He was informed that the policy of the Americans not to permit any propaganda or speech-making advocating a change in the government of the territory now under military control, or any action of a similar nature, remained unchanged. The American authorities told him that if the people of the Rhineland desired a change in the government the question should be taken up with the Peace Conference.

Dr. Dorten has met discouragement in most other sections of the Rhineland, but it has been reported to the army by the Germans that despite this he is persistently keeping up his efforts, traveling from place to place accompanied by members of his staff. Reports from various sources are that he appears to have plenty of money to carry on his activities.

A Berlin dispatch received on Saturday night stated that Frenchmen in the garb of civilians had promoted an insurrection at Ludwigshafen, the dispatch quoting a telegram to the Lokal-Anzeiger to that effect. The attack on the post office was said to have been made for the purpose of telegraphing abroad the news of the establishment of the republic.

BRITISH HUNT SINN FEIN SHIP

CORK, Ireland, Sept. 1.—The authorities have learned over the week-end of another attempt to land arms in Ireland, and all the coast guards and patrols are warned to keep a lookout for a coasting steamer bound from London to Ireland.

Yesterday morning a light cruiser at sea arrested the steamer Hampshire Coast, and having put a detachment of marines aboard, brought her to Cork. She was escorted by submarine chasers, who have guns trained on her as she is being unloaded. Soldiers with fixed bayonets and machine gunners are guarding all approaches to the vessel.

A detective officer interviewed this morning said the authorities had reason to believe that munitions had been imported into this country from London, and last week definite information was received that a vessel left the Thames on Aug. 27 on a gun-running exploit. The detective, however, suspects that the Hampshire Coast is the wrong vessel, as the gun-runner has a black funnel with a red band, whereas, the captured vessel's funnel is black with red and white markings.

EXPECT DULL DAY IN PRIMARY ELECTION

LA GUARDIA IS CONFIDENT

Candidates for nominations in the various districts of the city where there are primary contests wound up their campaigns last night and waited for the result of today's voting. The polls will be open between the hours of 3 and 9 o'clock P. M. Except in the districts where regular organization candidates are being opposed, little interest has been manifested by the voters, and it was predicted by the party leaders that this year's primary election will be one of the quietest since the direct primary law went into effect.

The only city-wide contest is between Fiorello H. La Guardia, Representative in Congress, and former State Senator William M. Bennett for the Republican nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen. Neither candidate did any campaigning beyond a few statements issued by Mr. Bennett, and Mr. La Guardia was so convinced that he would beat his opponent that he left town yesterday and will not return until Thursday. Bennett has announced that he expects to carry the boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond, to break even in the Bronx, and obtain enough votes in Manhattan to insure his nomination. Mr. La Guardia's friends said they would be greatly surprised if Bennett polled 10,000 votes in the entire city.

Principal Contest in Brooklyn.

The principal contest is being waged in Brooklyn by Democratic insurgents who hope to defeat the ticket selected by John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of that borough. The insurgent forces are being led by James E. Finegan, candidate for Surrogate against General George W. Wingate. The anti-McCooey forces have a complete county ticket in the field and in a number of Assembly and Aldermanic districts, and the campaign for the past two weeks has been lively. The insurgents' fight is to force McCooey out of politics. If their ticket is unsuccessful today the fight against the Democratic boss will be carried into the November election.

Another contest that is drawing particular attention in Brooklyn is the fight being waged by Representative Reuben L. Haskell against the two regular Republican designees for the Kings County Court bench, Judge Norman S. Dyke and Frederick S. Martyn. Haskell is the Republican leader of the 23d Assembly District and is running on a "wet" platform.

Few Contests in Manhattan.

Manhattan has few contests either in the Republican or Democratic parties. In the Democratic Party there are three contests for the nomination for Assemblyman and five for the Board of Aldermen. The Republicans have one Assembly and two Aldermanic fights in the borough. In the First Municipal Court District in Manhattan, which takes in practically the entire lower part of the city, a lively fight has been waged for the Democratic nomination for Justice. There are three vacancies in this district and the organization candidates are John Hoyer, William J. Moore, and W. J. A. Caffrey, Assistant District Attorney. Joseph J. Sheehan, an independent Democrat, has been making a hot fight for the nomination. He is pitted against all three of the regulars and is said to have a good chance of winning against Caffrey.

There has also been a lively fight in the Republican ranks for the nomination for Municipal Court Justice in the Fifth District. The district extends from Sixty-fifth Street to 110th Street, west of Central Park. The contestants are Abram Ellenbogen, former Assemblyman; Alexander U. Zinke, and Mark H. Ellison. The former two have been organization Republicans for years, but Ellison is considered an insurgent.

Soldier Fighting Organization.

One of the most interesting Assembly fights among the Democrats has been going on in the Fourteenth District, where Alderman Thomas M. Farley is backing Lieutenant John V. Flood to beat Edward F. Healy, the regular organization selection. Lieutenant Flood was severely wounded in the Argonne Forest, having been with the 77th Division. The hottest fight among the Republicans for an Assembly nomination has been in the Nineteenth District, in the negro belt of Harlem. There the Rev. Richard M. Bolden, a negro clergyman, is opposing Miss Marguerite Smith, a school teacher, for the nomination.

The only real contest of interest in Queens County has been for the Judgeship in the Fourth Municipal Court District, where the Republicans have a chance of electing a Judge. There are three candidates for the nomination, Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Hazelton, Elmer Ashmead, both of Jamaica, and Ernest C. Hunt of Flushing. There is also a fight in the Republican Party in Queens for the Aldermanic nomination in the Sixty-third District between C. A. Post, the present Alderman, and D. L. Dayton.

In Richmond County Assemblyman Thomas F. Curley has made a determined fight against the machine controlled by Matthew J. Cahill and J. Harry Tiernan, County Judge. Curley is a candidate for the nomination for District Attorney, and he characterizes the ticket put up by Cahill and Tiernan as the "traction ticket," because the local public utility interests are said to be behind the "regulars" and against the "insurgents."

The Socialist Party in all boroughs is split wide open because of the fight between the Right and Left wings for control. The fight is between the conservative and radical elements and is bitterest in Brooklyn. The Democrats and Republicans "fused" in several districts before the Socialist split materialized, but with the division in their ranks the regular organizations do not fear the Socialist menace as they did two years ago. In Manhattan Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes is the candidate of the Left wing for Alderman, being opposed by Mrs. Rachel Panken, wife of the Municipal Court Justice. Algernon Lee, leader of the seven Socialists in the Board of Aldermen, is also being opposed for the nomination in his district.

Two Tammany Contests.

Tammany has but two leadership fights in the primaries, and both are in Manhattan. Ross D. Williams, who has been an independent member of the organization, is being opposed in the Ninth District by Alderman Thomas A. Williams, while Meyer Greenberg is trying to oust Solomon Goldenkranz as leader in the Eighth Assembly District.

The primary election is Statewide, and outside of New York City polling places will be open from 7 A. M. to 9 P. M. Only voters who enrolled in the party of their choice at the general election in 1918, together with returned soldiers who have taken advantage of the special enrollment privilege provided for them, are entitled to vote today. Beginning today and continuing until Sept. 11 independent voters may file with the Board of Elections or with the Secretary of State at Albany independent nominations for city, county, judicial, and legislative offices. Such nominees, if their petitions contain the requisite number of signatures, will have their names printed on the official ballots for next November. Few women voted in the primaries last year because of the lack of contests in either party, but leaders of both parties will watch their vote this year to see if they vote for the organization candidates or develop independent tendencies.

Cardinal Mercier in Paris On His Way to Thank America

PARIS, Sept. 1. (Associated Press.)—Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, on his way to the United States, arrived in Paris this evening. He will leave for Brest tomorrow morning and will take passage on the steamer Agamemnon Wednesday.

The Cardinal said that he was somewhat fatigued, but cheerful in anticipation of his visit to America.

"It will be one of the happiest moments of my life when I set foot on American soil," he said, "and personally thank the Americans for what they have done for my country."

The Belgian Ambassador to the United States, Baron Emil de Cartier de Marchienne, will accompany the Cardinal. He said to the correspondent:

"I am glad to return to America. Every Belgian has two countries now—his own and America."

The Ambassador, who has been in Paris five months as a member of the Belgian Peace Delegation, is returning to his post with his bride, who was Mrs. Hamilton Cary of New York.

ALLIES ARE SEEKING HOOVER'S GUIDANCE

Increasing Eagerness Shown to Enlist His Further Services in Mid-Europe.

FRENCH ARE MOST ANXIOUS

But British Are Also Believed to Want His Aid on League of Nations Lines.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—While denying the French press report that he recently accepted an important new post at the request of the allied and American Governments, Herbert Hoover's associates admit that considerable efforts have been made to persuade him to postpone his departure for America. This, it is declared, is impossible, but one gets the impression that should the American Government put a new European appointment in Mr. Hoover's way after his return home he might accept it.

A curious feature of the situation here is that the greatest eagerness to enlist European reconstruction is now being shown by the French, despite the fact that the activities of French agents in Rumania are generally considered to be at least partially responsible for the state of affairs at Budapest, against which Hoover threw the full weight of his opposition.

Coupled with recent appeals for a better understanding between France and America which have appeared in the Temps, the Journal des Débats, and the Echo de Paris, whose "inspiration" by the French Foreign Office is notorious, this demand for Hoover looks as if the French had realized that they had been working on the wrong track and had reached the conclusion that action on League of Nations lines, directed by a single strong personality like Hoover's, offered the only solution of the mid-European imbroglio, with which the Supreme Council finds it increasingly difficult to deal.

The British, particularly Alfred J. Balfour, are believed to hold a similar view, and in both French and British circles there is a growing conviction that the continuance of present methods will result in nothing but trouble and disaster. As matters stand, the Budapest situation is far from satisfactory. Storm clouds are gathering between Serbs and Rumanians. The problems of Thrace and Fiume are unsettled. Montenegro is a welter of revolt and cross-intrigue. There are danger-signals in Teschen and German-Polish Silesia. The position in the former Turkish Empire grows daily more serious. And, worst of all, there is no definite policy regarding Russian Bolshevism, and no united decision by the allied and associated powers as to how it should be treated.

Meanwhile Germany seems drifting toward a final struggle between the forces of reaction and revolution, and so great is the confusion in men's minds in France and England that they urge that one or other party be supported, just as their own political convictions dictate. Thus, a few days ago the Echo de Paris, the most anti-German newspaper in France, came out with a suggestion that the Allies back "Germanism" against Bolshevism, although the writer was apparently well aware that the Germanism referred to meant the very militarist spirit that the Allies fought to crush.

More logically, the French Socialists favor the Spartacides, but their support involves the wholesale co-operation of the Russian Bolsheviki and their compeers in every country for the establishment of the international proletariat whose rule has been so destructive in Hungary and Russia.

In the midst of European confusion and lack of leadership is it surprising that people here are looking more and more for a strong man like Hoover, whose single-minded direction of food relief has been an oasis of efficiency in a desert of muddle and incompetence, to conduct them back to real peace and make the League of Nations something more than a Utopian dream?

BRITISH ARREST CHIEF SEEKING FRENCH HELP

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The Temps today tells of the arrest by the British in Syria of Moujdeb Bey, Chief of an important group of Bedouins, who had been highly considered by the British, who regarded him as their friend.

While before the American Commission recently, says the Temps, Moujdeb asked for the protection of France. He declined to withdraw the request and started for Beirut to consult the French High Commission. The British, according to the newspaper, tried to prevent Moujdeb from taking a train for Beirut, and he got aboard only through the insistence of the French officers accompanying him.

Later, it was asserted, the British took Moujdeb from the train at a station, warning the officers that no resistance would be tolerated. The cause for the arrest, as given, was that Moujdeb had been guilty of armed aggression.

The Temps says that the French High Commissioner had asked for the release of Moujdeb, but that the result of the request is unknown.

FRENCH NOW ASK AID TO REBUILD

CHANGE IN PUBLIC OPINION

TASK TOO BIG FOR THEM

Would Take Without Help Ten Years to Rebuild Homes and Factories Alone.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—There is a radical change of opinion among business and professional men and manufacturers in Northern France concerning the need of outside help, notably American, in the work of reconstruction in that region. A year ago, when several American engineers, architects, and builders came to France hoping and expecting to participate in the reconstruction, they received a cold welcome, being made to understand that it was the desire of France to have all reconstruction work done by Frenchmen. That also was the policy of the French Government. But now, at the end of a year, it is realized that help from other countries is needed.

This new realization that there is too much work for Frenchmen to do it all alone will be expressed and emphasized at the session of the States-General representing all the departments of northern and eastern France, to be held at the Sorbonne next week. Now it seems to be the desire that American engineers, architects, and builders come, not to take jobs away from native members of their professions, but to co-operate with them.

That idea is expressed by Hector Franchomme, one of the chief manufacturers of Lille, who will represent that city at the Sorbonne sessions. His plant was almost totally destroyed, the damage to his factory buildings amounting to 2,000,000 francs. He has received in reparation only a quarter of a million, and that is far above the average.

So France alone is not even beginning to meet the needs of the situation in a financial way. If all the money needed were available there would still be such a lack of material and of skilled engineers and architects that making a real beginning would be impossible.

"We have lost in destroyed buildings alone," says Captain Franchomme, "10,500,000,000 francs' worth of property. Our full capacity for new construction before the war was only 1,500,000,000. Now, with lack of material, labor and money, it is much less than that. So, if we try to do this work alone it will take us more than ten years to restore conditions as they existed prior to 1914 in this one item of rebuilding destroyed homes and factories. We must have cement—many thousands of tons of it—from America, also building hardware, steel, wood and household furniture. Our French Government must be the guarantor of our bills to Americans for these things, furnishing bonds as security.

"But we need your professional skilled help working right with us here in France as much as we need your material. But I fear that the Americans who have already left us will not turn back. They leave us too quickly. These American friends who have helped us so much in the distress of war are going without helping us repair the ruins, but we understand why. Their help was at first rejected. It was because our Government wished to protect French industry and enterprise, thinking we could do all alone. The experience of the last year has proved the impossibility of that.

"For example, we have for a village totally destroyed perhaps one architect or surveyor and one stone mason. They are helpless in the face of the task that must be done. Let your American architects, surveyors, and engineers come to the rescue, not to work by themselves as our rivals and competitors, but as collaborators. In such a manner only can France restore herself."

SAYS GERMANS FACE CALAMITY IN WINTER

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—The productiveness of all branches of German industry has declined at an alarming rate, the official bulletin of the Majority Socialist Party, says in a recent issue, and the German people will not be able to survive unless the rate of production begins to rise.

"It is useless to search for a scapegoat in the present economic crisis," says the bulletin. "The fact is that the whole industry of Germany is ailing, and unless it rapidly improves the German people will freeze and starve during the coming Winter."

The publication calls on the Government and the employes to join in an effort to bring about such labor and wage conditions as will be productive of the maximum effort for all concerned.

Addressing a largely attended meeting at Osnabrück, Dr. Gustav Stesemann, the National Liberal leader, said that an economic crisis in the coming Winter was threatening. He called for patriotic action in the abandonment of all considerations of party politics and for unity among the thoughtful elements of the people, from the Social Democrats to the Conservatives, for the purpose of averting calamity.

The Controller of Exports and Imports has appointed special commissioners at Munich, Stuttgart, Karlsruhe, Cologne, Königsberg, and leading cities in other sections of Germany to aid in expediting the movement of imports and exports through shortening the incidental formalities. The commissioners are to act in a consulting capacity with industrial and commercial interests desirous of getting in touch with foreign markets.

LEIPSIC, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—One of the notable features of the first after-the-war Leipsic fair, which opened today, is the absence of the substitutes and makeshifts upon which German industry so largely depended during the time it was shut off from supplies of raw materials.

LABOR DAY THOUGHTS.

Organized labor issues Labor Day statements which are sound in sentiment, even if erratic in methods proposed for realization of its aspirations. Mr. MORRISON, the Federation's Secretary, says that the organized workers will continue their efforts for the country's safety, "though certain other elements of our citizenship have abandoned this plea in their desire for material gain, regardless of the effect on the nation's life." The "elements" thus referred to are named and denounced by the American Alliance for Labor, through the statement of Mr. HUGH FRAYNE: "Bolshevism is an impossible doctrine. If the workers are not to receive social and economic justice in any other way than through a revolutionary movement that would destroy government, then it is best that the world should cease to be."

There are no better safeguards for the future than unity against Bolshevism and first thought for universal interests rather than class interests. On that platform all can unite, except only that minority which has no right to impose its will on the majority. The test of loyalty to the sentiments thus announced by and for organized workers comes in the behavior toward details, such as the Brotherhoods' plan for the nationalization of railways and the United Mine Workers' plan for the nationalization of the mines. These are only examples of a general policy of nationalization which it is difficult to distinguish from Bolshevism, even though those making the proposals themselves denounce Bolshevism and have different intentions. If our organized workers are true to their Labor Day sentiments, they will subordinate their will to that of the majority, and not insist upon nationalization policies because of their conviction, however honest and fixed, that nationalization is not Bolshevism and is good for those who think it ruinous. Assuming that nationalization is as desirable as the Bolsheviki contend that Bolshevism is, it would still be true that neither ought to be imposed upon those disliking it by methods of domination and duress. That is surely true of nationalization, regardless of its merits and without awaiting further demonstration of nationalization's disastrous results.

The reason why organized workers ought to take that view is that it is not possible for them to retain their organization through the trying process of distributing the benefits. As surely as the organized workers insist upon the only definite proposals by them for saving the country by the democratic organization of industry they will split like the Socialists in all countries, or like the British labor reformers, from whom the idea of nationalization is borrowed. The country can be aroused and united only upon questions affecting all citizens; that is, upon rights and duties of all toward all.

Organized labor is not now fighting famine or any other universal enemy of mankind. Organized labor's Labor Day thought is that "Life's comforts must be graded upward in the future." So say all of us. But the comforts must be produced before they can be distributed, and labor has been too much inclined to withdraw its contribution toward production before the method of distribution can be agreed upon. The first thing is to preserve the assets. If American labor thinks otherwise, it will proceed with the new policy of going into politics on questions of economics. Such questions do not yield to political treatment. American labor has believed this until now. American labor should hold true to its tried and approved methods because of the disorganization which has overtaken British trade unionists. They are sending missionaries over here to find support in their dissensions. They will inflict their troubles upon us rather than cure their own. The American way is for citizens to look out for their own fortunes, and to support their Government rather than look to Government for support, knowing that Governments produce no profits or goods.

TODAY'S PRIMARIES.

Primaries following Labor Day are likely to be neglected by citizens prone to let others do the voting for nominations. Therefore it should be impressed upon the careless that the duty of today is more urgent than usual. There are to be upward of 150 contests for party nominations in this city, and some of them are of the first importance. In Brooklyn there will be a pitched battle between Democratic insurgents and the followers or machine of JOHN H. MCCOOEY. It will be fought out in almost all of the Assembly and Aldermanic districts, and the regular ticket for county offices will be under fire, too. The effort to retire Boss MCCOOEY is said to be well organized.

In the Republican ranks in Brooklyn there will be a lively fight by Representative REUBEN L. HASKELL against Judge NORMAN S. DIKE and FREDERICK S. MARTYN, candidates for the Kings County bench. Representative HASKELL refused to vote for the Federal prohibition amendment, and on this account the Anti-Saloon League charges that he is backed by the liquor interests, a form of attack which he has denounced as unwarrantable. Between State Senator WILLIAM H. BENNETT and Representative F. H. LA GUARDIA, a veteran of the war, there will be a sharp contest for the Republican nomination for the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen. Each aspirant claims victory in advance.

Tammany has some local opposition to its tickets, but Justice NEWBURGER has declined to make a contest on the issue of his rejection by the organization. In Richmond County there will be three candidates in the field for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney. Manhattan is the scene of another three-cornered fight for the Republican nomination for the Fifth Municipal Court Justiceship, and the winner should have a good chance of election. In the Socialist Party there is bitter dissension in all boroughs between the Right Wing and the ultra-radical Left Wing. It promises to be an unusually strenuous primary day in the city.

A VALUABLE AIRPLANE TEST.

The New York-Toronto air race, in which no less than 30 contestants finished, after flying more than 1,000 miles, will give a much-needed stimulus to aviation in this country. In fact, it was one of the most successful tests of the airplane ever made. The superlative cannot always be used with safety, but it is doubtful whether Great Britain or France can furnish a record so satisfactory and so productive of practical experience. Lieutenant B. W. MAYNARD, the "speed winner," averaged 134 miles an hour and for a short stretch flew at the rate of 176 miles an hour. He was easily first in swiftness of flight, Lieutenant H. H. GEORGE, second on the list, taking nearly an hour longer to make the round trip—to be exact, 55½ minutes. What is particularly noteworthy about Lieutenant MAYNARD's achievement is that his motor functioned at about 1,825 revolutions a minute all the way, and no adjustments were needed. That is to say, his Liberty engine was as near perfection as human skill could make it. The plane, a De Haviland-4, was American built. A great triumph for the De Haviland type of plane and the American Liberty motor was this so-called air race.

It seems to have been established that the De Haviland-4, which has an enviable reputation in France for battle work, is in the van for commercial use. Of the eight machines that led the list for speed, seven were of this type, a Le Pere finishing in sixth place; and of the thirty airplanes that made the distance between the two cities both ways, twelve were De Haviland-4s and one a De Haviland-9. The German Fokkers, of which two were in the race, did not distinguish themselves. It would have been pleasant to record a fine performance for Colonel WILLIAM C. BARKER, the one-armed Canadian ace, who for sentimental reasons used a Fokker, but he finished twenty-seventh, meeting with mishaps due chiefly to the weather. Another Fokker, piloted by Captain C. W. COOK, finished eighteenth. Several of the foreign-built machines did well, but were not prominent at the last.

It is to be observed that the De Haviland-4 was one of the types of machines recommended for commercial purposes in the exhaustive report of the British Parliamentary Committee on Civil Aerial Transport, the others being the Handley-Page, the RE-8, and the Sopwith "Pup." In Great Britain the Rolls-Royce engine is the only serious rival of our own Liberty. It was with a Rolls-Royce in a Vickers-Vimy that the non-stop Atlantic flight was made from Newfoundland to Ireland. There will always be partisans of airplane motors as there are partisans of automobile engines, and Americans have every reason to be proud of their Liberty. A searching test between it and the Rolls-Royce would be illuminating, and there may soon be held a true international competition in the air.

It was to be expected that the New York-Toronto race would be mainly a military show; there were only three or four civilians in it. Most of the military aviators were regular army men. It is rather curious that the winner should be a bespectacled divinity student turned soldier who is going back to his classes in the seminary.

The question of primacy in speed having been settled, there remain to be determined the really more important factors of reliability and efficiency. It is true that commerce is interested in the speed of airplanes to be used for transportation, but security is of no less importance, and if airplanes are to be adopted for pleasure speed must take second place. Here again comes in the need of comparisons between American and foreign makes of planes and motors. If there was any doubt of the stability of American machines, it has been resolved by the New York-Toronto air race, which was flown in about the worst weather that could be encountered, with an insignificant number of accidents and only one injury to an aviator, a broken arm.

THE LABOR CONFERENCE.

The counsels of moderation which the President addressed to the railway workmen had the country's hearty approval. The announcement made in his Labor Day message that he is to call a conference "of representatives of labor and of those who direct labor" will have equally wide approval. It is time for taking counsel, a time when those who can speak with authority as representatives of employers and employed may well sit down together to consider present problems in which they have a common interest and in which the interests of the whole people were never greater.

The most urgent problem of all is this great question of demonstrating to employed and employer alike that their interests are one. It is an old controversy and will not be settled by one conference. But if reason rules, and she is visibly reasserting her sway, a long step will be taken by making it plain that the radicals and social revolutionists who are so much to the fore just now are not authorized spokesmen of labor. No man has greater interest in this demonstration than Mr. SAMUEL GOMPERS. For years Socialist agitators have been seeking to destroy him, to remove him from that responsible post where his leadership of labor has been so wise and so fruitful of advantage to wage earners. They have put forth plans and policies which times without number he has publicly denounced as dangerous and destructive. Against his enemies he has the President's aid, he has the sound opinion of the whole country. The Washington conference ought to strengthen his position.

There will be endless speculation concerning the President's allusion to the work of the conference, which he says "will discuss fundamental means of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing." The hope will be universal and sincere that the conference may be fruitful in discovering means for bettering the relations of labor and capital. The suggestion that the conference is to discuss means for "putting the whole question of wages upon another footing" is as interesting as it is baffling. The largeness of the plan, or hope, arrests attention. If an alternative to the wage system is to be sought in some plan for sharing profits, it may be predicted at once that labor would reject it. No plan of that nature could be worked out that in present conditions would not reduce materially the gains of labor. It cannot be supposed that the Amalgamated Street Railway men would consent to surrender their wages or any part of them for a share in the profits of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the Interborough Company, or the New York Railways lines for the simple reason that under the present scale of wages and expenses there are no profits.

That is an extreme illustration. The refusal of the men to accept a promise of profits in place of actual wages would be no less firm in the case of the majority of the industrial concerns of the country. To find a substitute for the wage system is an undertaking so large that success can only come through industrial and social revolution, and for that wise leaders of labor are not prepared.

MR. PLUMB.

It is unfortunate that Mr. GLENN E. PLUMB of the Plumb Plan brings neither rudimentary knowledge nor ordinary obvious common sense to his excursions into political economy and finance. His address to the Organized Railroad Employés at Richmond reminds one of "Coin" HARVEY's free silver dissertations. He broiders untenable assumptions with passionate rhetoric. What must be thought of the intellectual content of a man who asserts that "the financial manipulations of Wall Street and other money centres have watered the stock of Europe, and have resulted in a universal inflation of values"?

Everybody in Mr. PLUMB's audience knows that the United States had to borrow enormous sums, impossible before the war, to carry on the war, to create the vast machinery, agricultural, industrial, military, naval, the use of the banded resources of the nation which modern war requires. What had to be done here had to be done on a larger or a smaller scale by every country actively involved in the war, and to some extent even by some neutral countries.

This gigantic inevitable inflation of credit, followed by higher prices, while production dwindled or practically ceased in great regions of the world, and the primary destination of production was military, grew before the eyes of every man that has eyes. Mr. PLUMB, whose gift is for oratory, not facts, cries that "the major campaign of the powerful and selfish forces that have devitalized the industry of the world still pushes forward recklessly and relentlessly, driving civilization to destruction." This is in the best argent manner of 1896. Evidently the Curse of Gold and the Money Power are still working iniquity. Does Mr. PLUMB imagine that what he calls "our financial autocrats" caused the war? Only on that ludicrous supposition, once favored by friends of Germany or other American opponents of our entrance into the war, could his own supposition have even a phantom and fictitious justification.

If Mr. PLUMB had ever observed or read anything actual about finance, he would have known that our banks and bankers, his "financial autocrats," presumably, have an earlier and a deeper dread of inflation than anybody else. The first symptoms of it alarm them.

Mr. PLUMB's qualifications may be further judged from these sentences:

> Men cannot increase their productivity in a system which bestows the profits from a greater effort upon non-producers. In other words, the industrial and financial system in which we live, the modern economic State, is run for the benefit and profit of a special class—the class of investors or non-producers.

That is, the men whose ability, intelligence, and thrift have enabled them to accumulate the capital which creates and develops industry, the prime and precedent instrument without which there can be no production and no wages, are non-producers, born to consume the fruits of other men's labor, cumberers of the ground. The railroad Brotherhoods are full of these investors, these "non-producers." After all, perhaps it is not unfortunate that Mr. PLUMB has these Alice-in-Wonderland notions. The men whom he is trying to indoctrinate with them must know what nonsense he is talking.

TAKING NO THOUGHT FOR THE MORROW.

Those Senators who propose to postpone the day of peace between the United States and Germany, either by amendment or rejection of the Treaty—both proposals come to the same thing—act as if they had given no consideration whatever to the consequences. Amendment is tantamount to rejection, so far as the effect is concerned; it is rejection unless all the other countries, Germany included, accept our amendments. That, like frank rejection, will reopen the whole question. The work done at Versailles will all have to be done again, in no such favorable circumstances for us, and indeed for the allied Powers.

Either amendment or rejection will leave us indefinitely in a state of war with Germany. Rejection would necessitate our arranging a separate peace with Germany, and she would certainly be encouraged to demand new conditions. Amendment would come to the same thing unless the other Powers consented to it. If some of them accepted and some rejected it, there would be two sets of peace treaties, with Germany joining the group whose terms were easiest.

If, in trying to negotiate a separate peace with Germany, we should fail, or if Germany should reject an amended treaty consented to by the other nations, there would be only two ways of enforcing our demands, by blockade or by war. The first is out of the question. The American people would never consent to the starving of German civilians after the war was over, merely because a faction in our Senate had led the country into an impasse. As for war, we have disbanded our army. We should have to appeal to France and Great Britain, who bore the brunt of the first war, to begin the fighting again, this time for us, or rather for the Republican Party.

We sent an army to Europe, and then we sent a peace delegation headed by our President. The army and the Peace Treaty came back to America together. We promptly disbanded our army, and now a Senatorial faction is endeavoring to destroy the Peace Treaty, either in the direct way proposed by Senator KNOX or in the indirect way proposed by the Committee on Foreign Relations. How much longer do they think the American people are willing to rest under war conditions that are being removed by other nations, and how do they think the people will like the reopening of the war prospect? Even this consideration is not the whole of it, for these irresponsible Senators are trying their best to raise up new enemies for us, Japan for instance. So far as the attempt to raise a belligerent feeling against Japan and Great Britain is concerned, it is politics of the criminal kind. The attempt to reopen the whole question of war and peace at Versailles without giving a thought to the consequences is politics, let us hope, of the merely ignorant kind. And yet PHILANDER C. KNOX, whatever may be said of Senators JOHNSON and BORAH, is not ignorant of foreign affairs. He was once Secretary of State. The excuse of ignorance is not open to him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Immigrants and Their Distribution. There will be, or at any rate there ought to be, complete agreement with OLE HANSON in the opinion that immigrants, on arriving in this country, should go, not to places where considerable numbers of like origin as themselves are living, but to other places where perforce they would be obliged to associate with people already Americanized and to learn as speedily as possible both the language and the customs of the United States.

This is only another way of saying that the "colonization" of immigrants—the formation, that is, of alien groups distinct from, and therefore more or less antagonistic to, the surrounding population—is a bad thing both for the country and for the members of the groups. The truth of that is known to everybody, and is admitted by everybody except a small class of unscrupulous exploiters who find political or financial profit in the peculiarities of the alien colonies and to the extent of their ability prevent or delay the process of assimilation as much and as long as they can.

This evil work is assisted chiefly by the foreign-language press, the existence of which depends, of course, on the perpetuation of supporters who either cannot read English at all or do it with difficulty. The learning of a new tongue, so easy for children, is a difficult task for adults—so difficult that many of them avoid it if they can, and they can if they live in a "colony" that has its own newspapers.

Segregation Is Easily Explicable. To prevent the formation of foreign colonies here, Mr. HANSON suggested, in the letter printed on this page yesterday, that the emigrant from Europe should be subjected to examination before he quits his home, and should have his abilities and needs ascertained. Then he should be assigned to some locality in this country where his services are in demand and where his associations would be those of his new home instead of the old one. If this could be done, a desirable end doubtless would be attained, but there are many and large difficulties in the way.

The immigrant is a human being with personal preferences of his own, and it is neither unnatural nor reprehensible, though unwise, that in entering a strange land he should go where he will hear familiar speech and have the loneliness of exile mitigated by the company of those to whom his birth and blood constitute claims of some validity for help and sympathy. To be without both would be for his ultimate advantage in most cases, but he does not realize that, and he seeks the immediate and minor benefits to be found where his predecessors on the long journey across the sea are gathered.

Even if the immigrant could be sent on arrival to the place really best for him, and where he soonest would become as near to a 100 per cent. American as his heredity permitted, there would be no way of keeping him there if he did not choose to stay. Were the alternative to remain in the assigned town or to return whence he came, he would be little better than a serf, "adscriptus glebae"—a condition intolerable to any man worthy of the name.

The problem is difficult and complex—so difficult and complex that all easy and simple solutions are to be suspected as false or impracticable. It is not therefore insoluble, but Seattle's now most eminent citizen will have to give it more thought before he solves it. Meanwhile, it cannot be too often repeated by him and others that "foreign colonies" are highly undesirable features of national life, and that their very worst effects are experienced by the people who form them.

Victims and Detectives. Opinions differ as to the wisdom shown by Mayor HYLAN in appointing a force of 1,000 vigilantes to back him up in his effort to save the city from the threatened danger of paying for the transportation facilities without which urban life is impossible what the providing of those facilities costs. To some of us the possibility of escaping, permanently, adequate payment for what we want and must have seems something less than a certainty, even though the Mayor's little army devote laborious days and massive intellects to the task of protecting us from that particular danger. That they may succeed in accomplishing it is the universal wish, of course, but it is not the general expectation—as yet, anyway.

Trusting as he does to bodies of selected citizens for the carrying out of noble purposes, why did not, or why does not, the Mayor form another army, say of 2,000 vigilantes, to assist the police in the apprehension of burglars? Such a force conceivably might achieve something in the way of preventing burglaries, which is even better than the apprehension of burglars, and is not even attempted, apparently, by Commissioner ENRIGHT and his men.

Work along that line would be a congenial form of activity for vigilantes. Their very name implies a special capacity for its performance, and at least they could be trusted not to fall in with the curious delusion, characteristic of most, if not all, police forces, that when crimes are committed the victims should keep them a dead secret between themselves and the detectives.

This policy rests on the assumption—if it rests on anything at all—that criminals, when there is nothing in the papers about their doings, think nobody knows what they are up to and are more easily caught. Vigilantes would laugh at that idea, experience having taught them that it pays to advertise, and that publicity, both of past performance and of present intention, helps a lot. The fast-lengthening record of thefts, domiciliary and highway, indicates the need of a new protective agency, and the Mayor would find amateur detectives much more abundant than unprofessionals competent to assist in interpreting corporation charters and applying corporation law.

An Episode Needing Elucidation. From Paris comes an enigmatic tale to the effect that sixty-two Frenchwomen who came to this country as brides of American soldiers have returned to their old homes after obtaining divorces from the husbands so recently acquired. What makes this story so puzzling is the fact that these divorces are said to have been obtained, not because of any transgressions on the part of the husbands, but because the wives found it impossible to adapt themselves to the American mode of living.

Easy as is the attaining of divorce in some of our States, that particular reason for granting it is not recognized as sufficient, so far as can be recalled, in any part of the country. And what is "the American mode of living"? Of course, we have our little peculiarities, like other peoples, but as those peculiarities must have been fairly well displayed by our men while winning the affections and hands of these presumably amiable aliens, it seems strange that the latter should have awakened with such suddenness to an irremediable incompatibility between themselves and their new environment.

One can only conclude that they were too quick despairers. The American mode of living, if there be one, has proved endurable for about all the kinds of folk there are. The conduct of the sixty-two brides is therefore deeply mysterious, but possibly it needs explanation no more than do the cases of the men who married women so little qualified for transplantation to a far country.

STRANGE ROLE FOR A TOOL.

French Deputy Apparently Has Not Read American Criticism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Friday, Aug. 29, in a report of the discussion of the ratification of the Peace Treaty by the French Chamber of Deputies is a statement to which I would call the attention of those men and women so familiar—alas! too familiar—to all of us, those men and women who spend their time explaining that President Wilson was the tool of Lloyd George and Clemenceau, that Wilson's head was turned by the reception accorded him, that, though he took with him to Paris brilliant ideas, he weakly abandoned them at the bidding of France and England.

The statement, dated Paris, Aug. 28, reads:

It's all in the point of view!

Confederates Not Overlooked by the American Legion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attention of the National Executive Committee of the American Legion has been called to a communication in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Aug. 27, from James Dinkins of New Orleans, La., in which reference is made to the invitation from the American Legion to the Grand Army of the Republic to attend the National Convention of the Legion at Minneapolis on Nov. 11, and suggesting that the American Legion extend the same courtesy and privilege to the United Confederate Veterans.

The American Legion believes that in the interest of firmly binding together the sentiment of the United States for true Americanism those who served in the world war should have the closest association with those who served on both sides during our civil war. Therefore, under date of Aug. 1, the American Legion sent to the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans invitations to attend the National Convention at Minneapolis in November. The G. A. R. accepted this invitation; the United Confederate Veterans sent a cordial letter in reply, stating the matter would be referred to the attention of its members at its annual reunion in Atlanta, in October. In the same spirit, the United Spanish War Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars have been invited to attend the American Legion's first national convention.

Desiring to preserve the memories and incidents of association in the great war, and believing the ideals of the American Legion will meet with their approval, an invitation has also been forwarded to the Canadian Veterans Army Association.

Irish Wealth Exploited.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The allegation that the British Government conceals the mineral wealth of Ireland for the promotion of British industrialism and the imposition on Ireland of an agricultural life; the myth of vast unworked coal and iron areas in Ireland, known to British statesmen and deliberately hidden by them from the dull Hibernian—this tale is fostered among the ignorant.

But your correspondent must have heard rumors of the great ships of the White Star Line, all of them built in an Irish harbor; he cannot be unaware that linen from Irish looms covered every airplane which went out from British hangars; and indeed he may discover that it is hard to be hanged without using an Irish rope. These industries are effected by hard-headed and hard-working Irishmen, in the face—as in shipbuilding—of many natural handicaps, and not the least of these is the fact that every pound of fuel for their sustenance must be shipped to Ireland from Scotland or Wales. It cannot easily be believed that the masters of Irish enterprise neglect fuel lying at the doorsteps of their factories in order to subsidize—from sheer affection—the coal capitalists from across the channel.

After all, to paraphrase the remark of a Scottish Sergeant during the abomination of the Paschendaele offensive—the eighth deadly sin is forever to be sorry for yourself.

THE PROFITEERS.

Was it not ever so? All wars that were
Had both a grim reverse and glorious face:
To nobler things the noble felt the spur,
But base and craven hearts grew yet more base.

No war was ever ended but remained
The unclean foe that preyed upon the State;
And, since he had no honor to be stained,
Gave rein to greed. So have we seen but late.

What need to name them—they who are our foes—
And shrink the poor man's loaf? And they are those Who thrust the poor man from beneath a roof!

Seems this not War—even while we murmur "Peace"?
Who shall its slaves and trampled ones release?

OTTO KAHN ATTACKS WAR TAX SYSTEM

Says Prices and Rents Have Risen Because of Our "Unscientific" Methods Since 1917.

PLEA FOR SMALL INVESTOR

Heavy War Taxes in Times of Peace Criticised—Says Taxed Capital Collects Toll from Public.

In a memorandum to "a public man in Washington," given out yesterday by its author, Otto H. Kahn of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., suggests the appointment by the Government of a non-political body of experts to study the effects of the various kinds of taxation which have been in force during and since the termination of the war, and to make recommendations to Congress based upon such study. Mr. Kahn, who submitted the memorandum in response to a request from the unnamed official for his views on the high cost of living, makes plain that he believes it to be demonstrable that "the unscientific system of taxation adopted in this country since 1917" has played a considerable part in boosting prices.

Denying that it is his wish to object to the obvious purpose underlying our war taxation, to impose the greatest burden upon those best able to bear it, and agreeing that taxation must be laid in accordance with the dictates of social justice, the banker concludes "that the very extreme of the burden laid upon business and income has partially defeated the purpose which the framers of our taxation legislation apparently had in view, and at the same time has given rise to certain unforeseen and troublous developments—as invariably happens in the case of extreme measures, especially where economics are involved. Now that the emergency of the war is over, I believe that the entire matter should be subjected to unprejudiced and competent critical review."

Tax on Industrial Investors.

After conceding that the farmer, the wage worker and the salaried man and woman are entitled because of the diminished purchasing power of the dollar to a proportionate increase in income, the memorandum insists that the owner of industrially invested capital has suffered similarly, while in addition thereto he is subject to a heavy excess profits tax and, if his income is large, to an income tax of unparalleled severity. Leaving out of account, however, the relatively small number of those in possession of large incomes and defining owners of industrially invested capital as, primarily, the storekeeper, the average merchant, and the millions who derive their incomes, all or in part, from investments in corporation securities, Mr. Kahn urges that such, "by the same token as the farmer, the wage worker, and the salaried man, feel the need of a larger return than formerly."

To emphasize his argument that spectacular earnings of certain individuals and corporations afford no just criterion as to the earnings of business as a whole and to show that there are numerous cases where earnings have shrunk since the war, the writer quotes from a recent investigation in England, where, he says, conditions appear to be similar. This investigator concluded that the increase in cost of certain articles during the past two years as compared with the two years before the war had been divided so that 57 per cent. went to labor, 40 per cent. to the State through taxation, and 3 per cent. to capital.

Thus it is set forth that the return on industrially invested capital no doubt has been diminished on the whole, Mr. Kahn arguing that if it be taken into consideration that the purchasing power of the dollar has shrunk nearly one-half, it will be seen that the actual yield is much less than it was prior to the war and that there has taken place in fact a drastic readjustment in the distribution of the national income. Noting that the excess profits tax for this year while reduced "is still very severe," Mr. Kahn assumes the case of a corporation whose excess profits tax amounted under the rates prevailing until this year to 40 per cent. on profits over and above "an arbitrarily fixed and, everything considered, low return on money actually invested in business." It was impossible, he points out, for such a business to make one dollar profit over and above such arbitrary return without charging to the purchaser something over two dollars, it being pointed out that earnings were subjected in addition to an income tax of 12 per cent. The Government, the memorandum remarks, takes the difference.

Effect of Excess Profits Tax.

Most articles before reaching the ultimate consumer, the banker continues, pass through several intermediaries, each of whom is subject to much these same conditions. He concludes his discussion of this particular tax with these observations:

"The excess profits tax has tended furthermore to increase actual cost of production, inasmuch as costs naturally are deducted before taxable profits are arrived at, and, therefore, under the operation of the excess profits tax, there is not the same inducement as under normal circumstances to keep costs down as much as possible, but in fact rather the reverse. Nor is there any longer any inducement to employ accumulated profits in the business without capitalizing them, which, of course, makes for lower cost of production. On the contrary, there is every inducement to capitalize every justifiable item—and this makes for higher cost.

"The excess profits tax in peace time must not be confounded with the war profits tax in time of actual warfare. A war profits tax, however heavy, is wholly sound, morally, socially, and economically, and its effect on prices is largely mitigated through circumstances and agencies which are operative when a country is at war.

"The objection to a very heavy excess profits tax in peace time rests not so much on equitable grounds as on the ground that on the one hand it does not, and cannot, accomplish the social purpose aimed at, and on the other hand it tends to hurt trade, discourage enterprise, and burden the public. Our excess profits tax certainly has not stopped, but rather has intensified what is commonly termed "profiteering."

"If ever the American people should reach the conclusion, almost incalculably far-reaching in the ramifications of its effects, that profits are to be limited to a definite maximum, they will have to accomplish that purpose by direct statutory enactment. It cannot be accomplished by excess profits taxes."

Incentive to Extravagance.

Expostulating the income tax, Mr. Kahn in his memorandum observes that one of the most valuable by-products of wise taxation is the promotion of thrift, but says the present tax, by reason of the kind and manner of its gradation is a breeder of extravagance and thus of higher prices, there being a general sentiment against saving so long as "the Government takes it away in chunks." Moreover, the investor, to recoup his income tax, demands higher return from securities, thus enhancing the cost of capital and once more raising prices, or else buys tax-exempt municipal, State, or Government bonds, thus reducing the quantity of funds available for private enterprise. A collateral turning to "get rich quick" schemes is noted.

Space is devoted in the memorandum to the effect of the tendency to buy non-taxable securities, or at least those yielding high rates, upon our export trade, the banker arguing that thus we do not buy as we should, the securities of foreign nations to which we wish to sell goods, while this attitude militates further against our capacity to come to equal England as an international money centre.

"Furthermore," he continued, "a very unfortunate impression is created abroad by the fact that at a time when we alone are capable of supplying the nations with urgently needed funds, we fail to do so adequately, and when we do accord loans to foreign countries, exact very onerous conditions. The fault is attributed to the American character, when, as a matter of fact, the cause—apart from natural conditions—is primarily due to our taxation measures.

"The housing famine and the resulting hardships and high rentals are due, in considerable part, to the fact that the private investor, generally speaking, has withdrawn from the field of real estate mortgages, because they do not yield him a sufficiently attractive return after taking into account the income tax.

"My criticism is not of the magnitude, but of the method of our tax measures. My point is that we have omitted to impose certain easily borne, easily collected, greatly productive and well tested taxes, such as—to quote only one minor, but characteristic instance—a stamp tax on checks, and have grossly maladjudged others, with the result that our revenue legislation has largely contributed to throw our economic equilibrium out of gear—to the detriment of everybody, and particularly to the great cost and damage of the masses of the people. I realize, of course, that even if strict governmental economy is practiced, we are faced with the necessity of raising a vast sum of money annually by taxation. But I am convinced that the needed amount can and should be raised with far less complexity, vexation and economic dislocation and disadvantage than have resulted and were bound to result from the revenue measures now in force."

Federal Bureau of Salvage Urged.

Another suggestion in the memorandum is for the creation of a Federal Bureau of Salvage, Mr. Kahn stating that he learned in England in 1918 that a similar body there had saved the nation in three years $500,000,000. The thrift lessons of the war, the financier adds, are being unlearned rapidly and the teaching of thrift therefore is suggested as a further function of the proposed bureau.

"It would seem to me that the appointment by the Government of one or more non-political commissions, consisting of business men, workingmen, farmers and economists, for the purpose of making studies and recommendations on a non-partisan basis, would still be of great advantage to the country at a time when grave economic, social and financial problems are pressing for solution and both the Executive Departments and Congress are greatly overworked."

VON SANDERS IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—Field Marshal Liman von Sanders, the German General who assisted in the command of the Turkish Army during the war, arrived in Berlin last night. He was met at the station by his former Chief of Staff and a representative of the War Office.

The Field Marshal complained to interviewers regarding the abrupt manner of his arrest in Constantinople and his detention behind a wire barrier in a stockade. He said that he had not even been permitted to take along his necessary personal baggage when he was removed from the steamer on which he arrived.

"The most depressing thing for me," said the Field Marshal, "was the fact that I was never able to learn the reason for my imprisonment—the charges preferred against me. In response to my continued protests and my energetic demand that I be tried in an English court I was told that the British War Office had not been informed of the reason for my arrest, but would endeavor to obtain the missing information from the French Government."

Field Marshal von Sanders added that he had been treated with every courtesy on the trip to Malta and Venice, while he was the guest of the British Admiralty, and that he had been also "correctly" received by the Italians.

Berlin advices received on Aug. 14 said that the Allies had granted the repatriation to Germany of Field Marshal von Sanders, who had been arrested in Constantinople when the Turkish armistice was signed and had been under detention there since. Von Sanders commanded a Turkish force which fought against the Russians and likewise was in command in Palestine during the final campaign there, narrowly escaping capture.

ASSAIL PIECEWORK PLAN.

German Railway Employes Oppose Move to Increase Output.

BRESLAU, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—The Silesian railway workers, at a mass meeting today, adopted resolutions opposing the restoration of piecework, asserting that of their own volition and out of a sense of duty they were ready to render the same amount of work under the hour schedule as under the job system in order to expedite the nation's economic recovery.

Other workers, comprising chiefly the shop mechanics, voted to hasten the production of engines and cars in order to facilitate coal transport, under the assumption that the Government would take cognizance of their wage demands and would also grant the employes active representation in the administration of the shops. The resolution of the railway workers will be brought to the attention of the Prussian Diet, the National Assembly and the Railway Ministry.

BERLIN, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—The Berlin section of the Federation of Railway Workers has adopted a resolution opposing the introduction of piecework on the ground that it leads to an unusual and unjust rate of pay because of the complicated nature of railway repair work. The workers say they suspect the railway administration of endeavoring to supplant work by the hour with the piecework system for the purpose of forcing the output.

A meeting called by the Independent Union of Railway Workers has voted to oppose all measures planned by the Minister of Railways.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Announcement was made by the Mexican Embassy tonight that the Carranza Government is willing to enter into negotiations with the United States Government, with a view to reaching an understanding on claims for damages caused during the constitutional period in Mexico, as well as those which arose out of acts committed during the preconstitutional period, in cases not provided by Mexican law now in force. The announcement follows:

"Important concessions were made by President Carranza in amending the decree relative to claims for damages sustained during the revolution, issued from his general headquarters at Monclova, Coahuila, on May 10, 1913, as First Chief of the Constitutionalist Army.

"The decree of May 10, 1913, granted to nationals and foreigners alike the right to file claims for damages suffered during the revolution up to the restoration of constitutional order, caused by revolutionary forces or armed bands.

"This decree is extremely liberal and embodies a spirit of justice which bespeaks the good-will and probity of the Constitutionalist revolution.

"On Nov. 24, 1917, President Carranza issued a decree creating and regulating the work of the commission that was to consider the payment of damages as authorized by the decree of May 10, 1913 already mentioned.

"Article 13 of the decree of Nov. 24, 1917, provides that foreign claimants who should not be satisfied with the decision of the Advisory Committee, may present their arguments either personally or through diplomatic channels; said arguments to be submitted to the consideration of the board of three umpires or arbiters of which one will be appointed by the diplomatic representative of the claimant's country; another by the Mexican Government, and the third by mutual argeement of the two appointed. (Article 14 of same decree.)

"Since the restoration of constitutional order (May 1, 1918,) diverse damages have been caused, the payment of which could not be claimed under the provisions of the above mentioned decrees, but the Mexican Government in its efforts to overcome any difficulties is willing to enter into negotiations with the Government of the United States with a view of seeking a mutual understanding in so far as concerns the payment of damages caused during the present constitutional period, as well as those caused prior to its establishment in all cases not provided by the law now in force."

SEEK FUND TO AID JEWISH ORPHANAGE

400 CHILDREN IN NEED

Lack of Facilities Compels Institution to Refuse Many Worthy Applications

An announcement of the inauguration of a campaign for $500,000 to care for Jewish orphans was made yesterday by the Hebrew National Orphan House at 52 St. Marks Place. The campaign will be formally launched at a dinner to be given at the Hotel Astor next week, the exact day of which will be announced later. A working committee of 100 prominent men has been chosen to handle the drive.

According to estimates made by the managers of the campaign $500,000 will care for 500 orphans. A new building, surrounded by twenty acres of park-like grounds on the Tuckahoe Road, Westchester, was recently purchased. As indicating the need of additional facilities, the committee states that at the present time 500 children of Jewish faith are being cared for by non-Jewish institutions.

"The case of the Hebrew National Orphan House simply underscores the magnitude of the problem which Jewish philanthropic endeavor is facing at present," the statement issued by the committee declared. "On file at the Hebrew National Orphan House are no fewer than 400 applications, pathetic appeals for assistance, poignant letters from bread-winning mothers who want to see their children properly cared for and educated while they are earning the means of subsistence. Owing to the lack of housing facilities the St. Marks Place institution has been compelled against its will to postpone action on these needy cases.

"Both orthodox and reformed Jews are lending a hand to raise the required amount. The all-important question is the saving of the orphan, and men prominent in Jewish activities are straining every effort to top the specified goal.

"In addition to installing in its new home hygienic dormitories, light and airy refectories, homelike and informal in character, the Hebrew National Orphan House will establish secular schools in accordance with the standard principles of education as laid down in the Board of Education. Ample provision has also been made for the social, aesthetic, and religious expression of the child, such as games, music, and religious services.

"The present plan of the Hebrew National House also includes the placement of children, wherever possible, in clean, wholesome homes under the care of childless families, who are willing to devote themselves to the spiritual and physical needs of some child who has been bereft of both mother and father. The Hebrew National Orphan House, in cases of this sort, continues to supervise the mental and physical well-being of the child.

"The reports of the Commissioner of Charities are not only revealing but, if one penetrates behind to their significance, touching in the extreme.

"Campaign headquarters have been opened at 1 Second Avenue. Jewish organizations of both the orthodox and reform persuasion, including synagogues and fraternal organizations, have placed themselves at the disposal of the Campaign Committee. Checks should be made payable to The Hebrew National Orphan House, Harry B. Rosen, Treasurer, 1 Second Avenue, New York City."

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine at 110th Street and Amsterdam Avenue was crowded yesterday at noon with relatives and friends of the late Charles Frederick Hoffman, President of the Union Club and for twenty years Treasurer of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, when the simple funeral service of the Episcopal Church was held. Mr. Hoffman died Thursday at his Summer home at Newport, R. I., and the body was brought here yesterday on a Fall River steamer.

There were no addresses at the services, but a vested choir of forty voices, under the direction of Miles Farrow, the choir director, rendered special music. The flame test that convinced the Government

Five extra features

1 The layer of asbestos which is built in at top, bottom, front, sides and back.
2 The Automatic Safety Latches, which prevent the drawers from opening in a fire emergency or in office re-arrangement.
3 The "Y and E" Frictionless Slides which give the drawers an easy gliding movement.
5 A "Y and E" System which enables you to keep your records with greatest convenience and at lowest cost. System service without charge.

So when they wanted some really "fire-proof" filing cabinets, the Navy submitted samples of many makes to a standard test for fire and heat-resistant qualities. And one kind of cabinet—the "Y and E" Fire-wall cabinet—stood out as superior to all others. Because it is built like a safe. Anybody with a power-blast burner and pyrometer can make the test himself; the result is always the same.

The metal in the ordinary steel cabinet is a conductor of heat, and the papers inside it begin to smoulder and burst into flames almost as soon as the heat is applied.

But, when the same heat is applied to "Y and E" Fire-Wall steel filing cabinets, their superior protection is soon made clear.

The asbestos in the dead-air chambers between the double walls of steel really protects the papers within from the flames without. The "Y and E" Cabinet proves itself by this Navy Test, to be over several times as fire-proof as any other steel filing cabinet made.

FIRE-WALL STEEL FILING CABINETS

It will pay you to get the new booklets "Vertical Filing Down-to-Date," and "Steel Cabinets Built Like Safes."

Growing Demand for the Automobile

Registration of Motor Vehicles in the United States has increased at a rate over one million a year for the past five years.

In 1918 there were registered over 3½ times as many as in 1914. Today many automobile manufacturers, even though no longer on a war basis, cannot supply the demand for their cars.

We will be glad to furnish further details regarding investment possibilities in the Automobile Industry.

We call your attention to a letter from Mr. Wm. Cooper Procter, President, which is summarized as follows, and copies of which may be had upon request:

The Company and its subsidiaries are today the largest producers in the United States of soaps, glycerine, and foodstuffs manufactured from vegetable fats such as cotton-seed and cocoanut oils. Its best known products, Ivory Soap and Crisco, have become household words throughout the country.

In case of the liquidation or dissolution of the Company, the 6% Preferred stock will be entitled to preferential payment of the par value of the shares and accrued dividends after payment of par value and accrued dividends on the 8% Preferred stock and before any distribution is made to the holders of the Common stock. The 6% Preferred stock will not be entitled to voting power except when four quarterly dividends are in arrears. The authorized amount of both issues of Preferred stock of the Company shall not be increased nor shall any additional stock be authorized to be issued with rights equal with or prior to the rights of the 6% Preferred stock.

The purpose of this issue is to furnish additional working capital for plants under construction and contemplated.

Since the inception of the business in 1837 it has been conservatively financed and the character of the management has remained unchanged. In recent years the volume of business and net income after payment of dividends on the 8% Preferred stock have been as follows:

Years Ended June 30	Volume of Business	Net Income after Dividends on 8% Preferred Stock	Indicated Earnings per share of 6% Preferred Stock
1915	70,790,906	4,655,992	47.19
1916	88,113,506	6,036,053	61.18
1917	128,549,649	6,876,494	69.70
1918	176,920,519	9,539,804	96.69
1919	193,392,044	7,145,532	72.42

The Net Income shown above is after deducting interest charges and dividends on the 8% Preferred stock and making adequate provision for taxes (including Federal and State Income and War Taxes), depreciation, advertising, etc.

Upon completion of the present financing, the current assets of the companies will exceed all liabilities by $54,000,000, and net tangible assets will exceed $68,000,000. After deducting the 8% Preferred stock these figures are equivalent, respectively, to $525 and $666 per share of 6% Preferred stock.

Recent quotations of the Common stock indicate an equity over and above the Preferred stock of approximately $120,000,000.

We offer for subscription subject to allotment such of this Stock as may not be taken up by others through the exercise of rights, when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to approval of counsel at

100 and accrued dividend

As holders of Common stock are to be given the prior right to subscribe to this issue through the exercise of rights, allotments cannot be made before September 16. It is expected that stock or temporary certificates will be delivered soon thereafter.

SEES PRODUCTION AS CURE FOR UNREST

ALSO URGES FRUGAL LIVING

Head of Delaware & Hudson Co. Reviews Dr. Bowley's Analysis of English Incomes.

L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware and Hudson Company, says that the United States must look for relief from the present industrial unrest to the problem of production and frugal living. He bases his position on "An Analysis of National Income Before the War" which was prepared by Dr. Arthur L. Bowley, Professor of Statistics in the University of London, which makes the situation in that country quite clear. Mr. Loree who has prepared a memorandum on the analysis, says that the situation here does not differ materially from that in England, save that in every way the United States is better off. He says in his memorandum:

"Dr. Bowley's interest was stimulated by a statement of Sidney Webb, a leading socialist that 'two-thirds of (the population,) that is to say, the manual working class, obtain for all their needs only one-third of the produce of each year's work,' and by a statement by Sir Hugh Bell, a leading ironmaster, in which the latter said, 'let a close examination be made of the whole industry of any country, and I am much mistaken if the result will not be approximately as follows: Seventy-five per cent. of the total sale value of the commodities produced will have gone to pay the persons engaged in producing them.'

"Dr. Bowley is a true disciple of Aristotle. He proposes to 'examine these statements by referring them to facts and to actual life, and when they harmonize with facts accepting them; when they are at variance with facts, conceiving of them as mere theories.'

"He collects his information from a variety of sources, principally the Government census report. He complains of the necessity of using this involved and uncertain method of calculation, based on records some of them now 32 years old and even then incomplete, and involving references to independent publications published by unconnected departments, illustrating how hopelessly inadequate are the national statistics even for calculations of very considerable importance. In spite of these difficulties in detail, however, he thinks his estimates are substantially correct within perhaps 3 per cent., the margin of error being inconsiderable.

Examines the Population.

"Dr. Bowley proceeds first to examine the population of the United Kingdom, which he finds to consist of 21,950,000 men and boys, of whom 14,500,000 are employed, and 23,270,000 women and girls, of whom 5,850,000 are employed. The unemployed males were for the most part those under 15 years of age and the pensioners. He points out that the unemployed are not necessarily idle, and concludes that the number of able-bodied men who, according to their own statements, have no occupation, is extremely small. The unoccupied females above 15 were as a rule married or widows, and, of course, busily engaged in domestic duties. He points out that it is easy to exaggerate the numbers that the war has drawn into work, since many of those engaged in new occupations have simply been drawn from others, including domestic service, which have been depleted.

"He then undertakes a division of the employers and the earners of wages and salaries. He puts 11,000,000 men and boys and 4,650,000 women and girls in the class of wage earners, pointing out that under the census reports employers are instructed to include as "salaried" clerks, travelers, salesmen, and buyers in the sole employment of the firm, and the management staff. Since small salaries do not differ from wages in amount he classifies these small salaried people, that is, those earning below £160 annually, as fairly to be included among the wage earners, and this not in any way at the expense of wages. He finds 650,000 men in a group of small shopkeepers, hawkers, caterers, and workers of various kinds who find their own customers, and 550,000 women in a similar group, mostly small dealers, dressmakers, &c., the incomes of these two groups having nearly the same range as those of wage earners; 330,000 in a group including clergy, doctors, lawyers, engineers, writers, artists, entertainers, &c.; 580,000 was a group including farmers, &c., occupied on the land, except farm wage earners.

"There then remained employers in industry, commerce and dealing, including the stock broker, who has a few clerks, the shopkeeper, with one assistant, and an owner of a large manufacturing business. In all he estimates 1,120,000 salaried male persons, of whom 735,000 have salaries less than £160.

"He feels that the distinction drawn between manual workers and their families and the rest of the population is misleading, especially when manual workers are identified as wage earners; that there is no definite line between wage earners and persons working directly for customers and small employers and small farmers, except that the latter take the risk of the business, and consequently make profits when successful and make little or nothing when unsuccessful; nor is there any clear or uniform division between wages and salaries.

Aggregate Incomes.

"He then proceeds to an examination of the aggregate income of the population and works out two tables; the one following seems more clearly to present the matter:

HOME INCOME, 1911.

	Millions.
Wages	£782
Salaries, less than £160	84
Independent workers, small employers, farmers, &c., less than £160	180
Total wages and earned income below £160		1,046
Salaries above £160	130
Other income above £160:
Lands and buildings	193
Government securities	12
Profits from trades and professions	390
Evading tax or unremitted	17
		742
Unearned income below £160	50
Soldiers and sailors abroad, say	20
Old age pensions	12
Agricultural income, not otherwise included	26
		108

"It would appear that before the war the English people enjoyed an annual income from their foreign investments of £194,000,000, of which £94,000,000 was brought home for expenditure and £100,000,000 invested abroad. Disregarding this importation of income, the income received from 'the produce of the year's work,' with which he is alone concerned, was approximately £1,900,000,000, of which over £1,000,000,000 was received by manual wage earners and other workers whose earnings were less than £160 per annum. He then seeks to determine the maximum sum that can, even under extreme hypothesis, be regarded as luxuriously or unnecessarily spent by persons with incomes of £160 or more.

"He points out that those who have only looked at the considerable aggregate of national income received by the limited number of rich people and have been led to the view that these spent it luxuriously and wastefully, appear not to have considered that a great part of the expenses of the Government and the savings necessary for the progress of an increasing population are drawn from the larger incomes.

Labor and Production.

"It is very noticeable in this and other discussions that with the great amount of attention given to the problem of distribution, almost no attention is given to the problem of production. No figures seem available to indicate what the help of the wage earner is in production. Extremists among the labor leaders claim that labor produces it all. Extremists on the other side claim that in many industries labor has become partially parasitic, labor not putting in through its help as much as it takes out in its wage, the balance of help, the contribution of management and capital, having relatively become so large.

"Having considered, then, the population, the income, the wages, and the division of product, Dr. Bowley comes to his summary and conclusions:

"'In 1911 the aggregate income of the residents of the United Kingdom derived from home sources was £1,900,000,000, of which nearly 60 per cent. found its way into the hands of a group receiving wages, small salaries, or independent earnings due almost entirely to their own exertions, whose annual income was under £160.

"'About 40 per cent. forms the income from home sources of 1,100,000 income tax payers and their families. Of this £45,000,000 was "earned" as salaries or by farmers; £407,000,000 was the total of all profits of trades and professions, and £190,000,000 was "unearned" (in the sense in which the word is currently used) and obtained from the ownership of real property or securities. Of this, £6,000,000 was derived from house property.

"'The average salary of salaried persons paying income tax was about £340, and the average profit (whether arising from the use of a person's own capital or simply from personal exertions) may be roughly estimated at £500. This group includes the assessments of men and women in professions as well as those engaged in business.

Transfer of Incomes.

"'There was a considerable transference of the taxpayer's income to the benefit of the poorer classes. Not only are old-age pensions drawn from taxation, but the expense of feeding of school children, much of the expense of education and poor law relief, and other benefits financed from the rates, contributions to national insurance, &c., are mainly deductive from the incomes of the well-to-do and the actual income of endowed charities.

"'We must certainly allow something for the work of active employers, professional men, and salaried employes when we are considering surplus income. Actually the cutting down of earned incomes would in fact seriously diminish the power as well as the will to work, and a good deal of income would disappear in the process of transfer.'

"Making these indicated deductions and those necessary for the national saving and a large part of the national expenses, he reverts to his estimate of £225,000,000 as the remainder which on the extremist reckoning can have been spent out of home produced income by the rich or moderately well-off on anything in the nature of luxuries; that is, on the things unattainable by the possessor of an income of less than £160."

"Wages can be raised temporarily by legislation or by the shock tactics of a group of men whose services for the moment are essential. But no individual or company can be forced to employ people at a loss, and there is evident danger of unemployment on a large scale if workmen put too high a value on their services. It has been shown above that, unless new income is created, there is no fund from which unemployment on a large scale can be subsidized; and there is little reason to think that the State could furnish productive work at the higher wages without a loss, when competitive employers failed to do so.

Sees Increased Production.

"There remains the one hopeful way by increasing production, care being taken that the increased product is well distributed. This will not come suddenly, nor by legislative act, but there are great possibilities in certain directions. Capital can be better applied to production, as has been shown during the war, and it is probable that an effective demand for higher wages would force its better and more economical use; but it must be remembered that skill of management is limited and the best results cannot be universally obtained.

"At the same time on the side of labor there must be no waste of productive power, but plant and machinery must be put to their maximum use. Greater encouragement of skill, more facilities for promotion from unskilled work to skilled, better education, and an improved physique which may result from higher wages, more leisure and better environments, together with full opportunity for use of all intelligence, strength, and skill, irrespective of sex, and without due insistence on pedantic rules as to previous training, would result in a much fuller use of the latent abilities of the race than has hitherto been possible.

"This analysis has failed in part of its purpose, if it has not shown that the problem of securing the wages which people rather optimistically believe to be immediately and permanently possible is to a great extent independent of the question of national or individual ownership, unless it is seriously believed that production would increase greatly if the State were sole employer.

"The wealth of the country, however divided, was insufficient before the war for a general high standard; there is nothing as yet to show that it will be greater in the future. Hence the most important task incumbent on employers and workmen alike—more important immediately than the improvement of the division of the product—is to increase the national product, and that without sacrificing leisure and the amenities of life."

COMMUNITY STUDY AT HOME

L. E. Bowman to Conduct Course in Leadership for Columbia.

A course in sociology entitled Community Organization was announced yesterday by the home study branch of Columbia University's Department of Extension Teaching. Instruction, which will be under the direction of L. E. Bowman, is designed to train leaders, organizers, executives, committee members, and social workers in the principles and practice of organization.

"It deals with the technique of leadership, not with the details of any specialized activity," says the announcement, "and aims to furnish working principles by which knowledge, support, and control of social activities may be put on a community basis. Only those may take the course who are actually engaged in community service of some kind."

The subjects covered include the natural neighborhood unit, organizations within the neighborhood, relation of neighborhood to smaller and larger units, use and co-ordination of organizations within the community, community organization in church, State and industry, primary ideals, principles and methods of community organization, neighborhood tradition and local folkways, group attention and publicity, dangers and uses of survey, community art, community ideals, welfare versus democratic organization, neighborhood socialization, development of community leadership, method and principles of leadership.

The course is open to both men and women.

Back of Your Bond

MUNICIPAL BONDS offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co. are the tax-secured promises-to-pay of states, cities, towns, districts and other taxing bodies. They are issued for the construction of needed improvements as, for instance, harbor and wharf facilities in the case of the State of Louisiana Port Commission 5's, which issue is representative of our Municipal offerings.

Municipal bonds have for years been a favorite investment among the most conservative investors—savings banks, insurance companies, trustees of estates, and individual investors who place safety first in the choice of their investments. Such bonds are in even greater favor today because income derived from them is exempt from the Federal Income Tax.

List N. A. 26, descriptive of our current offerings, will be sent upon request

London

LONDON, the capital of the British Empire and the largest city in the world, lying on each side of the River Thames, 50 miles above its mouth, had in 1911 a population of 4,522,964. Fourteen road bridges cross the Thames within the City of London. Of these, London Bridge connecting the city with Southwark and Bermondsey, stands first in historical interest and in importance as a modern highway.

Some of the metropolitan railway lines cross the river in tunnels beneath its bed. There are several tunnels under the river in its course below London Bridge.

In 1916 London commerce totaled $2,665,993,000 of which imports were $1,748,933,000. The city is a tremendous business center, and besides the Stock Exchange, there are other Exchanges for special articles, including the Corn Exchange, Wool Exchange, Coal Exchange, Shipping Exchange, etc.

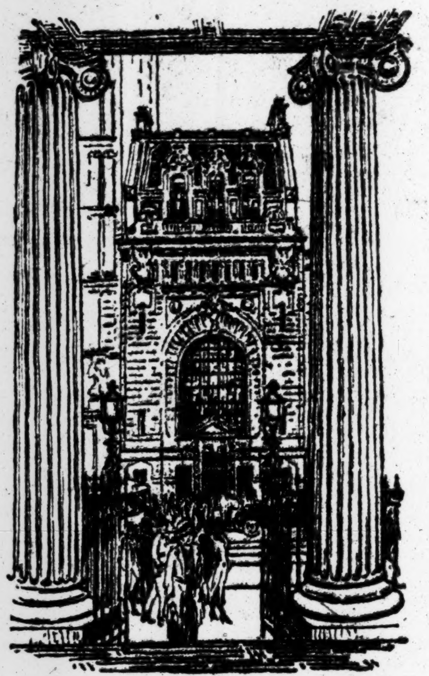
AN INTERESTED SERVICE



214 Broadway
As seen between the columns of St. Paul's Chapel

"I always have the feeling when calling at your bank that you do not look upon our account simply as a matter of routine, representing account number so and so, but that you are kind enough to show some personal attention and interest in our striving for success."

WE believe we are justified in reproducing the excerpt above, as typical of the feeling existing between THE NATIONAL PARK BANK and its customers.

THIS RELATIONSHIP results not only from the fact that we have developed a service to meet satisfactorily all the financial requirements of our customers—it is because the service is interested as well as efficient.

AND this interest is possible because it has from the beginning been the endeavor of this bank to keep all our officers acquainted with all our customers and with their requirements.

THE NATIONAL PARK BANK OF NEW YORK

U. S. Wood Products and Canada

Baltimore—Shipping and The Citizens National Bank.

Baltimore has every natural advantage incident to successful maritime commerce.

By reason of the fact that we are 150 miles nearer Chicago and the Middle West than any other competing Atlantic Seaboard City, the Interstate Commerce Commission has decreed a freight differential in favor of Baltimore under Philadelphia, New York and Boston of from $10 to $30 per car.

We are 1369 miles nearer the Panama Canal than is San Francisco and are nearer the West Coast Cities of South America than any other large Atlantic Port.

Our magnificent harbor is skirted by three great trunk lines, affording connection with deep water transportation facilities and the other great trunk lines extending North, South and West.

Ships plying between Baltimore, Cuba and South America are not only stimulating greater Baltimore production of export goods, but vast quantities of export freight manufactured in Pittsburg and other inland cities will, in the very near future, be passing through our gates.

Enormously increased shipping belongs to Baltimore by right of her extraordinary advantages and economies, and the country's big business men of vision are rapidly awakening to the opportunities offered.

The Citizens National Bank of Baltimore, with its experience, prestige and millions of resources, will co-operate in every possible way to see Baltimore and those identifying themselves with her come into their own.

Removal of Import Restrictions Leaves an Exchange Situation Worse Than Tariff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Today's removal of import restrictions has brought in the newspapers a torrent of articles on Britain's great free trade controversy, but the lifting of the ban seems to have made little difference to American importers. They are confronted with the exchange situation, in practice a far more formidable obstacle to trade than any tariff, and they do not expect any great influx of American products in consequence. Frank Wyman Libby, Managing Director of Willys-Overland Limited, and Chairman of the Commerce Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce, discussing the situation with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today, said:

Unless allied bankers can devise some alleviating measures at their forthcoming meeting it seems we must be prepared to face for a long time an exchange rate which amounts to a 15 per cent. duty. On the other hand, I am informed that England is likely to reduce her present 33 per cent. duty on automobiles to 15 per cent., as a result of the agreement with France and Italy. These two countries may adopt that rate in the near future, but England cannot change her tariff till May 1. Meanwhile French exchange is so low that it costs 22,000 francs, or $5,000, to purchase in Paris an American car selling for $1,000 at home. Nevertheless there is still a market for American cars here.

English automobile manufacturers increased their means of production during the war, but for one reason or another are not going ahead. Labor difficulties stand in their way for one thing, but they also seem unduly nervous about what the Government is likely to do, and hesitate to launch out. In this they are showing less enterprise than French auto manufacturers. We have determined to establish our own factory here and are not afraid to tackle the British labor problem.

It seems to me that the Ford people are the only manufacturers that have managed to instill into the British workingman something of American "go." At any rate, the Ford plant is the only one I've gone over in which workers are too busy on their jobs to notice when visitors come around. We're going to see if we can be as successful.

Meanwhile, the British press, in its discussion of the removal of import restrictions, seems to foresee a fight between free trade and protection nearing the range of practical politics, and naturally it divides on old party lines. Apparently, the press fears nothing from American importers, and turns all its attention to the reappearance of German goods and German drummers. The fight is focused mainly on the toy trade which was, to a very large extent, in German hands before the war, and which now is left unprotected here. This the advocates of a tariff resent on strong sentimental grounds. They are pointing out that a considerable proportion of workmen in recently opened British toy factories are disabled soldiers, and ask if English children are to play with articles made by men who slew their fathers.

The free trade papers reply with attacks on profiteers, and with rejoicings at the prospects of an early return to cheap prices.

Sir Auckland Geddes, as President of the Board of Trade, has of course the power to reinforce the restrictions on the importation of toys—or any other article, under the Premiers' undertaking to prevent extinction of any really important British industry, and is certain to be bombarded by representations from both sides.

This means that the uncertainty with regard to conditions of British manufacture still continues, and The Evening Standard tonight insists that the removal of that doubt, and a clear enunciation by the Government of a definite trade policy, is one of the first necessities for a national revival of business.

PARIS, Sept. 1, (Havas.)—A decree announcing the resumption of commercial relations with Germany will be published Tuesday, according to the newspapers of today.

WE HAVE THE TENANTS AND BUYERS

7 DEALS DAILY

HAVE YOU VACANT OR UNPRODUCTIVE PROPERTY?

At the present time, all properties entrusted to our management are filled. But there still remains on our records a long list of desirable would-be tenants and buyers waiting for us to locate them.

Have you any space at present untenanted, or property which you wish to sell? If you have, communicate with any of our offices immediately and we will undoubtedly fill your vacancy with a good, substantial tenant or buyer at a fair price. During the past year our organization has averaged better than seven leases or sales a day—all of them high-class properties—a much higher average than that attained by any other real estate organization dealing exclusively in the better properties in Greater New York.

The size of our organization (the largest in New York) enables us to offer owners the broadest possible market and most intelligent service in the rental, sale or management of real estate. Owners are invited to list their properties with us and to consult with us on any of their real estate problems.

Our management department renders a unique service in the management of Real Estate, relieving the owner of all burden and care. It will considerably lessen the operating expenses and make a marked increase in the net earnings of any Real Estate.

A $35,000 ESTATE FOR $25,500

Having moved permanently to the Middle West, owner will sacrifice Jersey suburban home to quick buyer for $25,500. $5,000 cash, balance on mortgage, takes it. The grounds comprise more than an acre, shaded by many fine old trees and beautifully planted with flowers and shrubs. The house is only three years old, of the most modern type of Italian architecture; is complete in every detail and READY FOR IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY. The place has been kept in the pink of perfection, and not an extra dollar need be spent on it. There are 15 big rooms and 4 bathrooms, the latter being completely tiled and provided with built-in tubs, showers and the best fixtures money can buy. The kitchen is also tiled, as well as a washroom off the main hall on the first floor. The grounds occupy the crest of Sunset Hill, in the heart of the Kittatinnies, a nearly 1,000 feet elevation; only 29 miles from Broadway, Manhattan. The local environs comprise one of the finest purely residential sections of New Jersey. The place can be reached within an hour via D., L. & W. R. R.; excellent commuting service, or by auto over splendid roads almost as quickly. This is an ideal gentleman's estate at a fraction of its real value. Views equal to those of the Berkshires spread out for 20 miles in several directions. Details can be obtained by writing SUBURBAN, P. O. Box 529, City Hall Station, New York City.

SALESMEN, AMBITIOUS.
Absorb this! A year ago I resigned as sales manager of the largest automobile distributer in the country. Mine was a responsible and lucrative position, but I wanted to increase my earning capacity. I had reached the top of the ladder. I looked over the business field with a fine comb and rejected innumerable propositions. At last I hit on the greatest business in the world, LIFE INSURANCE, which had been presented to me many times before, but never until I tried the business did I realize the following:
A delightful business, calling on the highest type of business and professional men, offering them a commodity of the most unquestionable character. Every day doing some good for my fellow-men, and at the same time building and enjoying an income far beyond my fondest hopes. Your compensation, based on commission, will be limited only by your own intelligent application. You, ambitious salesmen, come in and let's have a talk, and let me thoroughly prove my statements to you. We will also explain our special free training course that makes men exceptional salesmen. Call and see my sales manager, Mr. Taylor, Room 905, 516 5th Av., Tuesday or Wednesday, 9:30 A. The Civil Service.

United States.

The commission announces that the open competitive examination for check and bond sorter, for women only, which was held throughout the United States on Aug. 20, 1919, for filling vacancies in the office of the Auditor for the Treasury Department and in the Division of Loans and Currency of the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., at $900 to $1,000 a year, will be held again on Sept. 4, 1919, at the places listed on original announcement No. 309.

The commission calls attention to the fact that from the examinations for engineer, $3,000 or over a year; assistant engineer, $1,800-$2,880 a year; junior engineer, $1,200-$3,000 a year; engineering draftsman, $1,200-$3,000 a year, all for men, for which applications may be filed with the commission at Washington, D. C., at any time until further notice, it is expected that appointments will be made in connection with carrying out the provisions of the Soldier Land bill in the event this bill becomes a law.

There is a continuing need in the Reclamation Service for eligibles for the positions of assistant engineer and junior engineer, at the salaries indicated above, but the demand for eligibles for the higher-salaried positions of engineer and engineering draftsman is contingent on the Soldier Land bill becoming a law.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination for chief clerk, for men only, on Sept. 10, 1919, at New York, N. Y. A vacancy in the Signal Corps, Fort Wood, New York, N. Y., at $1,400 a year, and vacancies in positions requiring similar qualifications, at this or higher or lower salaries, will be filled from this examination unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion.

The appointee may also be allowed the temporary increase granted by Congress of $240 a year if his services are satisfactory.

Competitors will be examined in the following subjects: Spelling, arithmetic, penmanship, letter writing, copying and correcting manuscript, training and experience.

Applicants must show (a) that they have had at least two years of general office experience; or (b) that they have had at least one year's experience as office manager supervising the work of clerks and other office assistants. Special consideration will be given for experience in connection with keeping records of radio supplies.

Applicants must be 18 years old.

Applicants should at once apply for Form 1371, stating the title of the examination desired, to the Secretary of the Second Civil Service District, Custom House, New York, N. Y. Applications should be properly executed, excluding the medical certificate, and filed with the District Secretary at New York in time to arrange for the examination of the applicant.

Santa Claus
McCALL STREET

If all these homes were on one street, with a house every 25 feet, on both sides of the way, that street would sweep across the continent from Boston to San Diego.

Right now—today—Santa Claus is packing his bag for the 1,300,000 visits he must make, in this visioned street—which we call McCall Street.

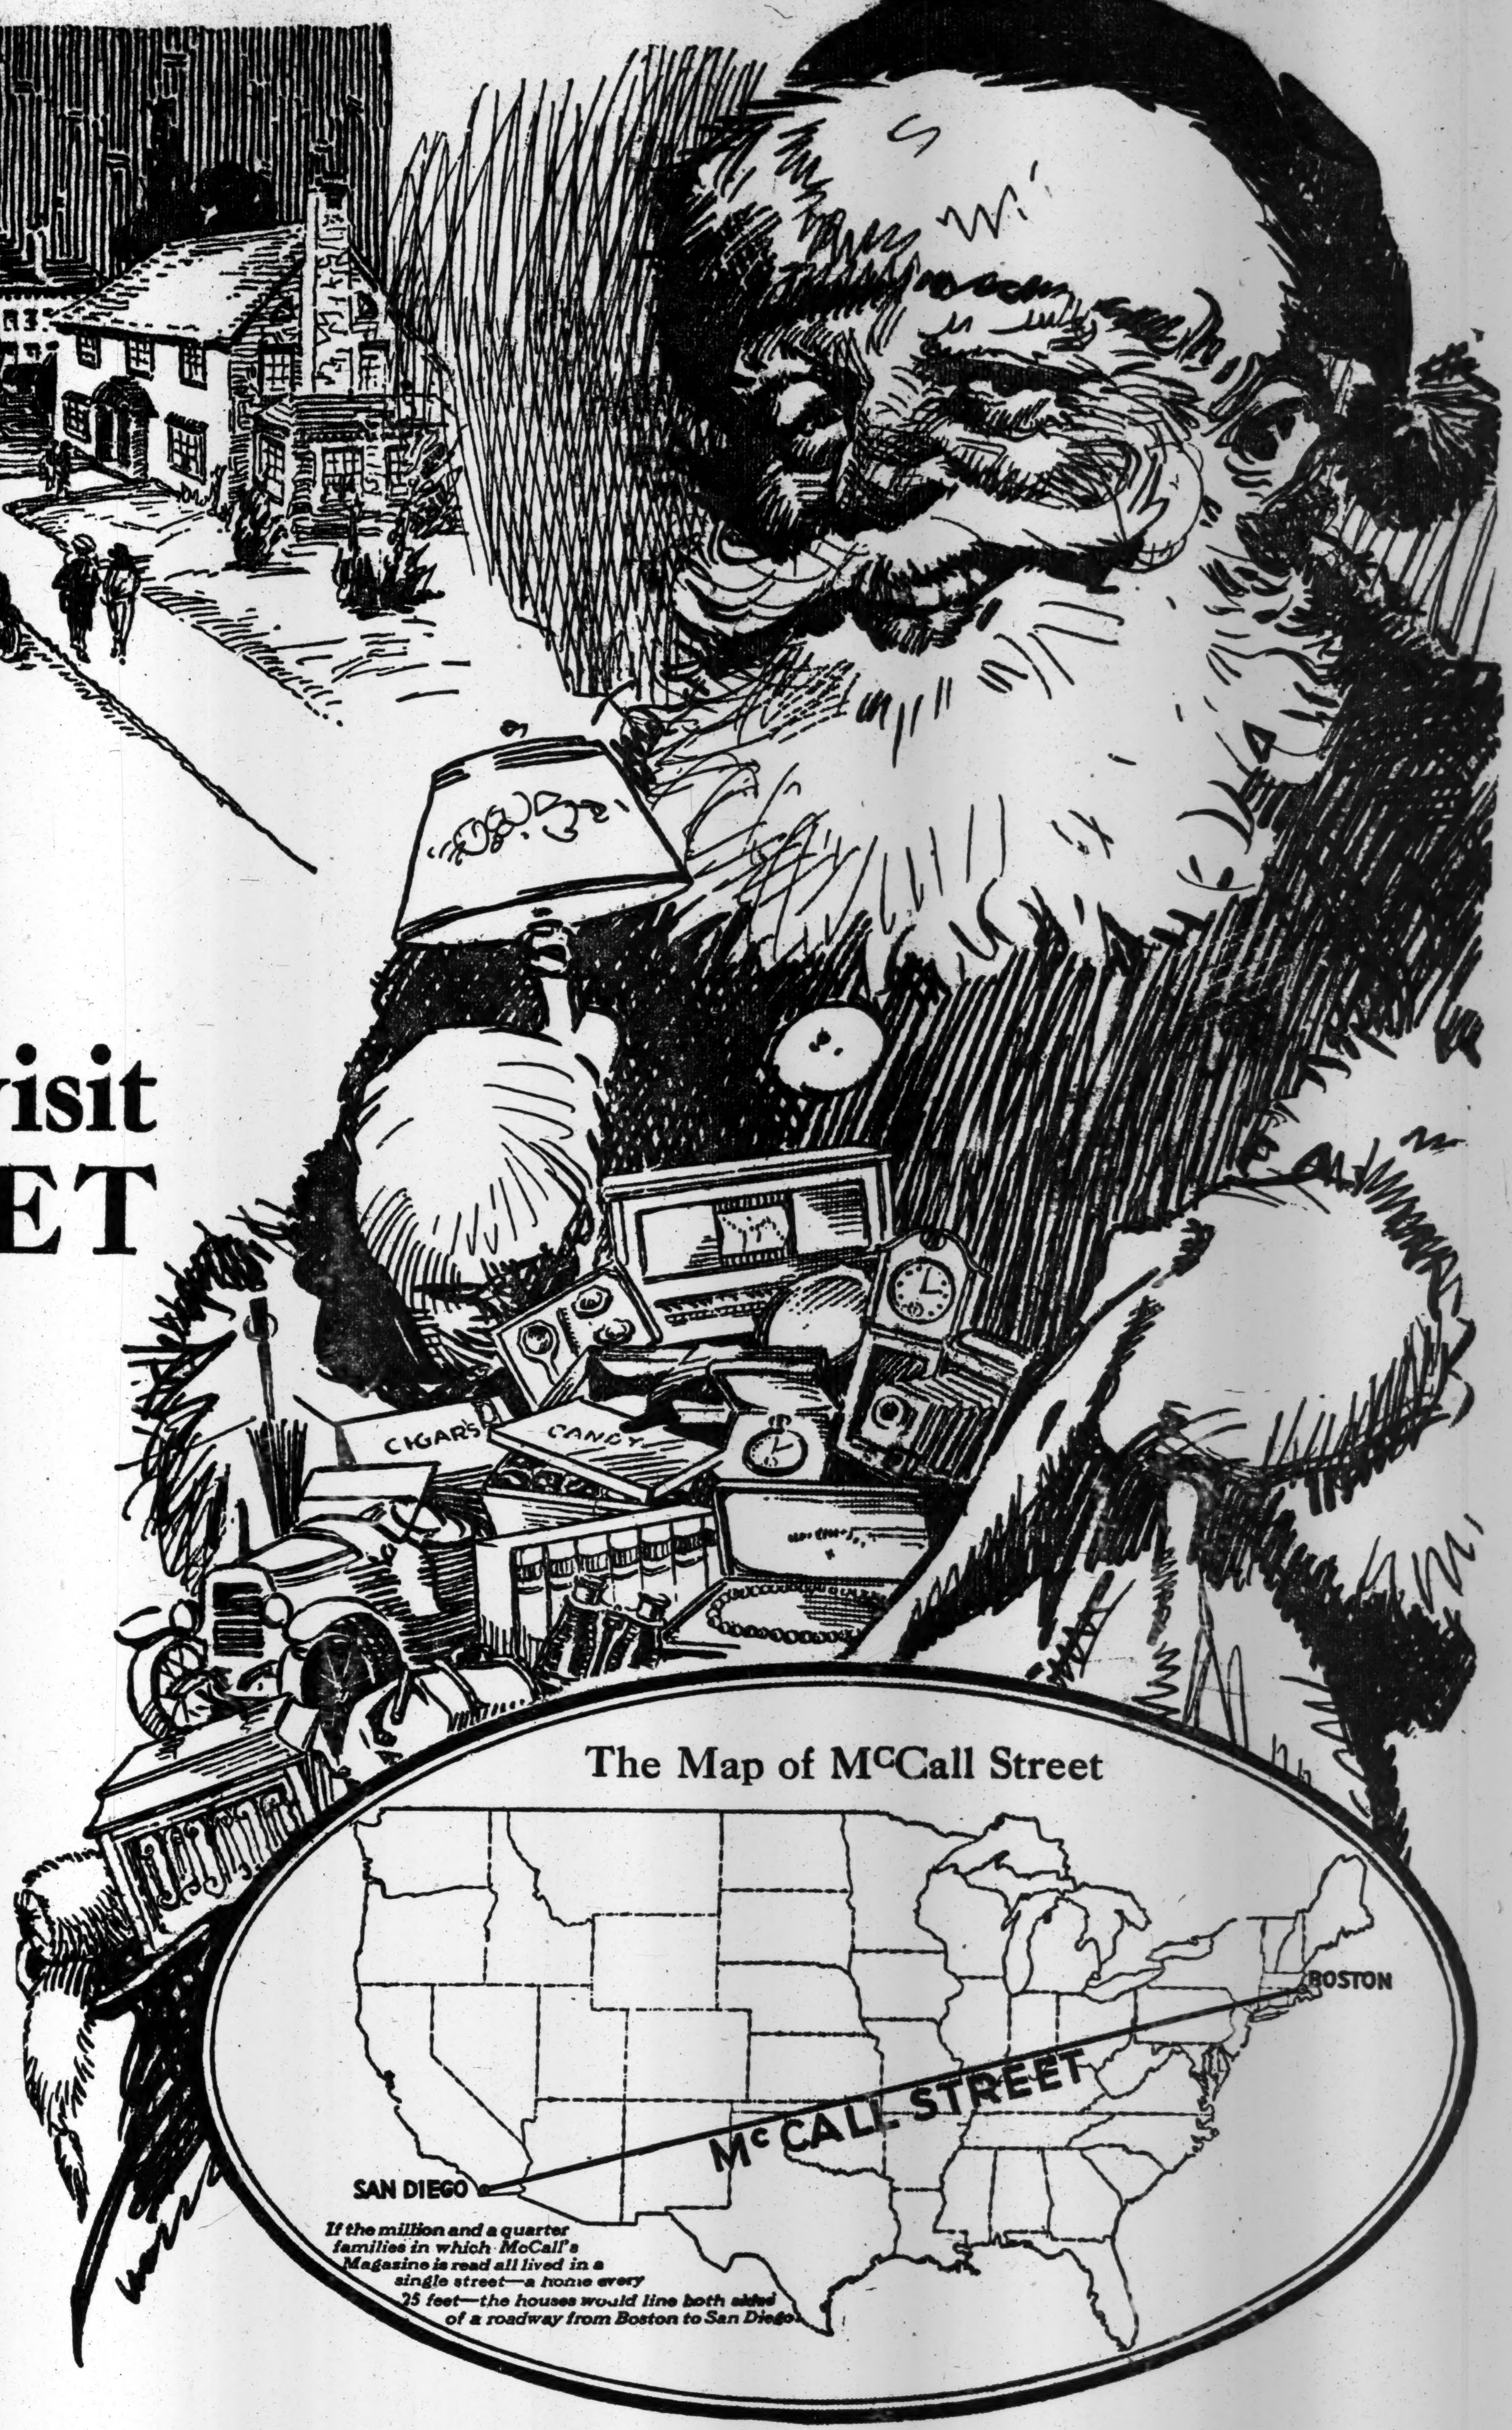
And because the people of McCall Street are sensible, practical people, a very great percentage of their Christmas expenditure is devoted to the buying of useful and acceptable gifts. McCall Street's Christmas expenditures, this year, will include not less than $3,000,000 for watches; $6,000,000 for talking machines and records; $2,000,000 for pianos; $4,000,000 for gloves, hosiery and handkerchiefs—to say nothing of china, table linen, perfumes, shaving and manicure sets, traveling bags, and the many other practical remembrances in which good taste on the part of the giver adds to the joy of the gift.



If the million and a quarter families in which McCall's Magazine is read all lived in a single street—a home every 25 feet—the houses would line both sides of a roadway from Boston to San Diego

MAGAZINE

The Christmas McCall's (December issue, out November 28th) will carry into the 1,300,000 homes on McCall Street, timely messages from many makers of beautiful and practical holiday gifts—messages which will inform and guide hundreds of thousands of Christmas buyers.
